HOLDUP MAN KILLS GROCER IN ANACOSTIA

Edward Sinclair Is Shot When He Fails to Take Robber Seriously.

THREE MEN HELD TALK, POLICE SAY

William Butler, Named as Trigger Man, Said to Confess.

MERCHANT DIED ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Money Sought by Thugs Is Clutched in Dead Man's Hand.

Three young Negroes were arrested on a murder charge by Precinct Detective Tolson, of the Eleventh Precinct, last night just a few hours after they had, it is alleged, shot to death Edward Sinclair, proprietor of an unpretentious grocery store at 1120 Howard road, Anacostia.

Two of the Negroes, Edward Stewart, 1113 Howard road, and John Stewart, 1042 Sumner road southeast, were taken into custody as suspects shortly after Sinclair was shot. Under police grilling they admitted, it is alleged, the shooting, and told police that William Butler, 1624 East Capitol street, had actually fired the shot.

Headquarters detectives pulled Butler from a bed at the East Capitol street address, and he readily admitted, they say, his part. He showed the detectives a spot just back of the railroad tracks at Eleventh street southeast, where he had thrown the gun. It was recovered.

Sent Others Ahead.

Butler, alleged ring-leader, sent the others into the store to make a purchase. While they were engaging Sinclair's attention, he entered with drawn gun.

Failure to take seriously the command to "hand over that wad" cost Sinclair his life.

Sinclair, a gaping bullet hole through his heart, died in the patrol wagon of the Eleventh Precinct en route to the Casualty Hospital. The "wad," some $369, was clutched tightly in his hand when physicians at the hospital examined him.

The masked bandit, with a handkerchief over his hand, brusquely ordered the merchant to hold up his hands.

"Put up that gun, boy," Sinclair replied.

Hold-Up Man Flees.

Fearful lest Sinclair make an outcry, the hold-up man fired point-blank into the aged man's body. Without taking the time to ride the victim's pockets, the man turned and ran from the store. His companions likewise fled. Sinclair staggered to

Italian Opposes Pan-Europa Plan

Editor Says League Already Serving to Unite All of Countries.

Rome, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Italian press, generally, has reported without comment the project of Premier Briand of France for Pan-Europa. Only the authoritative Tribuna carries a front page editorial signed with the initials of its editor, Forges Davanzati.

The great Roman publicist asks what this Pan-Europe means. If it means a link between European states, not having anti-American or anti-British character, it exists already in the League of Nations, he says.

The League, he points out, may not be satisfactory and may not be efficient, but as far as Pan-Europa is concerned, it is all that could be attained. Therefore, if this exists it is useless to talk about a United States of Europa. It is enough seriously and loyally to consider European policy, he ended.

Stock Exchange Orders Full Earnings Reports

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Governors of the New York Stock Exchange today adopted a report of a special committee on stock dividends which requires companies, the securities of which are listed, to specify whether such dividends represent capitalization of current or past earnings and regulating the method by which dividends so received are accounted for in income statements.

E. H. H. Simmons, president of the exchange, in explaining the new regulations, said that the interest of the exchange in the method by which companies account for stock dividends arises out of its consistent policy of attempting to obtain a clear disclosure of relevant facts.

Senate Shelves Vare Vote for Tariff Bill

Election Contest Must Wait Till Regular Session Opens

(Associated Press.)

Deferment of the Vare case until the regular December session so that tariff can hold right of way in the special session was voted yesterday by the Senate.

The motion of Senator Watson, the Republican leader, to postpone until December 3 a decision whether William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, should be granted a Senate seat prevailed by a vote of 41 to 34. Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, had sought immediate consideration of his resolution to deny Vare the seat because of "fraud and excessive expenditures" in his 1926 primary campaign.

The vote was not regarded as a test of strength on Vare's right to the Senate seat, which has been withheld from him for three years pending a decision by the Senate. Republican leaders urged the postponement until December solely on the ground that consideration of the Vare case would interfere with action on the tariff bill at the special session. When it is taken up, the Norris resolution will be kept before the Senate until voted upon.

Five Democrats voted with 36 Republicans for postponement of the resolution, while 9 Republicans and

Tip Leads to Arrest of Two Men; Offer of Bribe Is Alleged.

LOST NECKLACE FOUND

New York, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Grover Whalen's new secret service squad—policemen who mingle in the underworld disguised as ordinary citizens to pick up information about crimes and criminals—scored its first major triumph today when police recovered $200,000 worth of jewelry as a result of a tip from a member of the squad.

The jewelry, mostly in unset diamonds, was found in a private safe at No. 76, the Bowery, in the heart of the jewelry dealers' district. Two men, owners of the safe, were arrested on a charge of receiving stolen goods by four detectives of the safe and loft squad, who made the raid.

They gave their names as Lewis Steinberg, 46, and Dave Saffer, 42. According to detectives, the two jewelers offered them a bribe of $15,000 if they would allow them to keep a $40,000 diamond and emerald bracelet. The men were immediately taken to police headquarters and subjected to a severe grilling in the hope of learning the names of the persons from whom they had received the stolen jewels.

The bracelet which the prisoners were so anxious to salvage out of the raid was later identified as belonging to Mrs. Richard P. Webber, of Malba, Long Island. It is an elaborate ornament, containing several valuable emeralds and clusters of diamonds. A wrist watch and several other pieces of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Webber were also recovered, bringing the total up to $40,000.

Identification was made by a jeweler who had done some repair work on the bracelet. Discovery of the ownership of the balance of the recovered loot will be made more difficult due to the fact that in most cases the stones had been knocked out of their settings preparatory to

ALLEGED NUMBERS MASTER MIND HELD

George Gray Arrested When He Goes to See Trials in Gaming Crusade.

HUGE PROFITS CHARGED

Curiosity yesterday morning led to the downfall of George Gray, alleged member of the master mind quartet controlling most of the so-called numbers operations in this city.

Gray, a much sought individual, had eluded the grasp of Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman for some days, but yesterday he walked almost into his arms. The result was that Policeman George C. McCarron, member of the Letterman squad, apprehended a second member of the controlling board and placed him in a cell at the Sixth Precinct.

Police Court trial of several men and women arrested in the crusade against the numbers gambling led to Gray's arrest. He went to court to see what was going on. McCarron spotted him after the trials on the courthouse steps and quietly placed him under arrest.

Gray was charged with violating section 865 of the District Code, and his arrest marks the second of the so-called czars of the scheme to fall into police hands.

Two other members are being sought. Police claim they know the identity of these men and their arrest is expected shortly.

Gray gave his address as 5100 Seventh street northwest, and his occupation as a merchant.

Sergt. Letterman and his squad early yesterday morning raided three alleged gambling places where it is alleged the numbers game was being played. Four persons, all colored, were arrested and charged with setting up a gaming table.

Ernest Whissenant, 34 years old, and James Lewis, 42 years old, were taken at 711 T street northwest. Five others in the place were not arrested.

Dora Briscoe, 32 years old, was apprehended at 630 T street northwest, and Samuel H. Brown, 49 years old, was found at 1108 U street northwest.

Banker Bares Big Swindle To Protect His Depositors

Obtained $500,000 in Drafts by Fraud, Says Waggoner, Because He Preferred to See New Yorkers Lose Rather Than Colorado Townsmen.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Denver Post published a copyrighted statement today from C. D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, dictated over the telephone from the jail in New Castle, Wyo., in which he explained details of his disposition of the $500,000 certified drafts, which he obtained from banks in New York on the strength of spurious telegrams sent from Denver. He said he would rather see the New York banks lose than depositors of his bank at Telluride, Colo.

"I have no particular affection for New Yorkers," he said. "I am glad the hunt for me is over, and I feel that possibly some explanation is expected of me by the public," the statement began. "I am glad to tell all I know about this half million dollar transaction."

He reiterated that he was solely responsible, that he went into the deal with his "eyes open," and that he sought merely to protect the depositors of the Bank of Telluride.

Going into details of how he disposed of the $495,000 certified checks from the Chase National Bank, in New York, he said:

"I drew one check for $270,000. The Chase National certified it. I took that check to the Central Hanover Bank and paid off four notes. One of them was a $100,000 obligation of the Bank of Telluride. Two notes of $50,000 each were obligations of the Norwood Cattle Loan Co. There was a $15,000 note of my own.

"All of these were paid, and I directed the Central Hanover Bank to send the collateral which had secured loans to the Bank of Telluride. I am told that was done and I feel certain that the Bank of Telluride has been relieved of obligations totaling $200,000.

"Anyway, after I had paid off the $100,000 of the Bank of Telluride and

HARLAND URGES NEEDED TRAFFIC CODE REVISIONS

Auto Title Law Is Sought to Combat Theft Rings Here.

ALL-NIGHT PARKING STUDY PROPOSED

Left Turns Are Opposed in Official's Report to Committee.

$5,000 FOR YEARLY SURVEY REQUESTED

Banishment of Drivers Who Are Suspended Here Is Advised.

Prefaced by an urgent plea for an appropriation of at least $5,000 a year for the purpose of making an annual traffic survey, the annual report of William H. Harland, traffic director, submitted to the District Commissioners yesterday, stressed four outstanding features of the National traffic code as being immediately necessary in Washington.

First of these recommendations calls for a certificate of title law. Pointing out that there appears to be no opposition to such a law and many reasons why such legislation should be adopted without further delay, Harland says in part:

"The draft of a certificate of title law based upon the best principles previously adopted in over half the States has been prepared. It was stated that this principle should be adopted in the District at the earliest possible date in order that the District may not be used, as at present, as a dumping ground for stolen automobiles from various cities and States, and in order that we may have a better record of cars owned by residents of the District."

Increase in Traffic.

Citing the continuous increase in traffic, Harland predicts that "it will be necessary in the very near future to take steps toward the abolition of all-night parking in some sections of the District," although he adds that the matter must receive very careful attention before anything is done as there are not sufficient garages at this time to care for the number of cars parked.

"Careful consideration is also being given," he continues, "to parking conditions within the so-called congested area, with a view toward prohibiting parking during the morning and evening rush periods and to the abolition of angle parking on certain streets where traffic congestion occurs."

Referring to The Post's recent poll, which indicated that public opinion in the District is opposed to making any change in the method of making left turns at this time, Harland says:

"It is also felt that it would not be in the interest of safety to make a left turn on a green 'go' signal against a red 'stop' signal and against oncoming traffic. It would have the effect of slowing down and endangering through traffic and jeopardizing pedestrians crossing the street on the proper signal. Further study of our local traffic condition with respect to this turn will have to be made before any recommendation can be made in this connection."

In urging an annual appropriation of $5,000 for a traffic survey, Harland pointed out that the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as well as his own office and other branches of the District and Government services, would benefit from such a survey if made each year and kept up to date, and stressed the fact that the traffic departments of all cities which are handling traffic matters in a scientific manner are provided with funds with which to prepare flow maps and other traffic data which enable the authorities to determine with some degree of certainty where and when traffic changes should be made and traffic lights and other devices installed.

Change in Penalties.

Referring to amendments proposed to the present traffic act, eliminating compulsory jail sentence for third offense speeders, second offense reckless drivers and for driving while intoxicated, Harland declared that it is believed that the ends of justice would be served if heavy fines were imposed for these offenses and that permits be canceled as now provided, and that the present maximum penalties should apply only to repeaters.

"In administering the present feature of this act," he points out, "this office takes the position that to be convicted for speeding three times within a year is much more serious than to be convicted three times in three years."

To combat a situation in which motorists whose driver's permits have

LEADERS HOLD SECRET TALKS ON NAVY PLANS

President Is Closeted in Long Sessions With Group of Aids.

ARMS CUT PROJECT AT DELICATE STAGE

Counter-Suggestions to MacDonald's Ideas Are Expected.

British Offer Leaves U. S. With Lower Tonnage, Is Experts' View.

In an atmosphere of complete official secrecy, President Hoover held a third prolonged session yesterday with State and Navy Department officials, preparing a reply which is expected to contain countersuggestions to Premier MacDonald's disarmament proposals.

Secretary of State Stimson, Undersecretary Cotton, Secretary of the Navy Adams, Admiral Jones and other members of the general board of the Navy were closeted with the President for several hours yesterday morning. Stimson, Adams and Cotton returned to the White House for another long session in the afternoon, while the general board met at the Navy Department, and Stimson was back at the White House last evening for further consultation. Later Stimson went to the Navy Department to consult with Secretary Adams.

Agreed upon postponement of battleship replacements, upon a tonnage limitation for destroyers and submarines, and having arrived at a British cruiser tonnage total, which is a tremendous comedown over past British demands, the negotiations are nevertheless in an extremely delicate stage because of the long-standing controversy over the relative value of big and little cruisers.

Only Stumbling Block.

This dispute wrecked the Geneva conference of 1927. It is the one remaining bone of contention now. MacDonald's offer is unsatisfactory to the Navy and to the President because, as the Navy experts figure it, it still leaves the British with a marked superiority not only in the number of big cruisers but in total tonnage. In substance MacDonald has proposed that Great Britain be limited to approximately 340,000 tons of cruisers, fifteen of which would be of the large or 10,000-ton type.

The United States would be limited to about 305,000 tons of cruisers, 18 of which would be of the 10,000-ton type.

As the Navy views it, this boils down to having Great Britain retain not only her thirteen big cruisers now on the seas or virtually completed, but also the two new ships, the Surrey and Northumberland, which MacDonald temporarily held up simultaneously with the President's order delaying three American cruisers that were due to be laid down this fall. In addition, as the experts figure it, the British have four 9,750-ton ships of the Hawkins class, with big guns, and the York and Exeter, of 8,300 tons each and 8-inch guns. This would represent, in heavy-gun large cruisers, a total of 21 ships. In addition, there would be 29 smaller ones, averaging about 4,500 tons each. The total tonnage of all would be approximately 339,600.

Total U. S. Tonnage, 255,000.

The United States now has built or building eight 10,000-tonners. Adding the ten to be built after lopping off a third of the fifteen-cruiser program, this country would have eighteen of the big cruisers. In addition the Navy has ten 6-inch-gun cruisers of 7,500 tons each. The total of all American cruisers, under this plan, would be 255,000 tons, the figure advanced by the American delegation at the Geneva conference of 1927. The disparity that would still remain in actual tonnage totals between the British and American cruiser fleets would be explained by the yardstick, which has been shelved for the past few weeks while the negotiations concentraeted on tonnage and the relative quotas of big and little cruisers.

Though the White House and State and Navy Departments maintained an unbroken silence, there is reason to think that yesterday's sessions were given over to an effort to work out a different apportionment of pattern. It is evident from the MacDonald offer that it does not mean reduction in the sense of scrapping, which was the President's original objective.

Yardstick Is Failure.

It is, incidentally, evident that the much heralded yardstick has failed as a means of reconciliation, and that the negotiations are back where they were at Geneva in 1927. The one vast gain that has been made is found in

B. R. BUCK, STOCK FIRM HEAD, IS ARRESTED ON $10,000 FRAUD CHARGE

COMPLAINT SWORN OUT BY Z. A. GILL

Misuse of Funds Due In Dealings Charged by Client.

FEDERAL HEARING SET FOR SEPT. 23

Embezzlement Is Denied by Accused Man After His Seizure.

Charges of embezzlement against B. R. Buck, head of the well-known Washington firm of Buck & Co., arising from an alleged fraudulent stock transaction, led to his arrest late yesterday afternoon and immediate posting of $10,000 bond with U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for his appearance at a preliminary hearing set for 10 a. m., September 23.

The warrant was sworn out by Z. Asbury Gill, 60 years old, of Warsaw, Va., who, after a discussion of the case with the United States District Attorney's offices, made a similar explanation to Commissioner Turnage at his offices in the Federal Building.

Buck Found at Home.

Deputy Marshals John J. Clarkson and Harry Parker hastened to the palatial offices of Buck & Co. on the second floor of the Evans Building, 1420 New York avenue northwest, where they were unable to locate Buck. Proceeding to his home at 730 Princeton street, they placed him under arrest and gave him permission to obtain his attorney, Harry Barger, and Milton S. Kronheim, professional bondsman, before driving to the commissioner's home at 1222 Decatur street northwest at 6:45 o'clock last night.

The commissioner then read over the warrant, which declared that Gill charged Buck "did unlawfully, being the agent of one Z. Asbury Gill, wrongfully convert to his own use and fraudulently take, make away with and secrete with intent to convert to his own use, money of the United States of America of the value of ten thousand dollars ($10,000), said money being then and there the property of the said Z. Asbury Gill, which said money came into the possession of the said B. R. Buck by virtue of his employment as a stock broker."

$10,000 Bail Asked.

Commissioner Turnage then asked $10,000 bond in explaining that he had been asked by U. S. District Attorney Leo Rover to seek this amount. Barger, as attorney for Buck, after receiving permission to argue for a reduction of this amount, declared that Buck & Co. had been operating here since about the fall of 1915 and that he had acted as counsel for Buck since about 1916. He stated that during this entire time he had never known of any misdeed on the part of the company and added that Buck stood well at his bank.

Barger explained that he had talked during the morning with Gill in his own offices and that he had believed he had satisfied the man temporarily in his claims. He said that Gill then went to the Better Business Bureau of Washington and that upon the attempt of a representative of that organization to talk with him he refused, adding that he would have no dealings of any kind whatsoever with the bureau.

Bond Reduction Refused.

The commissioner reiterated that the $10,000 bond sum had been ordered by the district attorney and that he desired that amount. He added, however, that "whatever might come out at the preliminary hearing

SENATE LAUNCHES SHIP FIRM INQUIRY

Activity of Corporation at Geneva Parley to Be Investigated.

SHEARER TO BE CALLED

(Associated Press.)

Investigation of activities of American shipbuilding corporations at the unsuccessful Geneva naval limitations conference of 1927 was ordered yesterday by the Senate and will be started today by its naval committee.

An executive session will be held this morning to determine the witnesess to be called and the procedure to be followed. Open hearings are expected and William B. Shearer, who has sued three shipbuilding corporations for money alleged to be due him for his services in their behalf at Geneva, is slated to be the first witness.

No voice was raised against the investigation in the Senate yesterday as the resolution of Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, was adopted without even a roll call. Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, asked if the resolution were broad enough to permit investigation of American naval officers who have been reported to have been in touch with Shearer. Senator Borah said he believed the resolution was broad enough to permit that.

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, expresesd hope that later an inquiry would be made into all manner of naval propaganda, including that issued by "the other side." Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, insisted, however, that this particular inquiry be limited to this specific case, which he contended

MANCHURIA BORDER TOWN DESTROYED

Shanghai, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Prograhitchnaya has been reduced to ashes, according to reports reaching here from Manchuria. Tungnimgshein is also reported to be in flames.

The Chinese are concentrating troops at Mohlin, about 35 miles west, where it is believed about 50,000 Chinese soldiers are prepared to prevent a rout.

On the Manchuli-Dalianor sector fighting is also serious and Gen. Liang-Chung Chi, commander there, reports he is able to last out a Soviet attack.

Marshal Chang-Hsue Hliang, commanding all Manchurian forces, telegraphed the Nanking government giving details of renewed Soviet attacks.

He stated: "Our understanding is that negotiations with the Soviets were proceeding successfully, although we have not recently been informed by the state council regarding the developments. We are unable to determine whether this renewed attack means serious warfare or merely terrorizing tactics to support Soviet diplomacy. We request the state council to inform us regarding the progress of the negotiations now being conducted in Germany and we suggest that the state council instruct our minister in Berlin to ask Russia for an explanation of its actions."

This telegram is understood to mean that the Manchurian authorities are wholly uninformed of the recent exchange of notes in Berlin be-

Col. Mann to Be Recalled As Southern G. O. P. Leader

Reconciliation With Huston and Return to Political Scene Is First Important Outgrowth of Tennessee-an's Selection as Party's National Chairman.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Col. Horace A. Mann, Southern Republican manager in the November campaign, is to be recalled to duty and, unless present plans go amiss, will be installed, with his former title, in the Barr Building headquarters here.

His reconciliation with Claudius H. Huston and his return to the political picture is the first important outgrowth of Huston's selection as national chairman, "the first Southerner" ever given the place. He will, in a way, displace the committee, or triumvirate, composed of Postmaster General Walter Brown, Secretary Walter Newton and James Frances Burke, that has heretofore had charge of the situation.

He will not, however, set out to undo the work that they have done, that is, tear down their organizations and set up those of his own, but it is to be instead, as the harmony chorus puts it, a case of his taking over the situation as they have made it, adding to it and continuing to build.

To the extent that he does "carry on" instead of reorganize, or to the extent that he blends his plans with those of the triumvirate, probably depends the success of this second great Republican effort to hold the South. Inasmuch as there was a conflict before there may easily be another one, and the whole thing end in a squabble such as followed the ousting of Mann after President Hoover had come into office.

All parties concerned are starting off in harmony. The statement that he will displace the triumvirate, in fact, may be a little too harsh.

The point is that some one has realized that Col. Mann is badly needed in the Republican's Southern effort and that it is to be turned will be taken into consideration if there should be sufficient action to hold Buck." Barger complied with the request, and Kronheim signed the bond for the temporary release.

The legal action centers around the $10,000 claim of Gill that after stock dealings with Buck & Co. from his own home in Virginia he had demanded August 16 that the firm sell his entire amount of securities. He contended that he had sent numerous letters to the company and also had been in long distance conversation on several occasions with the firm, but that he had failed to get any action.

$5,000 Is Promised.

Gill declared that Buck & Co. finally promised to send him $5,000 of his total amount. He claims $7,000 as an original investment and $3,000 as profits. He charged that after receiving no action he came here yesterday and demanded to see Buck, but failed. He said that he followed the company's suggestion to see Barger, but that he received no satisfaction.

Gill said later in the day he met C. V. Werne, of Richmond, Va., representing the Virginia Better Trade Association, and that in subsequent talks with him and with representatives of the Washington Better Business Bureau he swore out the warrant.

Buck & Co. is widely known. It does a large business in stocks, bonds, grain and cotton. The firm occupies a pretentious suite with a stock quotation board, a private leased wire and a news ticker.

All-Metal Dirigible Off to Lakehurst

New Rigid Craft to Arrive Over Naval Base at 9 A. M. Today.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The ZMC-2, first all-metal dirigible, took off at 9:58 o'clock tonight from Grosse Isle Airport for Lakehurst, N. J.

The dirigible will fly directly across Lake Erie to Cleveland, then east to Sharon, Pa., and through the Delaware Water Gap to Phillipsburg, N. J. From Phillipsburg it will go direct to Lakehurst, arriving about 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Capt. William E. Kepner is piloting the craft and is accompanied by Sergt. Joseph Bishop, copilot, and Lieut. H. J. Dugan, naval observer.

U. S. Woman Robbed Of $50,000 in Jewels

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Mrs. Richard H. Grant, wife of the vice president of the General Motors Corporation, said today on her return from Europe that an 18-karat diamond ring and diamond and emerald bracelet valued together at more than $50,000 had disappeared from her hotel room while she was at the Lido, Italy. The theft occurred several weeks ago, she said, but nothing had been learned of the stolen jewels when she sailed for home.

The Grants make their home on a 3000-acre farm outside of Dayton, Ohio, but spend much of their time in New York and Detroit.

Travemuende, Germany, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—All thirteen passengers and crew of the Rohrbach superhydroplane Romar escaped with their lives today, when the great craft, after a trial flight during which one of its motors missed fire, submerged in a forced landing.

The Romar rests in 60 feet of water. Salvage vessels rushed to the spot, but have not yet raised the hydroplane.

Pilot Killed in Crash In View of Thousands

Columbus, Nebr., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Frank Cropsey, 35 years old, piloting a plane in the first annual Nebraska air tour, was killed today. He crashed from a height of 1,000 feet a half mile from the airport here.

The fall was in full view of several thousand people assembled to greet the 30 planes making a good-will tour of the State.

SENATE MAKES WAY FOR TARIFF DEBATE

FARMER VIEW IS STATED

(Associated Press.)

The clouds that hung over senatorial progress with the tariff bill were swept away yesterday by postponement until December of action on the Vare seat controversy.

The latter issue, injected at the outset of consideration of the tariff, had threatened to delay the bill. Its postponement, on motion of Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, cleared the way for a fresh start on the only remaining legislative subject proposed by President Hoover for the special session.

Except for agreement on proposals to consider first the administrative provisions of the Republican revision measure and to dispense with the initial reading to speed up debate, little attention was given to the tariff by the Senate during the day.

Simmons Plans Attack.

This motion to make the initial order of business the sections embracing the controversial flexible Tariff Commission and proposed new valuation clauses was made by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, who plans to launch the opposition program today with delivery of a long-prepared speech.

Anxious to speed the tariff, Chairman Smoot of the finance committee proposed to dispense with the first reading, and this was agreed to. Thus the amendments proposed to the administrative provisions of the House bill by the finance committee majority will be opened to consideration at the start, but general debate is expected to delay votes on any amendments for some time.

On top of the week-end request by farm organizations for revision upward of many of the proposed increased agricultural duties came a statement yesterday from Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, saying the pending bill failed to give agriculture equal protection with industry.

Farmer View Presented.

Forwarded to all members of the Senate, the statement said the weighted average ad valorem rate on farm products would be increased from 28.34 per cent in the present law to 32.60 per cent in the finance committee bill, or an increase of 4.26 points, while the same average rate on industrial products would be raised from 36.18 per cent to 43.83 per cent, an increase of 5.65 points. "The weighted average rate in the Senate bill on industrial products," the statement added, "is 11.23 points higher than the rate on agricultural products, while in the act of 1922 (present law) this difference is 9.84 points—an increase of the spread between industrial and agricultural protection in the bill over the act of 1.39 points."

If the bill is not so amended as to provide for the higher duties requested by the farm organizations, Gray said, it would be difficult to believe that the American farmer "will be happy with the outcome of his effort to get adequate protection on his products."

Democrats' View Given.

In a statement issued by the Democratic national committee, Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, said yesterday, "It was with no intention of harassing any industrial enterprise that the Democrats supported the Simmons resolution, under which the income tax returns of concerns affected by the tariff are made available for inspection by the (finance) committee upon request."

The intention and purpose of the resolution, he said, was to present a picture of the industries of the country whose products have been given increased duties under the House and finance committee bills.

"We believe that this picture will not justify the increases in duties contained in the Senate bill," he added.

SENATE POSTPONES VOTE ON VARE SEAT

25 Democrats opposed delay of the Vare case.

Three hours of sharp debate preceded the vote on the Watson motion, the Republicans charging that Senator Norris' move to bring up the Vare case now was actually a filibuster against the tariff bill.

The Nebraskan retorted by proposing to vote on his resolution to deny Vare a seat at once. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who is leading those favoring Vare's seating, objected.

Norris Flays Vare.

"The charge of a filibuster," shouted Senator Norris, "is a smoke screen put up by those who would delay the Vare case in order to help Vare. The Vare issue presents a real demand for purification of politics and for upholding the respect of this body. The objections for an immediate vote show very well where the delay is coming from."

Senator Reed contended the Senate should have before it the report of its elections committee on the two-year inquiry into the contest brought by William B. Wilson, Vare's Democratic opponent in the 1926 election, before acting on the report of the special committee which investigated Vare's three-cornered Republican senatorial primary campaign.

Chairman Waterman, of the elections subcommittee which made this investigation, said it would be ready to report upon the arrival here of the other members of that committee.

Quick Action Promised.

Senator Shortridge (Republican), California, the chairman of the elections committee, promised to call his committee together as soon as the subcommittee reported.

The Senate will have before it in December both contests against Vare, that of his primary campaign, in which his ticket was reported to have spent $785,000, and that of his election, in which his Democratic opponent charged fraud.

Roosevelt Nomination Is Confirmed by Senate

(Associated Press.)

The nomination of Theodore Roosevelt to be governor of Porto Rico was confirmed yesterday by the Senate.

Other nominations confirmed by the Senate included those of John W. Garrett, of Maryland, to be Ambassador to Italy; Garritt John Diekema, of Michigan, to be Minister to the Netherlands, and George T. Summerlin, of Louisiana, now Minister to Honduras, to be Minister to Venezuela.

JUDGE OPENS QUIZ IN MOB VIOLENCE

North Carolina Jurist Makes Speedy Start to Sift Several Attacks.

TWO MEN SAW FLOGGING

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Open investigation into the activities of a mob which on Monday night cut a swath of violence through Gaston and Mecklenburg Counties got under way today with unexpected suddenness.

Thomas J. Shaw, veteran North Carolina jurist, presiding over the Superior Courts of Mecklenburg and Gaston Counties during the current six months, took hold of the situation in lieu of a grand jury, which could not be summoned for three weeks. He directed Solicitor John G. Carpenter of the local district to summon all available witnesses, examine them in open court and endeavor in every way possible to find out who was in the mob.

The judge will sit as magistrate, setting aside civil cases now being tried in court here in order to conduct the inquiry.

Governor Urges Diligence.

Solicitor Carpenter had been ordered by Gov. G. Max Gardner to spare no efforts to investigate the kidnaping and flogging of Ben Wells, British subject, organizer for the National Textile Workers Union, and the kidnaping of C. M. Lell and C. D. Saylor, as well as raids on union and Communist headquarters in Gastonia, Bessemer City and Charlotte.

Judge Shaw put a sheriff at the disposal of the solicitor and subpenaes were issued for Wells, Lell and Saylor, two Charlotte policemen, S. J. Hartis and W. J. Allen, who saw the mob when it reached Charlotte; Mrs. Helen Lodge, Gastonia boarding house operator; Perry Lodge, Gastonia; Mrs. J. Franks, Gastonia, and a man named Frye and R. B. McDonald, of Concord.

Saw Man Being Flogged.

Frye and McDonald are the men who happened upon the party of men flogging Wells near Concord, causing them to flee.

Saylor and Lell could not be found and the subpenaes on the Concord and Gastonia witnesses were in process of being served this afternoon.

While steps looking toward an investigation proceeded with unexpected speed, Wells and his companions were recovering at a local hotel from their experiences. It was expected that they would be in court tomorrow for questioning.

KVALE LOSES LIFE AS COTTAGE BURNS

Minnesota Representative Is Trapper in Fire While Sleeping.

EXPLOSION IS BLAMED

Battle Lake, Minn., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Trapped by fire while he slept in his summer cottage near here, O. J. Kvale, Farmer-Labor representative from Minnesota, was burned to death last night when the home was destroyed.

Explosion of a stove, the kind known as an air-tight heater, or a gasoline lamp was blamed for the fire, which apparently broke out about midnight. The cottage was destroyed without other residents of the vicinity having been aware of the tragedy.

Only a smoldering ruin marked the site of the cottage when the fire was discovered today. So badly charred was the representative's body that identification was in doubt for a time.

The theory that an exploding stove started the fire was advanced by Dr. I. T. Kvale, of Willmar, son of the representative, while Coroner Vigen believed a gasoline lamp may have blown up. Neither theory could be substantiated.

Dr. Kvale declared his father probably was in a deep sleep when the fire started and had little or no chance to escape from the burning building. Mr. Kvale, his son said, had suffered from insomnia since the death of Mrs. Kvale, three years ago, and frequently was forced to take a sleeping potion. He believes his father resorted to this means of obtaining sleep last night and that the fire broke out after he had retired.

Only Farmer-Laborite in House.

Mr. Kvale, who was 60 years old, was the only Farmer-Laborite in the House. He succeeded Andrew J. Volstead as representative from the Seventh Minnesota District, defeating the famous prohibition advocate in 1922, with the Farmer-Labor and Democratic indorsement.

Retirement of Mr. Volstead, however, gave little satisfaction to wets who had sought his defeat, for Mr. Kvale maintained he was drier than his predecessor. In fact he had beaten Volstead for the Republican nomination two years previous to his election, maintaining in that campaign that Volstead was not dry enough. His victory was disallowed in court proceedings, however, because of alleged violation of the corrupt practices act. The court held he had circulated a statement that Representative Volstead was an atheist.

Mr. Kvale was an ordained Lutheran minister and was in charge of a pastorate at Benson, Minn., his home town, when he was elected to Congress. He resigned his pastorate in 1923, but remained a member of the board of education of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America.

One Farmer-Laborite Left.

The death of Representative Kvale, of Minnesota, left but one seat in Congress—that of Senator Shipstead, also a Farmer-Laborite of Minnesota—which is not filled by a Republican or Democrat.

The three seats held by Farmer-Labor and Socialist members in the House in the last Congress dwindled to one after the last election when Representative Carss, another Farmer-Laborite of Minnesota, and Berger, Socialist, Wisconsin, failed to return to the Seventy-first Congress.

As is customary, a delegation of representatives will be appointed to attend the funeral of their dead colleague. Its members probably will be announced today.

Kvale seldom missed a session of the House. He sat sometimes on the Democratic side and sometimes in the Republican section, and always within the shadow of the speaker's rostrum, to pay careful attention to the proceedings.

Forest Patrol Plane Crash Fatal to Two

Lac Du Bonnet, Man., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Flying Officer G. A. Lemoine, and Mike Novrot, fire fighter, were killed in the wreck of a forest patrol plane here last night. Alex Malyk, third occupant of the plane, was slightly injured.

The party was returning from a bush fire uplake when the plane crashed, presumably when a landing was being attempted. Lemoine came to the staff of the Royal Canadian Air Force from Quebec, and the two other occupants of the plane lived at Brightstone.

Knocked Down by Auto, Woman Asks $20,000

Mary E. Young, of 1626 Newton street northwest, filed suit in District Supreme Court yesterday against Edith C. Salisbury, of 3001 Porter street northwest, seeking to recover $20,000 for alleged personal injuries.

The woman told the court that on April 18 the automobile of the defendant was parked at the curb on Park road northwest near Seventeenth street. She alleges that as she stepped from the curb the automobile without warning backed into her, knocking her down. She states that she suffered severe injuries of a permanent nature. Attorney Stanley D. Willis represents the plaintiff.

Chemistry and Aviation Can End War, Says Garvan

American Chemical Society President Predicts Threat of Scientific Discovery Will Retard Strife Among Nations; Pledges Hoover Millions.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—War has been made impossible by chemistry and airplanes, Francis P. Garvan, of New York, told the American Chemical Society tonight in a written communication.

As president of the Chemical Foundation he formally offered President Hoover the use of millions of dollars to investigate the "vast possibilities of chemistry as an agent of peace."

Ill in New York, he sent his communication to be read at the presentation by the Chemical Society of the Priestly medal, the highest honor of chemistry, given him as America's most distinguished "lay chemist."

Chemists' Power Sketched.

Garvan also sketched the chemists' power to protect public health and Dr. Irving Langmuir, president of the American Chemical Society, announced a new research sponsored by the society to search for the cause and cure of cancer.

"Can the development of American chemistry do anything for the peace of the world?" said Garvan's communication. "I believe that modern chemistry plus modern aeronautics has made war impossible. I am notified that in case of a modern war between great powers it would be foolish and useless for a battleship or cruiser to leave its dock or an army to take the field.

"The common people of the world, as well as our wisest rulers, President Hoover and Prime Minister McDonald, realize the horror of war and its tremendous wastage of life and of the means of living. They are bending every effort to safeguard the peace of the world by treaties and by agreements.

Chemicals' Power Terrible.

Should not the terrible powers of chemisty, as we know them, and its war messengers, the aeroplane, strengthen their hands? Should not the dread possibilities of chemistry support the convictions of the common people that there shall be no war of the future, and rule out the politicians and the greedy who are aiming to defeat these high purposes?

"If the politicians would give to research in chemistry, in the other sciences and in medicine a fraction of the huge cost of navies and armies, the world would see discoveries of the greatest moment.

"The chemical foundation stands ready to bear all the expenses of any commission the President may care to appoint to inquire into the vast possibilities of chemistry as an agent of peace, outlawing war by its terrors, advancing health and prosperity by its humane discoveries."

New Time Idea.

An inkling of the things of which chemistry dreams for the future was given by Dr. Langmuir in his annual presidential address preceding the medal ceremony. With Einstein's theory and other purely mathematical concepts of the nature of time and space, he said, it is possible to conceive that in a distant future different forms of light than those now known may evolve. He asked whether it may be possible that eventually time itself will be different, its "arrow" pointing in other directions. The idea is of time that grows younger instead of older.

"Such speculations may seem fantastic," he said. "It is, I believe, of the most importance for the chemists and the physicists to evolve fundamentally sound conceptions of such things as time and entropy." ("Entropy" is one of the mathematical conceptions under which the idea of time turning backward is possible).

"It seems," Langmuir went on, "that there has never been a time when we can predict with such certainty rapid progress in fundamental chemistry."

Radio Dial Cited.

He gave numerous illustrations of once seemingly impossible mathematical theories that have turned into daily realities. One is the radio dial giving wave lengths of broadcasting stations. In 1860 the existence of these long waves, now marked on dials, was shown by Clerk Maxwell's mathematics. That was many years before Hertz discovered radio waves.

He mentioned another case made public only yesterday in the present convention, demonstrated by the young German, K. F. Bonhoeffer, that there are two kinds of hydrogen. This demonstration cracked for the first time in the world supposedly individable elements. That it could be done, Langmuir said, had been forecast for some time in pure mathematics.

"We have no guarantee whatever," he said, "that nature is so constructed that it can be adequately described in terms of mechanical or electrical models; it is much more probable that our most fundamental relationships can only be expressed mathematically."

CHARGE JUDGE DIED OF BEATING SIFTED

Jury Is Told to Investigate; Refusal to Pay Graft Given as Cause.

BODY MAY BE EXHUMED

New York, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—The grand jury was ordered today to investigate charges by Edward V. Broderick, an attorney, that Magistrate Andrew Macrery was beaten to to death for failure to pay $30,000 for reappointment to the bench. The charge was made Tuesday night in a speech by Broderick at a political meeting. He said he had received the information from Wallace T. Macreary, a brother of the magistrate.

District Attorney Banton ordered the investigation ten minutes after Andrew Keating, city appraiser and Tammany leader of the Thirteenth Assembly District, complained of the speech, in which he was named as cotenant of the office in the Chanin Building where the alleged assault on the magistrate took place. Herbert Bitterman, his business partner, was named as the other tenant.

The speech was made at the Patrick S. Dowd Association. Broderick, who heads a political faction opposed to Keating's group, said Wallace Macreary had told him he would ask for an investigation of his brother's death and would seek to have the body exhumed and an autopsy performed.

Macreary Makes Denial.

Wallace Macreary, a private detective, however, said "I have no intention of asking that the body of my brother be exhumed. I have never had any doubt that his death was the result of a heart attack."

Keating, accompanied by Bitterman and Henry C. Greenberg, an attorney, was awaiting Banton at the door of the Criminal Courts Building today. As soon as he saw the prosecutor Keating said:

"At a political meeting yesterday of the Patrick Dowd Association, I am informed that Edward V. Broderick made a public statement that Magistrate Macrery died because he had been given a beating in my office in the presence of Mr. Bitterman. I demand that each and every one of the charges be investigated and that Mr. Broderick be asked to tell the grand jury the source of his information.

"And finally I demand that if investigation of these charges prove untrue that action be taken against the man or men who made them."

Today Broderick, when questioned by newspaper men, reiterated his original speech and gave his version of how Wallace Macrery brought the charge to his attention.

Broderick Tells of Meeting.

"Wallace Macrery called Dowd and me to his office yesterday," Broderick explained, "and told us his brother had been beaten up in Keating's office while Keating and Bitterman were present."

Magistrate Macrery died in the office of Dr. Max Greenwald, at 38 West Fifty-eighth street, where he was taken by Bitterman. Dr. Greenwald said death was caused by heart disease, as his death certificate read.

"If he had received a beating," the physician added, "I undoubtedly would have spoken of it. I saw nothing in any way suspicious in his death."

Assistant District Attorney Pecora today also announced that he was advised by Chief Medical Examiner Norris, that in the opinion of the examiner's staff, death was from natural causes.

Mayor Walker had reappointed Macrery recently for another 10-year term.

Keating, when asked about the charges today, replied: "It is so ridiculous that to make a comment on it would be to dignify it."

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE question, debated considerably the past several weeks, as to whether a tariff bill will be passed would seem to be definitely settled in the affirmative by yesterday's vote to defer the Vare case.

When so many gentlemen are so anxious that the tariff not be delayed that they are willing to either switch their votes or absent themselves without arranging for pairs on the Vare case, it is fairly conclusive that the tariff has many friends after all. That they were actuated by any other motive is not suggested by the severest of critics.

There were seven senators who voted in December, 1927, to deny Vare his seat who yesterday voted to defer the final disposition of his case. They were Capper, Fletcher, Hawes, Jones, Pittman, Tydings and McNary. Five others, Blease, Cutting, Dale, Norbeck and Shipstead, were absent without arranging for pairs.

* * * *

NOW all of these, with the possible exception of Dale—he has not definitely made up his mind—are against Vare and will, it is believed, vote against him if the final disposition of his case ever does come up. But yesterday they voted or otherwise aided him, and their purpose was not to delay the tariff.

Their siding with Vare yesterday, so to speak, was of inestimable benefit to the Philadelphian, too. He is fighting for his political life in a local campaign that will be determined Tuesday. It is believed that he will win; that he will certainly do so now.

But for the Senate to have kicked him out on the eve of this test of strength would have caused havoc in the ranks of his workers. There is no doubt of that. Their morale would have dropped to a low ebb. The Senate's action means a lot to Bill Vare, whether it ever gives him his seat or not.

BUT it was not the switching of votes and absentee senators that alone attracted attention to yesterday's action. Assuming that it was all actuated by high motives, observers say that more skull-duggery attended the vote than has taken place in many a moon, and in the Senate, where a lot of skull-duggery takes place.

The outcome, to say the least, was a general surprise. It is quite probable that it was a surprise to Senator Norris himself. The fact that five senators were absent and unpaired on a matter so important is not a matter to be passed over lightly.

And, as if to cap the climax, Senators McMaster, of South Dakota, and King, of Utah, came running in after the vote was taken, the former insisting that the bell announcing that the vote was being taken had not rung in his office. Senator Watson, the majority leader, however, refused to let him vote. King, apparently caught the same way, said that it really made no difference in his case because he had a pair with Copeland, of New York. Now Copeland is against Vare. It would seem that something could have been done about that vote, so that King could have voted against deferring the case. But no one seemed concerned.

It developed later that the bell had not rung in any of the Senate Building offices. The current went off about that time, stopping not only the bells but the elevators as well. Perhaps it should come under the head of "Strange As It Seems."

It developed afterward, too, that Hiram Johnson had wired Senator McNary, saying "Pair me against Vare." McNary explained that he did not know what Johnson meant, so he did nothing. It was a right involved telegram, wasn't it?

BANKER ADMITS $500,000 THEFT; READY FOR PRISON

the $100,000 of the Norwool Cattle Loan Co., and my personal note of $15,000, there was $55,000 left from the $270,000 certified check. I left that on deposit in the Central Hanover to the credit of the Bank of Telluride. So far as I know it is still there.

"At the Chase National Bank I obtained another draft for $225,000. That made a total of $495,000 drawn, and there was left in the Chase National Bank a balance of $5,000 out of the half million.

Sent $225,000 to Pueblo, He Says.

"The $225,000 certified draft was sent to the First National Bank of Pueblo and I instructed the First National of Pueblo to send through a $30,000 credit to the Continental National of Salt Lake City. That was to pay a personal obligation.

"I am told the $30,000 went through as directed to the Continental of Salt Lake City. And I know, as I previously have indicated, that $50,000 was sent to the Bank of Telluride by the First National of Pueblo, also on my instructions. Consequently there is a credit in the First National of Pueblo for the Bank of Telluride of $145,000.

"My intention in the beginning was to have this money available for the Bank of Telluride. I made it available and I can not see any reason why the depositors of the Bank of Telluride should not be protected.

"It was my idea that the $225,000 would be ample to take care of everything after I had secured the release of the collateral from the Central Hanover.

"As I said before, I went into this thing knowing exactly what I was doing. I have no regrets, even though my apprehension may mean that I shall be compelled to forfeit my freedom.

Certified Without Hesitation.

"In New York on the Saturday I appeared there I had no difficulties. Bankers with whom I had done business recognized me and the checks which I presented at the Chase National were certified without hesitation. Immediately after they had been certified I concluded my business with the Central Hanover, and Saturday night I left New York and headed West. * * *

"There is a mistake that any Chicago bank was used in conveying the $225,000 draft to the First National Bank of Pueblo. I mailed that draft myself, later sending instructions as to how the money should be divided and making sure that the instructions were clear to send $50,000 in currency to the Bank of Telluride.

"I want to repeat that whatever I have done, I did for the depositors. I would rather see the New York banks lose than my people and friends at Telluride. I have no particular affection for New Yorkers, but I have a great deal for the people with whom I have worked and associated for years."

Ready to Face Charges, He Says.

Newcastle, Wyo., Sept. 11 (A.P.)—C. D. Waggoner, small-town banker, who jolted financial powers in New York with execution of his fraudulent scheme to get $500,000 to protect depositors of his tottering bank in Telluride, Colo., expressed confidence today that he had accomplished his purpose and announced he was ready to face criminal charges growing out of the transaction.

Held in jail here following his arrest last night, Waggoner freely admitted victimizing the New York banks.

The swindle he perpetrated, he declared, had placed at the disposal of the Bank of Telluride sufficient credit so that if the money were properly handled none of his depositors would lose any money in the crash of the institution.

The Bank of Telluride is in the hands of Colorado State Banking Commissioner, having been closed several days ago when Waggoner's manipulations came to light.

Has $400 in His Possession.

Waggoner had just $400 in his possession when he was arrested here.

He insisted that he alone was responsible for the deal by which he obtained $500,000 from six New York banks through forged telegrams sent from Denver and purporting to be from six different banks in that city.

The banker refused to reveal who actually filed the fake telegrams which he admitted having prepared in a code used by bankers. Detectives in Denver said that five or six persons were implicated in the delivery of the telegrams to Western Union offices in Denver for dispatch to New York.

Among them were said to be three women.

With Federal warrants from New York en route by air mail, Waggoner waited in the little jail here to begin a journey either to New York or Denver in custody of Federal authorities. He indicated that his removal to New York may be questioned on the ground that the offense with which he was charged might legally be determined to have been committed in Denver, whence the telegrams were sent August 30 directing transfer of $500,000 to credit of the Bank of Telluride in the Chase National Bank in New York.

Rested Well, He Says.

Waggoner said today he rested last night following his arrest better than he had for weeks. Prior to the transaction he worried because assets of the Telluride bank had decreased from $1,750,000 to less than $500,000. He said a crash was inevitable and that he took "the only possible method" to protect his depositors. He showed little sympathy for the New York banks he victimized.

The banker asserted that if the Government would give him ten months' time he would return to Telluride and clean his slate.

Waggoner was arrested at a tourist park here after he had registered under the name of H. M. Barnett, of Minturn, Colo.

Had Accomplices, Says Tuttle.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The grand jury investigation into the scheme used by Charles D. Waggoner in defrauding six New York banks out of $500,000, Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, announced today, will continue while Federal authorities attempt to bring Waggoner here from New Castle, Wyo., on a warrant sworn out by Federal inspectors.

The warrant has been forwarded to the United States attorney at Cheyenne, Wyo., who has been instructed to arrest Waggoner on the Federal charge at New Castle, where he is held by local police.

Despite Waggoner's statement that he carried out his manipulations alone, the grand jury is attempting to discover who aided him in the fraud, Tuttle said, as "there is no doubt that he had accomplices."

Several subpenas were issued by the district attorney's office today, some of them described as for persons who "either wittingly or unwittingly" aided Waggoner.

Child Badly Injured When Struck by Truck

Four-year-old James Clayton, of 1248 Twenty-second street northwest, was severely injured yesterday when he ran off the curbing at Twenty-second street and Ward place northwest and was knocked down by a motor truck operated by John F. Updike, of 1110 D street northeast.

The child was taken to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance, where X-ray photographs were taken to determine whether he suffered a fractured skull. The child was also treated for injuries to the forehead. According to police, the boy was playing on the sidewalk and ran into the street. Updike, witnesses told police, was unable to avoid striking the child.

Bridegroom Held On Perjury Charge

Charles D. Coleman Is Said to Have Misrepresented Age of His Bride.

Accused of perjury in connection with his recent marriage, Charles D. Coleman, 27 years old, candy store clerk was arrested yesterday at his apartment in 938 I street northwest by Detective Sergts. Curtis Trammell and James E. Kane.

Coleman was accompanied to police headquarters by his bride of three weeks, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson Coleman, formerly of Raleigh, N. C. At police headquarters the newlyweds were separated when a patrol wagon took Coleman to the First Precinct.

A warrant charging Coleman with perjury was sworn out by Mrs. Johnson's brother, Robert G. Johnson, of Raleigh, who alleged that Coleman falsified his sister's age in obtaining a marriage license. Johnson told police his sister was only 16 years old and that Coleman swore she was 19 in obtaining the license. The couple were married August 26, police said.

Man Denies Larceny Of Ring Worth $2,100

Clarence J. McGinnis pleaded not guilty in Police Court yesterday to a charge of larceny after trust, involving a $2,100 diamond ring, and was ordered held for action of the grand jury under $2,000 bond.

Mildred D. Murray, of 1420 Harvard street northwest, testified that she gave McGinnis the diamond ring to sell, and that all proceeds of the sale were to be turned over to her. She stated that so far she has not received the money nor has the ring been returned. Police testified that they traced the ring to New York and found that it had been pawned in that city for $400.

Circumstances of Court Warning Are Corrected

In The Post story yesterday dealing with Judge Ralph Given's warning to Attorney Michael J. Lane it was erroneously stated that the latter issued a heated invitation to Assistant United Sates Attorney James A. Kirkland to meet him outside. Lane is said to have made a remark which was construed by the court as of a theatening nature.

Lane also objected to the fact that The Post story stated his objections which led up to the remark were overruled. What should have been said was that one objection was overruled and one sustained.

LEADERS IN SECRET TALKS ON NAVY CUT

the fact that the British, who demanded 600,000 tons of cruisers at the Washington conference in 1921, and fully 450,000 tons at Geneva in 1927, have now, thanks to a Labor government, come down to around 340,000 tons.

It remains, however, to work out a pattern under these tonnages that will sufficiently satisfy the general board of the Navy and the big Navy dominated Senate, where a two-thirds vote must be had to make the hoped for treaty effective. That pattern will never satisfy the Navy as long as the United States is held down to an inferior number of big cruisers, or to a limit which gives the British nearly equal strength in the big cruisers while she retains a preponderant strength in small ones.

Senators Hale and Swanson, the chairman and ranking Democrat, respectively, of the Senate naval affairs committee, have both informed the President that it is useless to submit to the Senate any treaty which does not achieve genuinely substantial equality or parity with the British.

Scrapping Called Impossibility.

The Navy wants the MacDonald offer amended to allow completion of the fifteen-cruiser program. The only acceptable alternative is British scrapping of existing tonnage, and that is considered an impossibility for any ministry to put through. There is a probability that if MacDonald is willing to amend his offer so that the fifteen cruisers will be built, giving the United States a total tonnage of 305,000, the figure he proposes the administration will be satisfied, even though the hope of outright reduction has to be sacrificed.

The reply to be drafted may make this counter proposal. If it is acceptable, the preliminary accord, enabling the summoning of a five-power conference in London will have been reached, and MacDonald's visit to the United States will come off as scheduled. Although the British premier has made reservations on the Berengaria to arrive October 4, he will not sail, unless this accord has first been achieved. It remains in sight, but is now at the critical stage. A postponement of the sailing would be an admission of deadlock.

Administration officials exhibit signs of extreme tenseness, and a rumor went around last night, indicative of overwrought nerves, of a clash between Secretary Adams and Under-Secretary Cotton, wherein the Secretary of the Navy tartly told his State Department colleague something to the effect that the Navy is not going to be stampeded into any bargain.

FOUR ARE ARRESTED IN NUMBERS RAIDS

The four were alleged to have been workers for John W. Carter, colored, said to be the master mind of the numbers racket, who was arrested Tuesday and released on $10,000 bond.

Letterman, who is in charge of the drive on numbers operators, estimated yesterday that Carter's business netted $10,000 a day for himself and his two white business partners.

Wooden Leg Taken To Frustrate Escape

No chances were taken with James (Peg-Leg) Watkins, colored, 40 years old, of Hyattsville, when he was taken to the Hyattsville branch of the Prince Georges County Police Court yesterday, to face charges of maintaining a disorderly house and setting up and maintaining a gaming table. He was seated in the corner farthest from the exit and his wooden leg taken from him so he could not repeat his feat of several weeks ago, when he stumped his way from the court room unnoticed.

Twice Watkins has attempted to escape the law, the last time by trying suicide. When rearrested after quitting the court, he was incarcerated in the Bladensburg Jail. Saturday night he swallowed glass and then attempted to hang himself. He was cut down by another inmate and was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Watkins pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial. He was ordered remanded to the county jail at Upper Marlboro without bond to await trial by Judge J. Chew Sheriff.

MANN IS RECALLED TO POST BY G. O. P.

back over to him. He is the one that knows what to do with it. To put it bluntly, the triumvirate has proved that it did not. But it is not to be expected that the colonel, with the trouble he had just after March 4 as experience is to attempt to work against the triumvirate, or necessarily over it. He is to work happily with it. At least that is the present stackup.

Both Sides Gain Wisdom.

And, of course, just as Mann has gained experience from his encounter with the triumvirate, so has it gained in worldly knowledge from its encounter with him. They may both have very well profited by it and now strike off very well together.

Mann had the secret of Republican success in the South. The fact that it may not be taken so well in such doubtful States as Ohio, Indiana and Missouri, or in Massachusetts, does not deny this. But his plan was done over considerably by the triumvirate and it lost no time in getting down to the work of doing it over.

The main plan was adopted in principle by the administration and has been followed in principle by the triumvirate. That was the setting up of patronage committees composed of Republicans and Hoovercrats in such States as Florida, Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi to take the place of the old-time Republican bosses.

But with the principle the triumvirate stopped. It did not make up the committees of men Mann had in mind, the men whom Mann thought were entitled to the recognition because of work done in the campaign.

Leaders Not on Committees.

As a result, although the committees are made up of Hoovercrats and Republicans, they are not the leading Hoovercrats and Republicans of their respective States. In fact, in at least one notable instance, that of Georgia, the committee is just a window dressing for the old crowd.

Now it is not believed that with Mann's return to the picture, that he is to proceed to knock down all of these committees. The better way would be to simply augment them. Regardless of just how his work will be coordinated with that of Postmaster General Brown, who, of course, has all the postoffice patronage, Mann, it is understood, is to have the title of Southern manager, and it will be for him and Brown to agree on just what that term implies in postoffice patronage.

Huston and Mann have had several conferences the last few days. They had a lengthy one Tuesday. Some formal announcement concerning Mann may be expected by the time Huston disposes of his business connections and returns to take over the active chairmanship in the next few weeks.

Huston and Mann have been close for years. It was Huston, in fact, who produced Mann for his Southern work during the campaign. And, ordinarily, the announcement that Huston has been selected as national chairman would have meant similar big things for Mann.

Serious Split Occurred.

But there was a serious split between them just a few weeks before Mr. Hoover took office. It turned on the question of a Southern man being in the Cabinet.

Mann had counted upon there being a Southerner in the Cabinet. That there would be, in fact, was one of his assurances to the South during the campaign. When the Cabinet slate was announced and there was no Southerner on it, he was very disappointed. And when investigation disclosed that Huston had not so warmly supported him as Mann thought he should have, he saw red. Mann did not want the place for himself. He was seriously bent upon having some one from the South in the Cabinet.

Of course, if a Southerner had been appointed, then may be the national chairmanship would not have come to Huston, which may or may not explain his lack of enthusiasm for the idea. At any rate, everything has turned out all right between them now.

The fact that Mann is being recalled would seem to indicate that the President is really serious about holding his Southern gains. The bungling of the triumvirate had made this doubtful.

CHANGES IN TRAFFIC CODE ARE PROPOSED

been revoked in the District, merely take out permits in other States and continue thus to drive legally in the District. Harland urges a change in section 8, paragraph C, of the traffic act, to provide that:

Banned in District.

"Any operator of a motor vehicle whose driver's permit has been suspended or revoked in the District of Columbia, or whose right or privilege to operate a motor vehicle in the District of Columbia has been revoked or suspended, shall not operate a motor vehicle in the said District on the permit or registration certificate of any State, territory or foreign country until his permit or right to operate in the District of Columbia has been restored."

He declares that unless the act is so amended, the present act providing for cancellation and suspension of permits in the District is ineffective. In this connection, Harland also urges adoption of a "safety-responsibility" law providing, among other things, for the suspension of driving rights of all persons against whom a final judgment establishing the driver's negligence in any accident has been legally rendered and who has failed to meet the judgment, the suspension to remain in effect until the judgment has been satisfied and until a full guarantee of financial responsibility has been established.

Payments to be Forced.

"While this provision does not absolutely guarantee the payment of judgment," Harlnd points out, "the prospect of permanent expulsion from the road is so compelling that it will inevitably tend to secure payment of such judgments in most cases. The passage of this law would not materially change our present practice of cancelling and suspending permits, but it would have a tendency to weed out all bad drivers who are financially irresponsible and to force them to meet their just obligations."

The report showed further that during the fiscal year ended June 30, automobile registrations in the District increased 23,519, or 17 per cent over the previous year. There were 6,684 accidents reported during the year, as compared with 4,138 in 1928, 5,911 in 1927, 8,049 in 1926 and 9,378 in 1925. In the past year there were 3,243 accidents resulting in personal injuries, as compared with 2,386 during the previous year.

Reckless driving was the most frequent cause of accidents, followed in sequence by failure to give right of way, turning in the street, careless driving, skidding, driving under influence of liquor, lost control, backing, failing to give signal, defective equipment, with speed last on the list.

Pedestrians at Fault.

In accidents where pedestrians were presumably at fault, "jay walking," or crossing at points other than crosswalks, was the chief cause; children playing in the street accounted for the second largest accident toll.

Despite the increase in accidents, however, traffic fatalities decreased by one under the previous year, the total for the past year being 88, as compared with 89 in 1928. In this connection, the report included a table of automobile fatalities for eighteen cities having populations over 350,000 for periods of 52 weeks each, terminating in each month this year through July 13. This report showed that Washington has stood second lowest consistently each month, ranking next to Boston, with the exception of the year ending January 26, when Washington took the lead in safety and Boston ranked second.

During the year, 22,972 permits were issued, while 1,093 permits were revoked. The principal cause of revocation was driving under the influence of liquor, 369 losing their operators' permits for that offense. This was a marked decrease under the previous year, however, when 411 permits were revoked for driving while intoxicated.

Capital Traction Line Named in $15,000 Suit

Bell Lockey, of 1510 Sixth street northwest, filed suit in District Supreme Court yesterday against the Capital Traction Co., seeking to recover $15,000 damages for alleged personal injuries.

The woman asserts that July 7, while she was crossing New York avenue near Fifteenth street northwest, she was struck by a street car operated by the defendant. She asserts that the trolley car was being operated in a negligent manner and that she was permanently injured. She is represented by Attorneys John C. Foster and Philip Wagshal.

Barristers Club Diners Will Hear Richardson

Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson is scheduled to address the Barristers Club at a luncheon meeting this afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the Cosmos Club. The speaker is a former United States attorney for North Dakota and is expected to speak on the Constitution.

The meeting will be the first of the fall period, and is expected to be largely attended. The Barristers Club is composed of the younger members of the District of Columbia Bar.

SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY OF SHEARER, SHIPBUILDERS

"involves interference in what is essentially the foreign relations of the United States."

"No citizen and no corporation," asserted Senator Robinson, "has the right under the most liberal construction of the right of free speech to interfere for mercenary considerations with the efforts of the Chief Executive to arrange for treaties and agreements with other nations."

Senator Borah has suggested that the director of the shipbuilding corporations being sued by Shearer be called for examination and there is no doubt that this course will be pursued.

It seems likely that for the time being, at least, the Senate committee will work along on its own course, aside from the inquiry being conducted by the Department of Justice at the request of President Hoover.

Commenting on the letter made public Tuesday by E. G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, one of the companies sued by Shearer, in which he said the company had severed connections with Shearer after learning he was a "propagandist," Senator Borah said the statement was "an insult to the intelligence of the American people."

CURRENT EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

BACK-TO-DISTRICT GROUP HEARS GRANT

More Than 300 Persons Go to Mass Meeting in Arlington.

SCHOOL SCHEDULE MADE

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Speaking at the mass meeting held last night under the auspices of "The Back-to-the-District Association" in the auditorium of the Jefferson District Firemen's Hall, attended by more than 300 persons, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, declared that the question of whether Arlington County should become a part of the District of Columbia was entirely out of his jurisdiction and must be settled by the citizens of Arlington County and the State of Virginia.

Col. Grant stressed the point that what is most needed for the further development of Arlington County is close cooperation with the Federal Government.

"You have water in Arlington County today through the aid of the Federal Government and what is next needed is an adequate sewer system," said Col. Grant.

Continuing, Col. Grant declared that due to the inadequate approaches both in the District of Columbia and in Virginia the Key Bridge today is not carrying the traffic it should.

Discussing the question of city planning, Col. Grant pointed out that in 1901 a plan for the future development of the District of Columbia was laid out but never adopted, yet the views of those who made the study and laid the plan out have been largely carried out both in the street improvement and even to the location of the new Memorial Bridge.

"The District of Columbia has been fortunate in that it has followed a definite plan looking to the future which has saved much expense, while many cities today are spending large sums in overcoming the mistakes made before a modern city plan for development was considered.

"In this connection Arlington County, with its zoning commission, has started in the right direction," he said.

While Col. Grant made no reference to the question of Arlington County becoming a part of the District of Columbia, he said should it ever be there will still be an area beyond which will be within the metropolitan area.

Richard L. Eacho, chairman of the membership committee, reported that the association is growing by leaps and bounds and that the total membership now exceeds 250 persons.

Eacho, vice president of the association, declared the people of Arlington County had much to gain by becoming a part of the District of Columbia. His reasons were reduced automobile licenses, reduction in water, electric light and gas rates, and better fire and police protection.

The association adopted the constitution and by-laws as read by J. Cloyd Byars, chairman of the special committee on by-laws and constitution.

President Dr. Frank T. Stone presided and introduced the speakers.

With an enrollment at the Washington Lee High School, which will be in excess of 1,100 pupils, S. P. Vanderslice, principal, announced yesterday the following schedule for classes to meet the crowded conditions:

Pupils in the seventh and eighth grades junior high will attend classes between the hours of 9 and 3 o'clock with a lunch period from 12 to 1 o'clock. Pupils in the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades will attend classes from 8 to 4 o'clock. No pupil will be in school, however, more than six hours. There will be either four or five hours of class work with one and two hours of study period.

Vanderslice further stated that classes may be held from 8 to 1 o'clock, without lunch hour, or from 8 to 2 o'clock with lunch hour.

Morning classes will operate largely for cadets, junior and senior pupils, who are working during afternoons.

The 9 to 3 o'clock and 12 to 4 o'clock classes will be largely for pupils living in the vicinity of the school.

Registration will be conducted Monday at 9 a. m. for seventh and eighth grade pupils, Tuesday for pupils in the ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grades.

On registration days pupils will be assigned to rooms, schedules made, books issued and lockers assigned. Class work will start Wednesday morning.

It was further announced by Vanderslice that Mrs. W. H. Thomas, assistant principal at Washington Lee High School, has been granted one year's leave of absence owing to ill health.

Carter Diffey, who has been appointed physical director and coach of the 1929-1930 football team at Washington Lee High School, met last night with 40 candidates. First practice will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Maj. C. S. McNeill will be in charge of the cadet corps of the Arlington County High Schools again this year. He will be assisted by Sergt. Henry J. Patterson, from Fort Myer.

W. Thomas French was yesterday appointed county chairman of arrangements for Constitution Week, beginning Monday, September 16. The appointment was made by Col. Charles T. Jesse, president of the Arlington County Bar Association.

Chairman French announced last night that he will announce the program tomorrow, including speakers.

Members of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, with a group from the Arlington Rotary Club and Arlington County Monarch Club, will attend the Fairfax County Fair today, it being Chamber of Commerce Day. Delegations from Alexandria City, Loudoun and Prince William Counties will also attend.

Meeting last night at the home of Mrs. Kate Griffin, in Lyon Village, the ladies auxiliary to the Clarendon Fire Department completed its plans for the benefit card party to be given Saturday night in the Lyon Park Community House.

In an effort to obtain bus service along the Pershing drive into Glebewood, the Glebewood Citizens Association plans to meet with the Ashton Heights and Lyon Park Associations with the view of gaining their cooperation.

The committee from the Glebewood Citizens Association is composed of John Douglas, Herbert Martin and O. Robert Howell.

The association has for the past two years been anxious to have bus service and now that the Glebe road and Pershing drive both have been improved another effort will be made.

According to an announcement yesterday made by Mrs. Julian Simpson, president of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, the September meeting, announced to be held September 25, will be a luncheon meeting at the Ashton Heights Women's Clubhouse.

All candidates for State and local offices have been invited to address the meeting.

Unable to locate Bushrod Garrison, night watchman of the Virginia Auto Parts Co. on the Washington-Richmond highway, Arlington County, who claims to have been bound and tied by three men last Saturday night, the hearing of the three men, Nathan Armel, Winton Baker and Odie Pontheus, who are being held at the Arlington County Jail, has been continued by Judge Harry R. Thomas at the request of Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth.

Becoming suspicious, owing to the failure of Garrison to appear against the three men being held, Gloth said a warrant for the arrest of Garrison on a charge of grand larceny has been issued and is in the hands of the police.

The county board of supervisors will hold its semimonthly meeting Saturday morning at the courthouse at 10 o'clock. Chairman Edward Duncan will preside.

The Clarendon Fire Department announces that a committee will appear before the board and ask that definite action be taken as to what the county proposes to do toward the erection of the firehouse to house the Clarendon Fire Department.

A movement looking to the organization of first aid unit by the ladies' auxiliary to the Arlington Fire Department was started at its meeting held last night at the home of Mrs Julian E. Tapp.

The value of such an organization was explained by a representative from the American Red Cross national headquarters, and by Mrs. Meta Broaddus, chairman of the Arlington County Red Cross Chapter. Eleven members attending the meeting signified their intention of taking the first aid course and it is hoped that the number can be greatly increased before the class starts next month.

The auxiliary will hold its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Jacob F. Scheffel, 124 Jefferson street, the night of October 8.

Baptist Delegates Meet in Virginia

Five Hundred Persons at Twenty-third Annual Convention.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11.—The twenty-third annual convention of the Petersburg Baptist Association, which is composed of the Baptist Churches of Petersburg, Hopewell and a number of counties of southern Virginia, convened today in the Antioch Baptist Church, Sussex County, and was attended by about 500 persons, a large number of whom were from Petersburg. W. M. Rucker, of Petersburg, president of the association, presided.

The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. H. Binstead, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, in this city. Addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Boetwright, of Richmond, and the Rev. George T. Waite, of Richmond, secretary of the board of education and missions.

Reports were submitted and other business transacted. At tomorrow's session officers will be elected and the next meeting place chosen.

VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY OPENS DOORS TODAY

Record Enrollment Expected for Classes Which Begin Monday.

NEW DORMITORIES READY

Special to The Washington Post.

University, Va., Sept. 11.—A record enrollment is expected for the 106th session of the University of Virginia. Registration will begin tomorrow morning and will continue through Saturday. First classes are to be held Monday.

Increases are expected in all departments except in some of the professional schools where the number of students is restricted. These additions in numbers will come in spite of higher entrance requirements that have been imposed to keep the enrollment down.

Three hundred of the students, some old and some new, will find living quarters in the eight new dormitory buildings that have just been completed. These residence units were built at a cost of half a million dollars from funds loaned by the state. This amount must be repaid by the University out of room rentals.

Lviing quarters in the new dormitories are unlike those in any other educational institution in the United States. They are more nearly like the dormitories of the new Harvard School of Business Administration than any other.

Two students will share a suite of a living room, a bed room and a communicating bath. Most of the baths communicate with two suites, though there are a few that join four and some others that connect with only one.

Entrances have been so placed that there are no hallways. Groups of 24 students will use a single entrance, which permits eight men to live on each of the three floors within a unit.

In order to accommodate more students from the dormitories the Commons has been remodeled. It will be opened for the students who are arriving this week.

Mrs. Laura L. Davis Dies in Petersburg

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11—Mrs. Laura Davis, wife of the late George Davis, died this morning. She was a daughter of the late Simon and Anne McLain Smith and had been a resident of this city for the past 14 years. Mrs. Davis is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. D. Bevans, with whom she lived; one sister, Mrs. Martha Allan, of Barnesville, Ga.; one brother, A. J. Smith, of Columbus, Ga., and several grandchildren survive.

Alma Dean Duck Dies At Petersburg Home

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11—Miss Alma Duck, daughter of Junius R. and Ida Belle Stephenson Duck, died last evening at her parents' residence. Besides her parents, two brothers and two sisters survive—Herman Duck, of Baltimore; Linwood Duck, Mrs. Cora Barron and Miss Ruth Duck, all of this city.

ALEXANDRIA HEALTH DATA ARE REVEALED

City's General Conditions Good, Asserts Report of Official.

CRASH HURTS MAIL MAN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The report of the city health department for August, just made public by Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, city health officer, shows at the general health conditions in Alexandria have been very good. The attendance at the infant welfare clinic showed an increase of 66 per cent over the previous month, and there was a large number of vaccinations in preparation for the registration of children for entrance to the public schools.

Only two cases of typhoid fever were reported during the month, both from outside infections. The total number of births recorded was 60, while the deaths totaled 35.

There were 33 patients given 88 treatments in the city clinic, while at the poor clinic a total of 468 treatments were given. At the infant welfare clinic there were 283 treatments, 52 new babies being given physical examinations. One hundred and forty visits were made to homes, and 158 babies were seen at their homes; total number of babies seen by the nurse, 441; number of vaccinations, 219; typhoid injections given, 8. The public health nurse reported 48 new patients, 151 visits and 27 clinic afternoons.

The sanitary inspector reported 50 inspections of restaurants, 91 grocery stores, 40 meat markets, 12 fish markets and fish wagons; 32 soft-drink establishments, 10 dairies, 12 barber shops, 9 yards and alleys.

The various reports were made by Miss Marguerite Davis, health nurse; Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson, baby clinic nurse; Miss Mae Cavanaugh, bacteriologist, and Dr. J. J. Garvey, sanitary inspector.

A jury in the corporation court has given a verdict for the defendant in the suit of Mrs. Annie L. Demaine, executrix of the estate of Windsor W. Demaine, against Mrs. Mollie Demaine, administratrix of the estate of William H. Demaine. The suit was to recover $10,000 on a note dated February 11, 1925, said to have been signed by William H. Demaine. The jury was composed of J. Brooke Carter, William J. Greenan, Francis H. Fannon, J. B. Abraham, T. E. Dyson, Harry Gochert and Walter Pierpoint.

George S. Steadman, of Fredericksburg, Va., who is a mail contractor with a route between Fredericksburg and Tappahannock, was brought to the Alexandria Hospital Tuesday night suffering from two broken ribs, cuts and sprained back as the result of an automobile accident. Steadman was driving a truck loaded with cream for the United States Creamery, this city, when it was overturned, it is claimed, as the result of his being blinded by the lights of an approaching machine. Steadman left the hospital yesterday and returned to his home.

The body of Dr. George Taylor Klipstein, who died in Los Angeles, Calif., last Friday, arrived in this city yesterday and was taken to the home of his sister, Miss Rebecca T. Klipstein, 520 Prince street. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock tomorow afternoon from St. Paul's Episcopal Church, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Wallis, professor emeritus of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, and the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of the church.

The board of lady managers of the Alexandria Hospital will meet at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow at the Nurses' Home to attend the funeral of Dr. Klipstein, who was for many years a staff physician at that institution.

The Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening in the lecture room of the church, with Miss Mary Williamson, the leader, and members of the Ann Judson group in charge. The Junior Auxiliaries will be guests at this time.

Paul Morton, city manager of Petersburg, formerly employed in the same capacity in this city, was in Alexandria yesterday with the Commonwealth attorney and city clerk of Petersburg, studying the system in operation here in handling prohibition cases. They conferred with Commonwealth Attorney Albert V. Bryan and also made a study of the system inaugurated by Elliott F Hoffman, clerk of the courts, in handling the funds for the city.

Members of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce will visit the Fairfax County Fair today, Chamber of Commerce Day, accompanied by the Citizens Band. A caravan of automobiles will leave the George Mason Hotel at 1:30 o'clock for the trip.

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the George Mason Hotel, when reports from the Department convention held in Petersburg last week will be given by the delegates from the local unit, who atended. The officers elected at the July meeting will assume their various offices at this meeting.

A program for the month of September in the interest of year-around refrigeration as suggested by the National Food Preservation Council, has een indorsed y the city health officer, Dr. W. Lewis Schaffer, and the other officials of the city health department and the following local committee for this work appointed:

M. J. O'Connell, chairman; Harry Hammond, vice chairman; T. B. Gilliam, Ashby Reardon, John U. Reardon, N. F. Lawler, F. C. Goodnow, C. C. Carlin, jr., and George E. Warfield.

13 Planes Stop Over On Way to Baltimore

(Associated Press.)

The planes remained in the Capital over night.

Couple Wed in Baptist Parsonage at Hopewell

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11.—At the parsonage of the First Baptist Church in Hopewell, Miss Jean Georgia Hartley became the bride of Edward Lee Chappel. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. S. Leake, pastor of the church. Mrs. Chappel is a native of Porto Rico, while the bridegroom is from North Carolina. They will make their home in Hopewell.

Maryland Observes Own Holiday Today

Anniversary of Famous Bombardment to Be Celebrated.

Anniversary of the bombardment of Fort McHenry by the British September 12, 1814, which gave birth to the "Star Spangled Banner," America's national anthem, will be celebrated today by citizens of Maryland. This is officially known as Defender's Day.

While the holiday is oserved fully only in Baltimore, sporadic celebrations will be held in other Maryland sections. The banks of the State will be closed and a number of county offices will be partially closed.

All children attending parochial schools in the archdiocese of Baltimore, of which Washington is a part, will be given a holiday today. The children of the public schools in nearby counties of Maryland will have patriotic recitations but will have to attend school.

Million-Dollar Coal And Timber Deal Made

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept 11.—Announcement was made here today of the purchase by Joseph B. Moore and Carl Martin, of Elkins, of the holdings of the Three Forks Coal Co., the South Fork Lumber Co. and Moore, Keppel & Co., in Randolph County and the South Branch Valley, for approximately $1,000,000.

The properties comprise 60,000 acres of timber, 30,000 acres of coal and a smokeless coal mining plant.

$25 in Provisions Stolen From Store.

Roswell Harris, manager of a branch Sanitary grocery store at 257 Third street southwest, told police yesterday that a thief gained entrance to the store by smashing a side window and escaped with meats and flour valued at $25 during the night.

FIVE PLEAS DENIED BY APPEALS COURT

Auto, Seized With Liquor, Involved in Writ Granted.

SIX LAWYERS QUALIFY

Staunton, Va., Sept. 11.—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today refused five and granted one petition for writs of error.

Hiram McDaniel, of Madison County, appealing from a prohibition violation conviction in which he received a $50 fine and jail sentence of 30 days, lost his appeal.

L. E. Evans lost his appeal from the Circuit Court of Elizabeth City County, resulting from prohibition law violation and which the appellant received a fine of $100 and three months in jail.

Wreck Plea Denied.

The petition of George and Mary Richards for a writ of error from the Circuit Court of the City of Clifton Forge was refused. This was a civil suit resulting from an automobile wreck.

An appeal of Norman Kemper, from the Circuit Court of Orange County, in which appellant received a ten-year penitentiary sentence for second-degree murder, was refused.

The appeal of Bessie Woods, from the Circuit Court of Page County, adverse decision in a civil case, was refused.

The Claude Nolan Motor Co. was the only successful appellant before the court. A writ was asked as result of confiscation of an automobile containing whisky. The machine was the property of the appellant; writ was granted.

Arguments Completed.

Arguments were completed today in the Railway Express Agency, Inc., appeal from decision of the State corporation commission, and the case of Tompkins vs. Randall, from Judge Bertram's twenty-fifth circuit was argued and submitted. That of Sager vs. the Raleigh Co., from the same circuit, was partly argued.

Six attorneys today qualified to practice before the supreme court. They are, Ralph H. Bader, of Harrisonburg, and Donald S. Stormant, William E. Carey, jr., A. Coulter Wells, Herbert R. Crossman and Ralph A. Cusick, all of Washington, D. C.

Sun-Tan Is The Fashion!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

False modesty is a relic of an ancient prejudice. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has cut it away and, in behalf of better health and pure enjoyment, sponsors the fashion of sensible swimming attire.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

BALTIMORE TO OPEN BICENTENNIAL FETE

Brilliant Ceremonies Mark Observance of City's 200th Birthday.

HUGE PARADE PLANNED

Baltimore, Sept. 11.—Army and Navy units moved on Baltimore today and will march through the streets tomorrow in the military parade which will be a feature of the opening of the city's 200th anniversary celebration.

The battleship New York, flying the flag of Rear Admiral H. H. Christy, docked at Pier 5, Locust Point, preceding the light cruiser Memphis by several hours. The cruiser tied up at the Recreation Pier. The two warships were the vanguard of a squadron which left Hampton Roads, Va., last night. Other ships are the minelaying destroyers Maury and Mahan and the aircraft tenders Teal, Sandpiper and Wright.

Fort Myer Represented.

The Second Battalion of the Sixth Field Artillery, consisting of Batteries E and F, commanded by Maj. John M. Hauser, arrived in Baltimore by motor truck from Fort Hoyle and established camp in the area in the rear of the swimming pool in Druid Hill Park.

The Second Squadron of the Third Cavalry from Fort Myer, Va., often spoken of as the "President's Own," left the post early today en route to the city.

The destroyers Maury and Mahan will dock at the Recreation Pier, the cruiser on the west side and the two other vessels on the east. The aircraft tenders will lie in the anchorage.

Army Planes Due.

A squadron of six airplanes belonging to the First Pursuit Group of the United States Army was expected at Bolling Field late today from the home base at Selfridge Field, Mich. It will be joined by a bombardment squadron from Langley Field, Va., and both groups will fly to Baltimore, landing at Logan Field.

Air squadrons will put on a show over Fort McHenry tomorrow afternoon after the patriotic ceremonies at Fort McHenry under the direction of the Society of the War of 1812.

The streets of the city have received their final decorations. In the business section of the city seal, the official bicentennial poster, together with the national, State and city colors, flaunted from porticoes and windows.

Unveiling of Tablets.

The ceremonies tomorrow will open with the dedication of a tablet and flagholder at the grave of John Eager Howard in old St. Paul's Cemetery. At noon Lord Baltimore, the City Hall bell, will toll 200 times, and Mayor William F. Broening will officially open the anniversary. Six tablets will then be unveiled at the limits of old Baltimore Town.

The military parade with its Army and Navy, National Guard and veterans' divisions, will be one of the largest of its kind ever held in Baltimore.

The water pageant off Fort McHenry at 7:30 p. m. will be an unusual feature of the opening celebration.

Friday will be given over to the children and the fraternal units of the city.

The celebration will come to its climax Saturday afternoon when a historical pageant will march through the downtown section to the stadium.

RITES FOR MRS. HOOVER.

Husband Officiates at Funeral Services for Wife.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie C. Hoover, wife of George G. Hoover, Washington attorney, 1230 Massachusetts avenue northwest, were conducted yesterday afternoon at Hysong's funeral parlors, 1300 N street northwest. A Quaker service was held, Mr. Hoover officating.

Mrs. Hoover, a native of Canada, was employed at the Treasury Department. Interment was private.

COURTHOUSE FIGHT STIRS ROCKVILLE

Controversy Over New Site to Be Thrashed Out This Evening.

SCHOOL ROSTERS CHANG

The controversy between the courthouse building committee of Montgomery County and the trustees of the Rockville Presbyterian Church concerning the price to be paid to the church for its property, which is wanted as a site for a modern county courthouse and jail will be thrashed out at a meeting of the courthouse committee and trustees tonight in the courthouse at Rockville.

The county has offered $30,000 for the church building and site and the church trustees ask $42,000, claiming they can not replace the present plant for less money. In an effort to come to an agreement, the two bodies will meet tonight.

Condemnation proceedings have been instituted against the church property by Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners. If an agreement is reached tonight these proceedings will be withdrawn. Otherwise, the county will continue to prosecute and the congregation will be forced to defend its valuation in court. Church officials declare they intend to fight to the last ditch to obtain the amount they ask.

Montgomery County's white public schools opened yesterday with an estimated total enrollment of 8,000, the largest number ever to attend the schools, according to Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools. The colored schools have an enrollment of approximately 2,000.

At the meeting of the county school board, the resignation of R. D. Brinker, principal of the Takoma Park-Silver Spring High School, was accepted and E. M. Douglas, former principal of a Damascus high schdol, was selected to fill the vacancy. Edgar G. Jewell, principal of the Glen Echo-Cabin John School, was named to succeed Douglas at Damascus. J. E. Thornton was named principal of the Glen-Echo-Cabin John institution.

The board decided to close the school at Avery and provide transportation so that pupils of the Avery School may attend sessions at Rockville.

BRUTALLY BEATEN, YOUNG MEN AVER

Vagrancy Charge Dismissed; Say U. S. Training School Aids Flayed Them.

POLICE HERE HOLD THEM

Brutal treatment by four employes of the National Training School for Boys was alleged yesterday by two young men arraigned in the Hyattsville branch of the Prince Georges County Police Court. Clarence Stewart, 23 years old, of Princess Anne County, and James Dalton, Akron, Ohio, told Judge J. Chew Sheriff that they had been awakened from a sound sleep in the woods near Tuxedo, Md., by blows from a wire wrapped club in the hands of one of the training school employes, who were in search of escaped inmates of the school.

The men had been arrested on charges of being tramps without visible means of support and possession of firearms by County Policeman Claude Reese, on complaints made by the school employes. The complaints were sworn to by S. Martin. No record of the names of the other men was received by the court.

The men told Judge Sheriff that they had been employed on the lightship Mayflower and had left to seek their fortunes in Washington. They hoped to obtain jobs on Standard Oil tankers, they said. Stewart claimed that he owned a pistol found between them as they were asleep and that he had won the pistol in a poker game on board ship. Stewart had $13 in his possession and Dalton about 80 cents.

The judge dismissed the vagrancy charges and fined Stewart $2 on the firearms charge.

After the training school employes had left the judge heard about the alleged assault. He questioned the two young men. They said the employes had struck them with the clubs to awaken them. One of the school men declared: "They ain't the ones we want," it was said.

The judge declared that he had not understood this and had thought the young men were injured by falling down in the woods. He declared that the actions of the training school men in attacking the two was outrageous. He called Chief H. L. Leonard and Constable Andrew Gasch, of the Prince Georges County Rescue Squad, to give them first aid. It was feared that Stewart had suffered a fracture of the skull and the two were taken to Casualty Hospital for treatment. They then were turned over to the police of the Ninth Precinct, who held them on a technical charge of investigation and planned to send them to the line-up of detective headquarters this morning.

FAIRFAX FAIR OPENS WITH 3,000 THERE

First Day of Program Given Over Entirely to Children.

FALLS POWER STUDIED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

Three thousand persons attended the opening of the Sixteenth Annual Fair and Horse Show of the Fairfax County Fair Association yesterday. The opening program of races and pony contests was devoted entirely to children, who were admitted to the fairgrounds free and comprised almost half of the attendance.

While the opening program was in progress members of the association were busily engaged in arranging last minute entries in floral, farm produce, live stock and women's culinary and handiwork contests. One of the most attractive exhibits was that of the boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs, who submitted farm produce and handiwork.

The fair will continue through Saturday. Members of the association declared the fair this year was one of the largest and most attractive in the history of the county.

Today will be celebrated as "Chamber of Commerce Day." Members of the chambers of Alexandria, Arlington County, Loudoun and Prince William Counties have accepted invitations to attend. The morning will be devoted to such well-known fair events as a race for fat men, a potato sack race and similar events in addition to band concerts.

Winners of the opening day events, which were judged by Jack Trapnell, of Charles Town, W. Va., and Albert Ashton, of the Wardman Park Saddle Club, of Washington, and which were all pony contests with only children participants, were:

Saddle ponies, 12 hands and under, ridden by children 12 years and under—First, Headlight, ridden by Edwin Gulick, $15; second, Diplomat, ridden by Robert Palmer, $10; third, Sonny, ridden by Edith and Ann Farr, $5; fourth, White Sox, ridden by Doris H. Cunningham, ribbon.

Saddle ponies, over 12 hands and under 14.2 hands, ridden by children 15 years and under—First, Patches, ridden by Robert Blickle, a loving cup donated by William Rooney; second, Dark Dawn, ridden by Henry Ferneyhough, $10; third, Busy Bee, ridden by Meade Palmer, $5; fourth, Lady Scamperdale, ridden by Jane Stevenson, ribbon.

Pair ponies, best pair matched ponies up to 12 hands to be ridden by children 12 years and under—First, Headlight and Ragamuffin, owned by Edwin Gulick, $15; second, entry by Doris H. Cunningham, $10; third, entry by Edith and Ann Farr, $5.

Pony "touch and out," ponies under 12 hands, to jump 2 feet, ponies over 12 hands and up to 14.2 hands, to jump 3 feet—First, Smiling Through, owned by C. H. Carrico, a loving cup donated by Dr. J. Garvey and $10; second, Snow Flake, owned by Robert Blickle, $10; third, Good News, owned by J. L. Hilleary, $5; fourth, Beauty, owned by Robert Palmer, ribbon.

Pair ponies, over 12 hands and under 14.2 hands, ridden by children 16 years and under to jump three feet—First, entry by Robert Blickle, $20; second, Sky High and mate, entry by R. E. Ferneyhough, $10; third, entry by Meade Palmer, $5; fourth, entry by R. E. Ferneybough, ribbon.

Child's class, ponies 12 hands and under ridden by children 8 years and under—First, Beauty, ridden by Robert Palmer, a cup donated by Captain of Police Heywood Durrer; second, Sonny, ridden by Edith and Ann Farr, $5; third, Headlight, ridden by Edwin Gulick, $3; fourth, White Sox, ridden by Doris H. Cunningham, ribbon.

Pony Corinthian, ponies under 14.2 hands ridden by children 16 years and under in full hunting costumes. Ponies under 12 hands to jump two feet and ponies under 14.2 hands to jump three feet—First, Flash, owned by John L. B. Gaines, the Clarens Cup and $10; second, Sky High, owned by R. E. Ferneyhough, $10; third, Patches, owned by Robert Blickel, $5; fourth, Snow Flake, owned by Robert Blickle, ribbon.

Bare back class, ponies 12 hands and under to jump two feet and ponies over 12 hands to jump three feet—First, Smiling Through, owned by C. H. Carrico, $15; second, White Sox, owned by Doris H. Cunningham, $10; third, Sky High, owned by R. E. Ferneyhough, $5; fourth, Snow Flake, owned by Robert Blickle, ribbon.

First race. Ponies 12 hands and under ridden by children under 13 years a distance of two furlongs. First, Good News, owned by J. L. Hilleary, $12; second, White Sox, owned by Doris H. Cunningham, $8; third, Nellie, owned by J. F. Mudd, $4.

Second race, ponies up to 14.2 hands, ridden by children under 16 years, a distance of 3 furlongs. First, Lulu Wakaka, owned by W. T. Ralston, $20; second, Yellow Jacket, owned by W. T. Ralston, $10; third, Patches, owned by Robert Blicklee, $5.

At the meeting of the Fairfax Chamber of Commerce, the hydroelectric development of Great Falls was discussed at great length. This resulted in the reorganization of the committee having jurisdiction over such developments. The committee consists of Thomas R. Keith, Capt. Thurlow White, John Rooney, M. E. Church and A. Smith Bowman. This committee was instructed to proceed immediately to make a thorough investigation of all phases of the project, and to report the results of this investigation at the next meeting of the chamber.

The Fairfax Chamber always has been in favor of the proper hydroelectric development of the Potomac River with the preservation of the natural beauties of the Great Falls and the park.

John Rooney, of Dranesville, made a request that the chamber start action that will lead to the development of the power by the States of Maryland and Virginia instead of by private concerns. Keith raised the objection that the Virginia constitution specifically forbids the issuing of State bonds for such purposes. The committee was later instructed to investigate and study the means whereby the people of the State might control the development, as was brought out in the report of Maj. Gen. Jadwin.

Dr. Samuel Johnson, of the Lee Boulevard Association, and George Harrison, of Herndon, outlined the plans and status of the Lee boulevard. Dr. Johnson made a report of the history of the beginning of the association, its aims and accomplishments down to the present day. He asked for the aid of the chamber in securing a road from Fort Buffalo, where the boulevard now ends, to the junction of the Lee highway and Little River turnpike north of Fairfax.

W. T. Carrico, of Columbia pike, was voted a life membership in the chamber in return for his gifts of chamber of commerce signs which have been erected throughout the county.

Virginia Carr and Elizabeth Harrison, Fairfax County's 4-H Club demonstration team, which will represent Virginia at Camp Vail, Mass., and at the State fair in Richmond in October, were sent letters of appreciation.

Capt. Thurlow White reported that Constitution Week will be celebrated in cooperation with the Fairfax Bar Association by the chamber of commerce. A meeting will be held in the Fairfax School September 18 at 8 p. m. with Senator Alben Barclay, of Kentucky, as principal speaker.

BLACKWELL FREED OF TRAFFIC CHARGE

Washingtonian Refuses to Press Case Against County Board's Clerk.

INTOXICATION IS DENIED

Warrants charging James C. Blackwell, clerk to the Prince Georges County Commissioners, with driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving were withdrawn yesterday in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court, when Judge J. Chew Sheriff received a letter from James B. Daly, 805 Quintana place northwest, the complainant, requesting this action.

Daly declared he was unwilling to prosecute the case further and asked that the warrants be withdrawn.

Blackwell yesterday denied that he had negotiable county bonds in his possession at the time of an accident in which he figured last Friday, as had been declared by police, but that the bonds had not been signed or sealed because of an error which had een discovered in the printing. The word "chapter" on the bonds was printed "charter," he explained, and the issue had to be destroyed. He had been to the home of Dr. George W. Waters, chairman of the board of county commissioners, to discuss the error, he said.

Blackwell characterized as ridiculous the charge that he was drunk at the time of the accident which precipitated the charges. He explained that he had been forced to turn out into the street because of a parked car. As he started to pass the parked machine, he said, that car suddenly was driven in front of him and he was compelled to swerve to avoid a collision. Daly's car also was passing when, in the jam that resulted, their front wheels collided. Realizing that he was at fault because he was too far across the street, Blackwell offered to pay the damages, and since then has done so, he said.

Blackwell was arrested by Chief of Police Carl M. Blanchard, of Hyattsville, after Daly had agreed to swear out warrants. Blackwell later was released on $1,100 bond.

OCEAN MAIL CONTRACTS.

In section 1 of the merchant marine act of 1920 it is declared to be the policy of the United States "to do whatever may be necessary to develop and encourage the maintenance of an adequate merchant marine." The merchant marine act of 1928, the so-called Jones-White bill, confirms the policy and primary purpose of the act of 1920. Notwithstanding this fact, a situation is brewing that can be looked upon only as a most serious threat against the development of the merchant marine. The crisis arises in the failure to award mail contracts which, in the words of Shipping Board officials, amount to a substantial subsidy without which American ships can not prosper.

The Jones-White act directed the Postmaster General to certify to the Shipping Board what ocean mail routes should be established, directed the board "as soon as practicable after receipt of such certification from the Postmaster General" to determine and certify to him the type, size, speed and other characteristics of the vessels that should be employed on such routes, and authorized the Postmaster General to enter into contracts for the carrying of ocean mails. Recently, however, the award of mail contracts was placed in the hands of the "Interdepartmental Committee on Award of Ocean Mail Contracts," set up by President Hoover. This committee, in July, held up the award of mail contracts to the United States Lines on the ground that its financial position did not require and would not justify a postal contract. It also failed to act on an application for mail contracts filed by the Export Steamship Corporation, in the absence of which the Shipping Board felt it was not justified in awarding a construction loan.

Three months ago the Tampa Inter-Oceanic Steamship Corporation was awarded a contract for the purchase of the Gulf-West Mediterranean Steamship Line, and it now appears that the corporation refuses to go through with the deal until it is assured an ocean mail contract. The contract sought would be worth some $200,000 a year, and the buyers contend that there was an implied understanding from the terms of the Jones-White act that the mail contract would go with the line. The interdepartmental committee, however, has not awarded the contract. On this ground the corporation refuses to go through with the purchase, and the Shipping Board apparently faces the alternative of taking back the eight ships involved in the deal.

The shipping acts of 1920 and 1928 declare it to be the policy of the United States to encourage the maintenance of an adequate, privately owned merchant marine. It was to further this end that the postal subvention clause was inserted in the act. Congress has appropriated the money required for mail contracts. Of recent weeks, however, the tendency seems to have been to discourage the creation and maintenance of an adequate merchant marine. How else can the procrastination in the award of mail contracts be interpreted?

Congress intended, when it passed the shipping acts, that the development of an American merchant marine should be stimulated. The mail subvention principle was adopted to enable ship operators to earn profits and to encourage private capital to build ships. The language of the acts is specific in this regard, and the tendency to surround the award of mail contracts with a maze of red tape must be looked upon as an attempt to cripple the merchant marine, in spite of the expressed will of Congress. Unless the crisis is eased by those empowered to administer the shipping act it may be necessary to invoke further congressional action.

NEW JERSEY'S SENATORSHIP.

Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, who has been appointed Ambassador to France to succeed the late Myron T. Herrick, has not yet formally accepted the appointment, nor has he resigned his seat in the Senate. It is the general understanding that the senator will continue to represent his State until after the end of September, at least. Two reasons are assigned for this determination on the part of Mr. Edge; the first is the desire of the Republican leaders in the Senate to have the benefit of his vote upon the tariff bill, which it is hoped will be brought to a vote during the present month, and the second is the desire of the Governor of New Jersey to name the successor of the senator, whose term will expire March 3, 1931.

Should Senator Edge tender his resignation to take effect before October 1 his successor would be chosen by the electorate at the coming elections in November. But if his resignation should not become effective until after that date it will be too late, under the laws of New Jersey, to provide for the election in November; therefore, the governor would have the opportunity to fill the vacancy by appointment. Gov. Larsen has a great many prominent Republicans upon his slate from which to select an appointee. It is understood that his personal choice is David Baird, jr., son of the former senator, but it is also reported that great pressure is being brought upon him to tender the appointment to Dwight L. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico.

Whoever may be chosen for Mr. Edge's unexpired term will not have a walkover in the elections to choose a senator for the full term beginning March 4, 1931, as there are a number of aspirants for the honor, among them being former Senator Frelinghuysen, who has recently sailed from Europe to make an early survey of his political fences. He is expected to enter the primaries next spring with a thoroughly organized following to fight for the seat which he relinquished to Gov. Edwards following the elections of 1922.

SAFETY OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

During the past three years the American Automobile Association, with the cooperation of local school authorities and the police, has been carrying forward among school children a safety campaign. With the opening of the school year scheduled for a week from Monday active preparations are being made for the resumption of the campaign, one of the most interesting and important features of which is the schoolboy traffic patrol. During the last school year some 60,000 pupils were instructed in the principles of highway safety, and 1,500 schoolboys were enrolled as patrolmen for the purpose of guiding younger children through the perils of traffic.

The schoolboy patrol has rendered an invaluable service in the preservation of child life. The patrols are operated under the direct supervision of school principals, the A. A. A. merely supplying such aid as is requested and furnishing the distinctive Sam Browne belts and badges of office. Boy patrolmen do not have police authority, but are trained merely to see that school children are protected when crossing streets. If they are to succeed in their mission they must have the respect and cooperation of individual motorists.

Good drivers will slow down or halt when the boy patrolman holds up his hand. They will do so not because the law commands, but because they recognize their personal responsibility for the safety of children who must cross the streets. If local motorists cooperate wholeheartedly, the schoolboy traffic patrol will play an even greater part this year in the preservation of the lives of younger children than it has during the past three years, during which, largely as a result of its efforts, school-child traffic fatalities and injuries have been considerably reduced.

FARM RELIEF THROUGH CHEMISTRY.

From Minneapolis, where the seventy-eighth meeting of the American Chemical Society has been in session for several days, come reports of important discoveries in the field of chemical research, the latest of which upsets the old belief that hydrogen gas is an element. Dr. Bohnhoeffer, described as "a shy blond young German, who was a 17-year-old infantryman in front-line trenches at the close of the World War," is the discoverer. This young scientist appears to have found a way to split up this gas, a feat which septuagenarian scientists have never even dreamed to be possible. Bohnhoeffer gave an ocular demonstration of his discovery, and according to another scientist in attendance upon the meeting, "It is the first tangible proof of the existence in supposedly indivisible molecules of what we may call a different kind of molecule." The discovery is of great importance in the new world of synthetic chemistry, "which changes petroleum into coal and coal into gasoline."

Of greater importance to the public generally, however, is the discovery reported from the University of Illinois, where Dr. A. M. Buswell, professor of sanitary chemistry, assisted by C. S. Boruff, has conducted successful experiments for the purpose of finding new uses for cornstalks and other vegetable wastes rich in cellulose. These chemists have succeeded in producing a valuable fuel gas through a simple process of combining ordinary sewage with shredded cornstalks, without the use of either heat or any appliance, other than a steel tank.

In describing the results of the experiments Dr. Buswell told the delegates that the material for the manufacture of the gas is simply dried cornstalks, after husking, which are steeped in water or soaked in lime. A tank 8 feet in diameter and 8 feet deep holds sufficient gas from this shredded waste matter, into which has been piped the ordinary sewage from the farm house, to supply a family of five persons with fuel gas for cooking. The discoverers further suggested that a circle of land in the corn belt 8 miles in diameter, combined with the sewage of a city of 80,000 population, would produce enough gas to supply the entire needs of that city. And "since the corn borer lives over the winter in the stalks, any process which removes the cornstalk from the field will aid in control of the borer."

Not only can the despised cornstalks thus be made to do the cooking for the farmer's family, but it also promises to solve the problem of household refrigeration; for, as Dr. Buswell explains, "Besides methane (the fuel gas) the principal gaseous product is carbon dioxide, which is now finding wide commercial use as dry ice."

The Federal Farm Board should look to its machinery. Otherwise chemistry may get far ahead of it in providing farm relief.

PREPARING TO BE THANKFUL.

It is likely that the most sincere of all those who give thanks on Thanksgiving Day this year will be Burt McConnell, of the editorial staff of the Literary Digest. Mr. McConnell, who is 40 years old and ought to know better, has gone up into the wilds of New Brunswick to play the part of primitive man, just to find out whether it is possible for a gentleman without a rag of clothing, a cent in cash, or an ounce of food to survive and make himself comfortable.

Burt thinks he can skin the bark off a few cedar trees and make clothing out of the inner skin. He will then try his hand at cobbling, as he admits that his feet are tender. After having improvised a pair of brogans he will devote his talents to the construction of shelter and the pursuit of food. He has an elaborate program for the making of bows and arrows with which to slaughter game, and the catching of fish will, of course, be easy. As for fire, he will rub two sticks together until he obtains a spark. He will come back to civilization on Thanksgiving Day, if still alive, and will give to the world the result of his experiences.

So far as can be learned the attempt of this pioneer to substitute cedar bark for cloth has created no sensation among the tailors, nor has there been anything like a slump in the shoe machinery industry in the face of this new competition.

It is safe to predict that Burt McConnell will be glad to get back and consequently very thankful when the turkey and cranberry sauce are served in his boarding house on Thanksgiving Day.

PACIFIST LOBBIES

Open Letter From
RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD,
Former Ambassador to Italy, to Senator Borah.

My dear Senator: The investigation of the Shearer case ought to be undertaken by the foreign relations committee, of which you are chairman. It should be sweeping, i. e., should include not only the shipbuilding companies and their activities which have shocked the President, but should extend also to lobbies carried on by employes of church organizations and of fanatic pacifist machines which do not make plain the sources of their funds, or prove their freedom from relationship with radical alien internationals, or with foreign-inspired propaganda intended to keep the United States in various states of coma in its various relations and defenses.

As between a lobby in favor of shipbuilding companies and one carried on indirectly by some foreign power against the upbuilding of our merchant marine I see no moral difference, and condemn each. But we both know that shipbuilding facilities necessary for our defense are becoming depleted and that our merchant marine is not only necessary to our commerce, but figures far more importantly in our national defense than is commonly realized. This must be valued correctly, no matter how high is our official purpose to reduce armament.

We were drawn neatly, by propaganda publicity methods, in the Washington Disarmament Conference into a position where material parity was sacrificed for the gesture of piety.

Col. McNutt, of the American Legion, wrote a letter to the President this summer, but failed to point out the fundamentals of arms reductions.

The American people today are utterly hoodwinked by the published discussions about arms reduction and naval parity with Great Britain.

Cruisers and tonnage hold the public's attention, so does the very remote possibility of war between Great Britain and the United States.

But yardsticks on cruisers and other ships do not create sea power parity, or even measure it. Elements of even greater importance are the strength and number of naval bases, the length of enlistment in the armed forces and the number of tons of merchant marine, which can by quick conversion carry hitting gun power at a speed sufficiently high to interrupt commerce. Today there is not even an approach to naval parity. Our naval defense, including all its factors, is hopelessly second or third class. In case of emergency it takes not a season, but years, to build this sea power.

Private citizens can not disclose, even if they have access to information as to present negotiations with Great Britain. They may join with the President and you in eager efforts toward agreement for reduction of arms, but in this endeavor if they wish to protect America it is absurd to call them "big navy men."

It takes those who have been initiated into the practical side of diplomacy to understand that the likelihood of war between Great Britain and the United States is remote indeed compared with the possibility of controversy as to our claim to the right to trade with nations with which Great Britain might be at war. The real stake in the game is our right to be free from alien dictation limiting our free commerce. That dictation could not take place if we maintain the power of naval parity to veto dictation. To a certain extent such dictation might be averted by solemn agreement made now with Great Britain for freedom of the seas.

Our only card to play in asking for such an agreement is our present resource to build ships. Once any naval reduction agreement is signed in advance of this, we have thrown our only card overboard. If that is to be our course, we will be scandalously improvident, and any good American will know that his country has been sold again.

Sinister influences are bad enough when they are America, but even worse when alien propaganda concealed in pious garb caresses into a fool's slumber. Sincerely yours,

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S STEPS.

The National Association of Chiropodists and Podiatrists recently put pedometers on a number of people engaged in various activities, to find out how far they walked in a day. They estimated that housewives walk 7½ to 8 miles daily without leaving their homes. The women folks, who know how many, many times they have to circulate through their homes in the routine of daily toil, how many times they have to climb up and down stairs, will easily credit this statement, says the Newcastle Courier. That is one reason why small houses are so popular nowadays, and many people do not care for big old-fashioned homes once called so desirable. Whatever saves the steps of the women lifts a heavy burden from their backs, it increases their power to care for their families, and to do community work

JUST FOLKS

A FOOL IN THE MARKET.

Bill Brown bought stocks when they were low
And sold them out when they were high.
Who would get rich has but to know
Exactly when to sell and buy.
Bill Brown is now a millionaire,
While I have not a dime to spare.
The difference, I'd have you know,
I bought 'em high and sold 'em low.

Bill Brown made money out of "grape."
He bought his shares at twenty-three.
The figures climbed upon the tape.
"At ninety-four I'll sell," said he.
I bought some shares at ninety-four,
Believing that they still would soar.
The shares Bill had belong to me—
They're quoted now at twenty-three.

If I but knew when low is low
And I could sense when high is high,
Then when to sell my stocks I'd know,
And also when to rush to buy.
The difference is slight, you see,
But, oh, it means so much to me!
I seem to be the ne'er-do-well
Who buys when wise men start to sell.

Teach Him to Flourish a Tin Sword and He Won't Last Long in Battle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THOUSANDS of young men and young women graduate from college each year with their minds and characters poisoned and weakened by their college experience.

They begin life with the conviction that good work, sincerity, thoroughness and honesty are unnecessary if one has learned to cheat and bluff.

They are worthy products of a system that sets an example of dishonesty.

When a young man or young woman is given a college diploma that sheet of parchment declares to the world, "This person has learned all he was expected to learn in this institution and now is educated."

It is a lie. Some of the graduates have worked hard and learned much, but the diplomas they receive as a just reward for good work are robbed of value by the fact that similar diplomas are given to others who graduate by virtue of cheating and bluffing and the connivance of charitable examiners. The blue ribbon does no honor to the thoroughbred if the scrub is given one like it.

Why are the stupid and ignorant and dishonorable permitted to graduate?

Because colleges, like business houses, must give the public the thing it desires if they would continue to prosper.

Among the young people who attend obscure colleges are thousands who have no thirst for knowledge. They attend because their friends do—because it is the custom—because their parents require it. And their one ambition is to "get by" and eventually to win a "dip." If one college requires too much of them they shift to another and yet another until at last they find an institution that lives by catering to the vanity and hypocrisy of morons.

If a college depending on the good will of the public for its support should refuse diplomas to the incompetents who attend it another year would find its freshmen class reduced by half.

The diploma is the thing. Refuse diplomas and the money will stop coming. Instructors will be jobless. The college will die. Obviously the way of salvation is to play the tune demanded by the one who pays the fiddler. Give the ignorant cheat his coveted parchment and be rid of him.

It is a sad business. Filling the land with graduates who have neither wit nor learning harms the cause of education, but that isn't the chief harm.

Youngsters denied college training and taught by hard experience that good work and honesty are essential to success have a far better chance than the college product encouraged in the belief that a cheat can get to the top without paying fare if he knows how to bluff.

THE ONCE OVER

MICE AND COLEGE ATHLETES.

("The University of Illinois is putting white mice through intensive athletic training to determine the effect of violent exercise upon college athletes. Other white mice are being kept practically without exercise. Both sets will soon be inoculated with germs to determine which are the more susceptible."—News item).

This column hereby announces that it has been experimenting for nearly a year in a somewhat opposite direction. To show the effect of a cheese diet on white mice, 50 college athletes have been kept in a pile of old papers in a dark closet and fed nothing but Camembert.

These 50 students, the very flower of America's undergraduate life, have been made to grow whiskers, crawl on all four, squirm through narrow spaces and gnaw pipe boards for a period of six months. Fifty other students have been allowed to play football, baseball, tennis and squash. In another ten days the students who have been treated like mice will be taken outdoors, fed raw meat, given running trousers, inoculated with hay fever and forced to play football.

If they still show athletic prowess the experiment will prove that what our colleges need is more cheese.

If they can't make the grade it will prove that a college athlete's chances of making his letter are not enhanced by long front teeth, sharp ears and six months in a dark closet.

CASE NO. 1.

Gerald, B. K.—A junior at Princeton, taken when he was young and put in a sideboard drawer with a bag of stale cookies for four months. Nights he was allowed to run wild and show his skill at leaping from pantry shelf to pantry shelf. A few weeks later he was taken out and told to try for the varsity eleven. On the first run with the ball he climbed the goal-posts and started to gnaw through the pigskin.

Bruce, F. G.—This boy was a member of the Yale polo team. He was put in a cage with some crusts of bread for three months. At the end of that time he was taken to the field and told to play polo. Just as he was about to drive a goal and win the game for Old Eli, a cat ran across the field, frightening him so he jumped off his horse and hid in a barrel.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Peace-Lover Sees Destruction of Civilization Coming Unless Progressive Disarmament Is Attained.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Geneva committees have recently been kept busy discussing the status and proper treatment of prisoners of war. The Kellogg pact and the Briand proposal for the realization of Victor Hugo's plan for the United States of Europe led one to suppose that the hideous anachronism of war was definitely outlawed by all civilized peoples.

An American President had previously publicly declared "it is for the generation that saw and survived the World War to devise measures of prevention. If we fail in this we shall deserve all the disaster which will surely be visited on us because of our failure." A British leader had also assured us that "wars are precipitated by motives which the statesmen responsible for them dare not openly avow. A public discussion would drag those motives in their nudity into the open, where they would die of exposure to the withering contempt of humanity."

More powerful and convincing than the words of either is the advent of the airplane, laden with tons of more and more powerful explosives, and more and more deadly poison gases, such as diphenyl chloroarsine and others, against which no masks efficiently protect.

Recent records tell of a made speed of 340 miles per hour by a British plane.

No very vivid imagination is needed to convince any senator, congressman or M. P. that, with whole cities wiped out and countries desolated, there will be little need to discuss prisoners of war.

There will not be any such animals!

Had not we all better stand by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald in their efforts to make peace prospects real by progressive disarmament, and so save civilization?

Veteran Asks That Soldiers' Bonus Be Payable in Cash.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your Labor Day editorial portrayed a glowing account of industrial prosperity in the United States. The assertion was made that proof of this prosperity was found in every branch of industry. You quoted the September review of business and financial conditions by the National City Bank to the effect that employment of labor has been maintained at the highest level and pay rolls are estimated to have been approximately 10 per cent larger than last year.

A special article appeared in the same edition of your newspaper taken from the bulletin of the National City Bank referred to the fact that due to a rise in the price of wheat the Federal Farm Board will not be under the necessity of having the farm problem on their hands this year.

If these facts are true that we have so much prosperity in every line of industry and the assurance of the farmer having a fair price for his products, I would like to know in view of the fact that a special session of Congress was called to solve the farm and industrial problems, whether the labors of Congress could not be devoted to more urgent and pressing problems.

World War veterans are sorely in need of practical legislation. The war ended eleven years ago and in all that time no comprehensive measure has been passed by Congress to aid the needy, unemployed and disabled veterans.

It is true that bills were passed at various times intended to help World War veterans, but always the effect of these measures passed by Congress failed to give complete relief and solve the veterans' problems.

The two principal measures enacted by Congress were the war veterans' act in 1924, and the insurance bonus plan passed in 1925. Both these measures were received with widespread dissatisfaction by former service men and Congress should certainly amend the act of 1924. I understand that a bill has already been introduced to make the soldiers' bonus payable in cash. The passage of this measure should be undertaken by Congress.

M Street West of Wisconsin Avenue Should Be Made a Wide Avenue, With Parking to the Canal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the important approach streets of the city that need attention is M street northwest, west of Wisconsin avenue. Narrow and lined with dilapidated structures, this could be made a very beautiful avenue with a park on the south side paralleling the canal and giving a good view of the river and the new bridges. All that is needed is the removal of the buildings between M street and the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal. As a continuation of Pennsylvania avenue, action should be taken in the near future restricting building before it becomes too costly by the indiscriminate erection of commercial buildings.

HARVEY ALLEN.

School for Crippled Colored Children Should Be Provided.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In today's issue I note that there is a probability that the proposed school for crippled colored children may be abandoned for the present because the minimum of fifteen crippled children can not be found.

I think this would be very unfair to the colored people and, especially, to the cripples.

I am sure that there are more than fifteen colored cripples in Washington, and a thorough search should be made for them.

Even if the number is still lacking, the lesser number should be given the same advanatges as the white cripples will get. It might be less economical to have a school for a few children, but, as the Secretary of the Interior stated a few days ago, separate schools for different races are always more expensive. These crippled children should not suffer because of an arbitrary system.

In the name of the Medico-Chirurgical Society, I protest against any thought of discriminating against the colored cripples.

Many Stories Of Roosevelts In New Book

'All in the Family" Is Porto Rico Governor's Latest Work.

By JEAN ELIOT.

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, much in the news just now with his service as Governor of Porto Rico before him and behind him an adventurous trip into the wilds of Indo-China, has a new claim to fame in a charming volume, "All In the Family," which is just from the press after having run serially in a magazine.

This is a collection of intimate reminiscences of the Roosevelt children of the present generation and the past, and presents a delightful picture of the late President Roosevelt in his relations with his family. The book is illustrated with the most engaging photographs of Roosevelts young and not so young in informal groups.

Col. Roosevelt's sister, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, presumably has a presentation copy of "All in the Family," but she has already been shopping for more to send to friends. Mrs. Longworth returned to Washington from Jamestown, where she has had a cottage for the last two months, to be host to Col. Roosevelt while he was in town for conferences with President Hoover on his new job as Governor of Porto Rico; and he has been staying with her at her house in Massachusetts avenue. He expects, however, to return to New York today.

Mrs. Longworth has a most becoming coat of tan, fruit of much sunning on the beach at Jamestown, and she says that Paulina is brown as a berry and brimming with health after her summer by the sea. The "Daughter of the House" is still at Jamestown, and her mother expects to rejoin her there within the next few days.

Speaker Longworth is now in Cincinnati and expects to remain there until the House convenes in October, unless business should bring him to Washington.

Mrs. Hoover and Son Leave for Hot Springs.

Mrs Hoover left town yesterday, accompanied by her son, Mr. Allan Hoover, to motor to Hot Springs Va., for a few days' visit.

A number of members of the Republican national committee, masculine and feminine, were guests of the President and Mrs Hoover at dinner on Tuesday evening following the conclusion of their meeting. Both Mr. Claudius H. Huston, the newly elected chairman, and Dr. Hubert Work were in the party, which also included Mr. Charles McCloud of Nebraska, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Condon of Washington State, Mrs. George Miller (Binal West) of Michigan, Mrs. O. P. Clark of California, Miss Dorothy Cunningham of Indiana, Miss Martha McClure of Iowa, Mrs. J. C. Griswold of Texas, Mrs. Harry Thomas of Wisconsin, Mrs. W. Reginald Baer of New Jersey and Mrs. Howard Parker of New Hampshire.

Others in the dinner party were Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, Mrs. Edgar Rickard, Mrs. James Y. Rippin, Girl Scout officials, who were White House guests but who have since returned to New York, and Mr. Kingsland W. Macy, of New York.

The British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, was obliged to postpone his departure for Bar Harbor, Me., matters having developed here which required his attention. However, Lady Isabella Howard left for Bar Harbor as scheduled on Monday evening, and is the guest of Mrs. Edgar Scott, of Philadelphia, at Chiltern. The ambassador hopes to join her there before the end of this week, leaving town today or tomorrow.

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Marc Peter have as their guests for a fortnight their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Peter. The Minister and Mme. Peter went to Hot Springs to meet them and they all returned to Washington together. After their visit here, Mr. and Mrs. Peter will return to their home in New York.

Charming Newcomer to Army Group

MISS MARGARET SHERBURNE, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Thomas L. Sherburne, who have recently come to the Army War College.

Senator and Mrs. Oddie Arrive From Brazil.

Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie arrived in New York yesterday on the Western World from Rio de Janeiro. The Senator was a delegate to the second Pan American Highway Congress, held in the Brazilian capital.

Col. and Mrs. William M. Colvin, their daughter, Miss Lucette Colvin, and Mr. Fitzhugh Colvin are at the Roosevelt Hotel in New York for a few days before returning to Washington after a trip to Panama. Col. Colvin is a former U. S. Military Attache to Sweden.

Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, wife of Senator Schall, left Washington yesterday by motor for Minnesota. She was accompanied by her sons, Midshipman Thomas D. Schall, jr., and Mr. Richard Schall, and by Miss Marguerite Gillespie, daughter of Col. Gillespie, of West Point. Later in the autumn Mr. Richard Schall will return to the Shattuck School.

Dr. Jose Baron Is Host at Luncheon.

The Charge d'Affaires of Cuba, Dr. Jose Baron, entertained at luncheon Tuesday at the Mayflower. His guests were Dr. Viriato Gutierrez, Cuban senator; the Cuban Ambassador to Mexico, Dr. Manuel Marques Sterling; Dr. Miguel Varona, collector of the customs house at Havana; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union; Dr. Pedro Rodriguez-Capote, Second Secretary of the Cuban Embassy, and Senor Armando Ros, Assistant Commercial Attache of the Cuban Embassy.

The Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Wilbur J. Carr, has been joined at their apartment at the Dresden by Mrs. Carr, who has been passing some time in Lenox, Mass.

The First Secretary of the Mexican Embassy and Senora de Campos-Ortiz have returned to Washington after spending a month in Mexico City.

Mrs. Frank B. Freyer and her daughter, Miss Engracia Freyer, who spent some time in Belgium and six weeks in Paris, are now in Spain, visiting Barcelona, Seville and Madrid. They will sail for home on October 18, reaching Washington the first week in November. Miss Freyer will make her debut on December 26.

M. Paul de Streel has arrived in Washington from Belgium to attend the wedding Saturday of M. Edouard de Streel, First Secretary of the Belgian Embassy, and Miss Helena Lodge, daughter of Mrs. George Cabot Lodge.

Maj. and Mrs. Matthews Honored at Dinner.

Col. and Mrs. Julien R. Bernheim entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Maj. and Mrs. Arnett Matthews, at the Army, Navy and Marine Country Club. Their guests were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James Kennedy, Col. and Mrs. Frank Laflamme, Col. Robert Oliver, Maj. and Mrs. Robert McDonald, Capt. and Mrs. James Mockbee, Capt. and Mrs. Walter Rose, Capt. and Mrs. Eugene Smith, Capt. and Mrs. William Wieck, Capt. Roy Stout, Capt. Avery Holmes and Capt. Earl Gebhardt.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Judson Baker, of Park avenue, New York, gave a dinner at the St. Regis roof in New York last night for Sir David and Lady Kinloch, parents of Alexander Davenport Kinloch, whose marriage to Miss Alexander Dalziel took place Tuesday. Sir David and Lady Kinloch are sailing on the Majestic tomorrow for their home in England.

Senor George de la Barra, secretary of the Bolivian Legation, was among those having guests for luncheon on the Willard Roof today.

Miss Beatrice Aitchison, daughter of Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Clyde B. Aitchison, entertained at luncheon and bridge yesterday in compliment to Miss Bey Page, of Lincolnshire, England, who is visiting Miss Eleanor Daniel. Miss Aitchison, with Miss Page and Miss Daniel, was a member of a week-end party entertained by Miss Daniel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Daniel, near Upperville, Va. Miss Aitchison will leave next week for Cambridge, Mass., and will enter the Harvard University Postgraduate School.

Younger Set To Be Joined By Army Girl

Miss Sherburne Arrives to Be With Parents at War College.

Col. and Mrs. Thomas L. Sherburne, newcomers to the Army group at the War College, have a charming daughter, Miss Margaret Sherburne, who will be an interesting addition to Washington's younger set. She will not make a formal debut, having had a season or two in society in Lansing, Mich., in the intervals of attending Michigan State College, from which she was recently graduated. Miss Sherburne arrived Monday to join Col. and Mrs. Sherburne, who had been in town for a fortnight.

Col. Sherburne is a student at the War College and was until recently commandant of the R. O. T. C. at Michigan State College at East Lansing. Col. and Mrs. Sherburne have quarters at the War College and, besides their daughter, have three young sons with them. Their eldest son, Lieut. Thomas L. Sherburne, jr., who was graduated from the Military Academy in June, is now on duty at Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Grosvenor, who went to Europe in July, will arrive in New York on the S. S. President Roosevelt October 4. Miss K. Frances Pitcher, of Ohio, who accompanied them to Europe, will return with them. They have been motoring extensively on the continent.

Miss Evelyn Brazelton's Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. George Troup Brazelton announce the engagement of their daughter, Evelyn, to Mr. Robert Strange French, son of Mrs. Robert Strange French and the late Mr. French, of Charleston, S. C. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Lieut. Lester Mitland, U. S. A., was host to a small party for luncheon on the Willard roof yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mann have returned to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after passing a few weeks with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac T. Mann, at their summer home on the North Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Delano announce the engagement of their daughter, Adele Fassett, to Mr. Ernest H. Klein, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Klein, of this city.

Prince Firouz Leaves Soon On Vacation

Persian Secretary Seeks Quiet Spot to Work on Book.

Prince Firouz, Second Secretary of the Persian Legation, will leave town toward the end of this week for a ten days vacation, the first few days of which he will spend in Atlantic City. The rest of his vacation will be passed in a quiet spot somewhere with an atmosphere conducive to writing, for Prince Firouz, like nearly everybody else these days, is writing a book.

The title of the volume, 'Some Reflections," reveals the character of its contents, which are interesting bits of a social, political and economic character, personal experiences and sketches on a variety of subjects. Prince Firouz has traveled widely in Europe and most of Asia and lived for 17 years in England where he received his education at Harrow and Cambridge. "This is his first diplomatic post outside of Persia, his duties being previously in the foreign office at Teheran.

While Prince Firouz has already written several pamphlets and essays both in English and in his native tongue, this is the first book he has written in English. He has also translated a good bit of Persian poetry into our language, one of the chapters in the book containing "some reflections" on the translation of poetry.

The Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. Luigi Notarbartolo di Villarosa, was host to a party of six at dinner last evening at the Plage Deauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wilder, of Lexington, Ky., have come by motor to Washington and are at the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. John D. McGee has opened her apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for the winter. Mrs. McGee passed the summer in California and has just returned from New Hampshire, where she went to meet her son, Mr. John D. McGee, jr., who

ILLNESS IS FATAL TO LOUIS MARSHALL

Noted Jewish Leader Fails to Respond to Blood Transfusion.

WAS EMINENT LAWYER

Zurich, Switzerland, Sept. 11 (A.P.). Louis Marshall, of New York, noted lawyer, constitutional authority and Jewish leader, died at 3 o'clock this afternoon after failing to respond to blood transfusion necessitated by an operation August 23 for an abscess of the pancreas.

Mr. Marshall attended the recent Sixteenth Zionist Congress in Zurich and was elected chairman of the Jewish Agency Council for uniting Zionists and nonzionists in the work of reclaiming Palestine as a Jewish homeland.

He underwent the operation soon after the close of the congress and for a few days he maintained satisfactory progress. He took a turn for the worse on September 4 and his condition was reported grave. He underwent a second operation and received blood transfusions to combat the toxic effects of prolonged necrosis of the pancreas, but his condition grew steadily worse.

Louis Marshall attained an eminent place among the outstanding lawyers of the United States as an authority in constitutional and corporation law.

Notwithstanding his extensive law practice he gave freely of his time and services in civic and communal movements and was honored on several occasions for his leadership of Jewish causes in America.

Mr. Marshall was born at Syracuse, N. Y., December 14, 1856, and began his law practice in that city. Later he removed to New York and became a member of the firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer and Marshall.

It was as a member of that firm that Marshall attracted attention and won fame by his arguments in many important cases in the highest courts, especially those involving constitutional and corporation law.

Counsel in Frank Case.

He was one of the counsel in the United States Supreme Court for Leo M. Frank, who was convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan in Georgia, a case that attracted wide attention at the time. He also was counsel for William Sulzer in the latter's impeachment trial as governor of New York.

He was president of the American Jewish Relief Commission, which, with other organizations, collected $65,000,000 for the relief of Jewish war sufferers. He also served as a member of one of the New York draft boards and was president of the committee of Jewish delegations in Paris during the peace conference. His efforts resulted in treaties with Poland, Roumania, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and other countries, which guaranteed equal rights to all racial, religious and linguistic minorities.

When he attained his seventieth birthday in 1926, Marshall was presented with a scroll bearing the names of many Jews of prominence in recognition of his leadership in Jewish causes in the United States.

Head of Many Activities.

His activities in behalf of his people included president of the American Jewish committee; chairman of the board of the executive committee of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America; president of Temple Emanuel, New York City; founder of the Jewish Protectory and Aid Society.

Mr. Marshall was among those identified with the controversy between Henry Ford and American Jews, when Hebrews of the country charged the automobile manufacturer with printing material "slanderous to the Jewish people," in the Dearborn Independent.

In 1927 Mr. Marshall made known that he had the original statement signed by Ford announcing withdrawal of anti-Jewish material from the Dearborn Independent. Later, as president of the American Jewish committee, he made public a letter sent by the committee to Ford accepting his offer of a public renunciation of the anti-Jewish campaign carried on in the magazine.

Some time afterward he warned Jews not to go to extremes in thanking and congratulating the automobile manufacturer for his apology.

Death Is Blow to Jews, Rabbi J. T. Loeb Asserts

Tribute was paid to the memory of Louis Marshall by Rabbi Julius T. Loeb, of this city, yesterday.

"The death of Louis Marshall is a terrible blow to the entire Jewish nation. It came as a crowning calamity to the present sorrows of Israel, to be mourned and deplored amid the bereaved ones of the New Zion," Rabbi Loeb declared.

"If only for his last act of effecting the Jewish Agency, Louis Marshall may well go down in history as an immortal leader of an 'eternal people,' but his name and fame will ascend to all future generations not merely as that of a great leader, orator, jurist, scholar, but as a father of an orphaned people, a stanch defender of a dispersed and suffering race in all corners of the earth, as a champion of human rights in all sections and spheres of the habitable globe, as a lover of mankind and friend of the oppressed everywhere in the world."

SECRECY ENSHROUDS D. O. A. CONVENTION

Mrs. L. A. Grubbs Is Elected State Councillor as Meeting Ends.

J. O. U. M. MEN PRESENT

Surrounding their activities with a carefully protected secrecy, the National Council of the Daughters of America of the District of Columbia brought their thirty-third annual convention to a close yesterday at the Raleigh Hotel. The closing session was enlivened by an election and installation of new officers, it was learned.

Newspaper men have been barred from the sessions. One reporter, at the opening of the convention, being unaware that the sessions were supposed to be behind "closed doors," opened the door of the ballroom where the sessions are being held and walked boldly toward the gathering of some 200 women and half a dozen men. One of the men hastily approached the reporter, grabbed him by the arm and escorted him back to the anteroom.

The small male delegation, it was learned, represented the Junior Order of United American Mechanics of the District, an auxiliary of the D. O. A. "News for publication" was given reporters by one of the men in the anteroom. This consisted of several resolutions which were passed, the indorsement of several bills pending in Congress, and the names of the new officers.

The new officers are: Mrs. L. A. Grubbs, State councillor; Mrs. Marvett Seymour, associate councillor; Mrs. Ethel Burroughs, State councillor; Mrs. Margaret Halfpap, associate State vice councillor; Mrs. Mabel Downing, State councillor conductor, and Mrs. Emma Brooks, State councillor warden.

Hoover May Speak During Radio Event

October 15 Set as Tentative Date for His Visit to Cincinnati.

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—President Hoover has been invited to address the radio audience during the broadcast of the dedication of the new Columbia Broadcasting System Studios Wednesday evening, September 18. The broadcast, to begin at 9:30 o'clock (Eastern standard time) and continue three hours, also will mark the chain's second anniversary.

October 15 has been mentioned as a tentative date for his visit to Cincinnati and thence down the Ohio River recently canaled to Louisville. From that point it was indicated today that he probably would journey northward to Detroit. As a tentative date for his visit to that city, where he would open the new Edison Laboratory at Dearborn, October 21, has been suggested.

It was said today that, while there was nothing definite about any plans as yet, the President might return to Washington from Detroit without making a proposed trip into Texas.

Slayers of Georgia Cashier Die Calmly

Petition for Clemency Is Denied Ten Minutes Before Execution.

Milledgeville, Ga., Sept. 11 (A.P.). Without knowing their final petition for clemency had been denied ten minutes before preparations for their execution started, Malcolm Morrow and Homer Simpson died in the electric chair at the State prison farm here shortly after noon today for the murder of C. A. Perry, Kingsland, Ga., bank cashier, last year. Morrow was 31 and Simpson 43 years old.

Morrow, whose home was in Jacksonville, Fla., was the first to be executed. He took his seat in the chair at 12:45 o'clock, but a slight delay was occasioned after the straps had been adjusted by failure to connect one of the wires leading to the headpiece. As a result the circuit remained open when the switch was thrown. The wire was hastily connected and the switch thrown again. He was pronounced dead at 12:30. Simpson, former Cleveland, Tenn., police chief, was removed from the chair at 12:44. He was the forty-seventh to die in the electric chair in Georgia.

Both men went calmly to their deaths.

tween the Chinese and Russian representatives so that they are wholly in the dark on the seriousness of the conflict.

Vernacular Press Silent.

It is a remarkable fact that although the foreign papers and news agencies here carry detailed stories of the destruction in Manchurian cities and the influx of Soviet troops into Chinese territory, the local vernacular press has printed not a single editorial comment on the present developments. This is in spite of the recent lifting of the press censorship.

The probable explanation is that Manchuria is far away and the local Chinese are waiting the attitude of their government, which is very uncertain.

The New Series PACKARD EIGHTS

outstandingly more advanced, more beautiful, more luxurious than ever before

THE new series Packard Straight Eights are now on display. We want you to see them no matter whether you are now planning the purchase of a car or not. They are so advanced in engineering, so rich in luxury, so complete in appointments, that we know they will delight anyone interested in all that is latest and best in fine car design and craftsmanship.

The new series includes the three Packard lines—Standard, Custom and De Luxe. Prices at the factory range from $2375 to $2775 for the Standard Eight; from $3190 to $3885 for the Custom Eight; and from $4585 to $5350 for the De Luxe Eight. Individual custom cars are also available to order.

Entire Fine Car Range Is Included

These three Packard Eight lines completely cover the fine car field—and dominate it! There is a Packard Eight available at the lowest price for which a truly fine car can be sold. And there are Packard Eights on up to the most luxurious individual custom creations obtainable anywhere in the world.

In accordance with Packard's long established policy, the fundamental grace and beauty of Packard lines have been again retained. Packard does not depreciate cars in the hands of owners by frequent and unnecessary changes in appearance. But the new models are outstandingly more beautiful, more luxurious, more advanced than any of the famous Packards of the past.

No Convenience or Comfort Has Been Forgotten

When you inspect the new Packard Eights you will agree that nothing that can be provided for the comfort, the convenience and the enjoyment of owners has been omitted. It is literally true that Packard engineers and designers can think of no way in which the new series cars can be made either better or more beautiful.

Packard cars have always been noted for their fine engineering and supreme craftsmanship; their superb performance, and long life; their comfort, beauty and distinction. In the new series cars Packard has surpassed every previous Packard achievement in these fields and has also given even greater attention to refinement and details of appointments—to incidental comforts and conveniences.

Women drivers, particularly, will appreciate the new arrangement of the sun visors, the adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, the newly perfected shatter-proof glass, the dashboard lockers and the new beauty of fixtures and upholstery. While to men the improved powerplant with its new four-speed transmission and still further refined Packard straight-eight engine is sure to appeal. Here is a new smoothness, a new ability, in traffic or on the open road.

Every Engineering Improvement Embodied

Untried novelties in design are never incorporated in Packard cars. Only such improvements and refinements as meet Packard standards after long and thorough tests on Packard's own million dollar proving grounds are offered the Packard clientele. Yet for 30 years Packard has been responsible for many of the most important inventions and engineering advances made by the industry, and has pioneered most of the mechanical improvements developed in recent years.

Today's Packard Eights, therefore, include those tried and proven engineering improvements, those refinements of detail, those conveniences and luxuries which the world naturally expects in cars bearing the Packard name.

Come in and see these new masterpieces—ride in them, drive them yourself. And then tell us, if you can, what could be done to meet more completely your ideal of what a truly fine car ought to be.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

GOV. GREEN ELECTED HEAD OF VETERANS

Men Who Fought in the War With Spain Gather at Dinner.

NEW ORLEANS IS CHOSEN

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Delegates attending the encampment of the United Spanish-American War Veterans, in session here, were thrown into an ovational uproar today when Maj. Gen. T. J. Appleyard, Confederate veteran, of Tallahassee, Fla., declared in an address to the assembly the Spanish War veterans deserved much of the credit for healing the wounds of the Civil War. The distinguished Southerner's address was one of the most impressive events on the program to date.

Fred W. Green, Governor of Michigan, was elected commander in chief of the veterans today by nearly a 2-to-1 majority over Col. Winfield Scott, of Enid, Okla., former commissioner of pensions under the Coolidge administration.

Green Polls 839 Votes.

Green polled 839 votes and Scott 427. No other nominations for commander in chief were placed, and the anticipated three-cornered fight failed to develop when supporters of Otto N. Raths, of St. Paul, Minn., did not place his name in nomination on the floor of the convention.

New Orleans was chosen for the 1931 convention, Philadelphia having previously been named as the 1930 meeting place.

Resolutions on scores of subjects, ranging from pensions to church attendance, were disposed of today by the convention. One proposal by the Monmouth, Ill., veterans to put the U. S. W. V. on record as favoring religious instruction in public schools of the country was allowed to go by without action.

Government Perilled.

Failure of public schools to give religious instruction will "eventually cause the downfall of our Government," the proponents of the resolution said.

The encampment went on record as opposing abandonment of the Veterans Hospital at Fort Bayard, N. Mex.

It was decided that in the future services held in Arlington Cemetery in commemoration of the sinking of the battleship Maine will be in charge of the U. S. W. V. national officers instead of the Washington camps of the organization.

Indorsement was given a proposal that the United States and Cuba join in erecting a memorial in Tampa, Fla., commemorating the Spanish-American War heroes. The veterans also voted to donate $1,000 toward the building of a chapel at the Walter Reed Government Hospital in Washington, D. C.

A resolution to pass unanimously was one favoring the preservation of Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia, as a memorial.

Cuban Move Planned.

Indications were that friends of absolute Cuban sovereignty would make an effort during the final session to put the encampment on record as favoring the repeal of the Platt amendment, characterized as the last strings the United States have on Cuba. It would give supervision of Cuban finances to the United States. A resolution favoring repealing the amendment was introduced in the closing session of the encampment in Havana last year.

Other elections were:

Senior vice commander in chief, Robert Mankowski, of Los Angeles, over Frank Shea, department of Connecticut, and E. W. Simmons, of Wisconsin.

Surgeon general, H. L. Davis, Rockford, Ill., elected without opposition.

Chaplain Is Selected.

Chaplain in chief, Roy B. Parcel, of Ferndale, Wash., over Thomas H. Derrick, of Massachusetts.

Mary E. Craig, of Denver, was elected national president of the Spanish-American war nurses at a business meeting of that organization.

Other officers chosen are Mary Kennedy Morrison, California, secretary; Margaret Thompson Howe, Washington, D. C., treasurer; Helen B. Schuler, New York, correspondent; Eliza A. B. Jones, Illinois, chaplain, and ten vice presidents, Eva T. Green, Virginia; Esther B. Hasson, Washington, D. C.; Mary E. Buckley, Ohio; Mary D. McDonald, Illinois; Elizabeth McCoy, Ohio; Kitty E. Doxsee, Florida; Hannah M. Waddell, Illinois; Elizabeth Hewitt, Massachusetts; Laura Beerott, Arizona, and Bertha C. Holland, California.

Oregon Forest Fires Take Critical Turns

Eugene, Oreg., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Settlements were snuffed out, communication was disrupted and thousands of acres of burnt over lands and forests were destroyed as the forest fire situation took a disastrous turn in this vicinity today.

West Lane County was the hardest hit, but eastern and southern sections of the county reported various fires with new blazes reported in the Walterville district. The Triangle Lake-Greenleaf fire had reached enormous proportions today and was taking a large loss in property.

German Government Foils Plot by Arrests

Berlin, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A conspiracy of terror against the German republic, organized by Nationalist fanatics who are members of the notorious "Consul" organization founded by the former naval captain, Ehrhardt, it is believed, has been unearthed by the police.

Twenty men implicated in recent bomb outrages in various parts of Germany, including the attempt against the Reichstag buildings, have been arrested.

PRESIDENT'S CUP RACE CHIEFS

REGATTA ENTRANTS PLAN SPEED TESTS

Owners to Take Craft Out on Potomac; Races Will Start Tomorrow.

EVENT LASTS TWO DAYS

Many of the entrants in the President's Cup regatta, which will hold sway on the Potomac River tomorrow and Saturday afternoons, will test their speedboats today in anticipation of the opening of the races at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. All arrangements have been made for the opening, Commodore Conrad C. Smith, of the Chesapeake and Potomac Power Boat Association and general chairman of the regatta committee, said last night.

Officials of the power boat association expressed the belief that the regatta will eclipse any water sports event ever held at Washington. Ticket sales have been rapid, and the grandstands along the Speedway are expected to be filled on both days. Vice Commodore William C. Shelton is chairman of the reception committee and in charge of seat sales.

Lieut. Comdr. Stephen S. Yeandle, assistant to Commodore Shelton, chairman of the reception committee, arrived in Washington yesterday from New York, where he is detailed. Yeandle, as Coast Guard representative at many regattas, has scores of friends among the yachtsmen.

Coast Guard boats which will patrol the course started for Washington yesterday from their various stations and all will have arrived by tonight. Admiral F. C. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, is chairman of the patrol committee, with Commander C. G. Jones as assistant chairman.

Irate Husband Sues Sect Members for $200,000

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A suit for $200,000 damages, alleging alienation of his wife's affections by twelve Pennsylvania Mennonites through his excommunication from that church, is being brought by Aden Shank, of this city, formerly of Zullinger, near Waynesboro, Pa.

William L. Beesley, attorney for Shank, said that Shank's refusal to accede to demands on leaders of the Mennonite sect that he rid himself of corporation stocks, some of which he inherited from his father, was the cause of his excommunication. The decree forbads any member of the sect from associating or eating with him and from maintaining any sort of family relationship.

VESSEL IS FEARED LOST IN LAKE GALE

Boat 36 Hours Overdue; Hope Wanes for 25 Men in Crew.

ISLAND SEARCH STARTS

Chicago, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—With the gravel carrier ship Andaste out of Grand Haven, Mich., 35 hours overdue at its Chicago river dock at 8 o'clock tonight, fear was expressed that the 25 members of the crew may have perished in the storm which swept Lake Michigan Tuesday.

The Andaste cleared Grand Haven at 9:30 p. m. Monday and was due in Chicago at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

No word of the ship's fate had been received tonight at the offices of the Construction Materials Co., consignees of the cargo, nor by the Coast Guard station at the mouth of the river.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A search among the Apostle Islands today revealed no trace of the Canadian tug A. B. Commee or its raft of pulpwood, missing since a storm on Lake Superior last week.

Mariners in this district were of the opinion, however, that the tug found shelter in some cove along the south shore inasmuch as no pulpwood had drifted to the shore.

The tug and its $100,000 cargo left Port Arthur a week ago bound for Ashland. If the tug is among the islands here it is believed its captain would not try to get through the treacherous channels during the present high winds.

14 Reported Drowned In Dutch River Crash

Flushing, Holland, Sept. 11 (A.P.). Fourteen seamen were believed to have been drowned today when the Belgian steamer Estella collided with the German steamer Indria in the River Scheldt, near Walscorden, Holland, during a fog.

The Estella was reported to have sunk, with only two of her crew rescued.

Woman Falls in Trolley.

While attempting to change her seat on a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car, which was in motion at Fifth and G streets northwest, yesterday, Mrs. Jessie Nelson, 61 years old, of 203 D street northeast, fell and was severely injured. A passing motorist took her to Emergency Hospital where she was treated for a fractured right wrist and bruises.

Mrs. Frederic A. Keep, who was with her sister, Miss Mabel Boardman, at Murray Bay, Canada, for most of the summer, is now the guest of another sister, Mrs. W. Murray Crane, at Sugar Hills, Dalton, Mass.

Lieut. James Leitch Grier, who is visiting his parents, Col. and Mrs. H. T. Grier, at the Army War College, will leave town the last of this week for Fort Benning, Ga. He has been assigned to the Twenty-ninth Infantry.

The newly appointed Secretary of the Italian Embassy, Signor Carlo Andres Soardi, who arrived in this country a few days ago, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Signor Soardi has come to fill the vacancy made by the departure of Count Macchi di Cellera.

Miss Elena de Sayn has as her guest Mrs. R. S. Carroll, of Asheville, N. C. Mrs. Carroll is an accomplished pianist who prior to her marriage made a concert tour of this country and appeared as a soloist with orchestras here and abroad.

The Commercial Attache of the Egyptian Legation, Mr. A. F. El-Essy, was among those lunching at the Carlton Hotel yesterday. Others were Mr. Sharawi, Mr. C. P. Lukens, Mrs. William Lewis, Mrs. John W. Price, jr., Dr. H. H. Schoenfeld and Miss Edyth M. O'Connor, who entertained a party of nine.

Mr. Ralph Richards Motors in Maine.

Accompanied by his younger daughter, Miss Jeanne Richards, Mr. Ralph Richards is on a motor trip to Maine to visit relatives. Mrs. Richards is at present in Atlantic City with Miss Betty Richards and Miss Caroline Magee. Mr. Richards returned about ten days ago from Venezuela, where he has been for the last two years in charge of the Standard Oil interests in that country. Mrs. Richards and their daughters spent some time in Caracas with him.

Mrs. Edward B. Finney has returned to her home in Edmunds street, after two months' stay in the West. She visited the Grand Canyon and Zion and Bryce National Parks.

The engagement of Miss Cornelia Ward Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Geneva, N. Y., to Mr. Alfred Mahan, of New York City, grandson of Admiral Mahan and a graduate of Yale in 1927, is announced. The wedding date has not been set.

Miss Grant is the granddaughter of the late Mr. James Grant and Lady Grant, of Ottawa, and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hall, of New York. She studied at Miss Hall's School, New York, and at Miss Medeira's School, Washington. She has been passing the summer at the home of her parents in Geneva.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Du Wayne Clark are sailing from New York today on the President Roosevelt for England, preparatory to going to Johannesburg, South Africa, where the former will assume his duties as assistant trade commissioner for the Department of Commerce. Mrs. Clark was before her marriage Miss Julie Hume, daughter of Mrs. Rawlins Hume.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Hugh C. Smith, who have been abroad for some time, will arrive in New York on the S. S. America September 21 and will come directly to Washington. Mr. Hale Austin Smith is with them.

Col. and Mrs. James Blythe have returned to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after passing ten days visiting on Long Island and in New York.

Mrs. Charles Selden and her daughter, Miss Mary Selden, have returned to Washington after having spent some time with their former's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Packham, at Easthampton, L. I. Before that they had been staying at Naragansett Pier, and Watch Hill, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Larner have returned to Washington for a few days and are staying at the Mayflower. They will go back to their summer home in Mifflintown, Pa., for another short visit before coming back to Washington for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Gest Leave for Cuba Soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gest will close their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel Saturday and will go to Philadelphia for a short visit. They will sail from New York October 5 for Havana, where Mr. Gest has been appointed vice consul. Mr. Gest has been at the State Department studying and this is his first appointment.

Miss L. M. Roberts has returned to her home at the Potomac Park Apartments from a vacation spent in Lowville, N. Y.

The First Secretary of the Persian Legation, Mr. Hashem Nourzad, who has been on a vacation in New York and Atlantic City, has returned to Washington.

Enright Aspires To Mayor's Post

Former Police Official of New York Promises to Clean Up City.

New York, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In the role of leader of the vigilantes of 1929, Richard E. Enright, former commissioner of police, art critic, private detective and the holder of thirteen foreign decorations, including the Order of the Sun of Peru, today threw his hat into the mayoralty ring, and in stirring tones declared to a committee from the Square Deal Party, still of mysterious origin:

"You have asked me to run for mayor of New York on the Square Deal Party ticket. I will accept the distinguished honor, if nominated. I will rid this town of the grafters and Tammany man parasites who are spending the taxpayers' money like inebriated men of the sea.

"I will clean up the disgraceful conditions in New York City where, with the genius in the city hall doing nothing about it, demoralization has flourished like a green bay tree."

Canadian Officers Seize Freight Car of Liquor

Windsor, Ontario, Sept. 11 (A.P.). A freight car loaded with 70,000 bottles of beer and whisky was seized by Canadian customs officers in the Michigan Central Railroad yards here shortly before noon today.

The liquor, cleverly concealed in bales of waste paper, was believed to have been sent from London, Ontario, or St. Thomas. Customs officers declined to name the consignee.

English Physicians Are Discarding Spats

Manchester, England, Sept. 11 (A.P.). Spats are becoming unpopular among well-dressed Englishmen. Among the hundreds of doctors who attended the meeting here of the British Medical Association hardly a handful wore spats.

Nearly all of them, however, wore dark suits and high-stiff collars despite the summer heat.

Dogs Put on Trail Of "Pants Burglar"

Staten Island Police Fail, Despite Canine Aids, to Find Pilferer.

New York, Sept. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Staten Island's much-sought "pants burglar" was out again early today—and into the trousers pockets of another unfortunate householder.

Twenty-five police dogs, 25 policemen to lead the dogs, dozens of detectives and all the patrolmen on the island were hunting for the burglar as he worked. The dogs had gone out Tuesday night with a great flourish in their limousines from the new Dorp Police Station. Staten Islanders dug their heads into the pillows and slept in peace.

Then this morning Louis Spamer, contractor and builder, excitedly telephoned police that the "pants burglar" had visited his home in Westerleigh, and stolen $68 from his trouser pockets.

Behind the Screens

With DON B. REED

Even though the silent films are making their "final gasp" as some of the critics insist, that gasp is loud and long and somewhat along the lines of a healthy roar according to the management of the Little Theater, where "The Passions of Joan of Arc," a French silent drama is doing great business. Many letters have been received by the backers of the Little Theater complimenting them upon their decision to show silent features while the music accompanying the films there also has been the subject of considerable praise in the messages. All of which makes the Theater Guild members happy. And I didn't notice any letup in the line of standees at the Palace because nobody talks in "Our Modern Maidens."

News column reports that Janet Gaynor, star of "Seventh Heaven," along with Charles Farrell, was married yesterday in San Francisco to Lydell Peck, prominent attorney, will not detract from the public interest in her new picture "4 Devils" at the Fox beginning Saturday. Mr. Farrell, so I am informed, is making an extensive tour of the East and efforts are being made to have him make a personal appearance in the Capital. Young Farrell's heart is said to have been badly bent by Miss Gaynor's attentions to Mr. Peck but being young, handsome and full of vim and vigor, he will probably recover and live to a ripe old age—at least long enough to give the F street crowd a treat soon.

From Fox Movietone headquarters on the West Coast comes a magnificent "bottled in bond" invitation from William Fox to attend the dedication of The Hall of Music, Fox Movietone Studio, Fox Hills, Los Angeles on Sunday, September 22, at 3 o'clock. Now Bill, if you had only inclosed a check covering expenses I might have taken you up on that invite.

In case you are interested, there will be four new shows beginning Saturday while three of the seven theaters along the Capital's great white way will retain their present features. The hold-overs are "Say it With Songs" starring Al Jolson at the Metropolitan; "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" with Warner Oland at the Columbia, and "The Passions of Joan of Arc" in which Mlle. Maria Falconetti is starred. For those seeking something new, the Palace offers "The Unholy Night" with Roland Young, Dorothy Sebastian and Ernest Torrence and on the stage the "Velvet Revue" with Deagon and Cannefax. Janet Gaynor and an excellent supporting cast will present "4 Devils" as the Fox film feature while the stage show will consist of the first Fanchon-Marco "Idea" called "Sweethearts" with John Irving Fisher as master of ceremonies. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Loretta Young are costarred in "Fast Life" at the Earle with the orchestra there offering the second of the series of "International Overtures." Down on Ninth street at Carl Laemmle's Rialto, "College Love" will be the attraction, featuring the young comedians who starred in a series of short subjects called "The Collegians." All of the new films, I believe, are talkies.

Al Evans is going to "tickle the ivories" at the Palace beginning Saturday. If he plays as well as he sings "You know me, Al!" Now if I could only figure out some way to get Evans and Fisher on the same stage with two pianos, maybe I'd be happy.

United Artists, the Joseph M. Schenck organization, will invade Washington soon with three pictures which promise to be considerably above ordinary. And the outfit has adopted a new method of putting across advance stuff on its releases. A personal representative now drops in on the movie critics, leaving pictures and literature instead of sending such matter through the mail as in the past. However, one more visitor a day won't make any difference. The films in mind are "The Trespasser" in which Gloria Swanson makes her talking and singing debut, supported by Robert Ames, Henry B. Walthall and others; "The Locked Door" with Rod LaRocque, Barbara Stanwyck, William Boyd (of the stage) and Betty Bronson, the story being taken from the stage play "The Sign on the Door" and "Three Live Ghosts" from the stage play of the same name. No dates for Capital showings have as yet been announced.

I wonder what the world series news reel men will do without Babe Ruth giving away autographed baseballs and hitting home runs.

Sudden need for extra help can be met by an ad in the classified columns of The Washington Post.

IN THE PLAY HOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY.

Just when the old town was getting all het up over promises of another rip-roaring musical comedy, "The Street Singer," scheduled for Poli's next week, word comes that the engagement is called off. These last minute cancellations cause all sorts of confusion. Mr. Bonneville, the manager of Poli's, must make other plans for next week. His house dark, he can go fishing again, or, to the races. It's too late now to get another attraction. Over in Baltimore, at the Mayland, Leonard McLaughlin, the manager, claims "The Street Singer" just about what the doctor ordered. It opened in Atlantic City during the early summer, and is now on its way to New York—with Guy Robertson, Nell Kelly and Andrew Tombes in the cast.

• • • •

Howsomever, Poli's is proud of the fact that it has the only big league show in town—"Luckee Girl," which Don Reed, the demon reviewer, labels a top-notcher, if for only one reason, Billy House. It seems this William House is a house afire. He has a physiog not unlike Balieff, the Russian clown, intimately associated with the Chauve Souris. Then, again, some say Billy House looks like a big Billiken. Others, that he has the earmarks of Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas. It may be that Mr. House resembles Senator Smoot. Possibly he is Lon Chaney in disguise. At any rate, he is making a name for himself here on the banks of the Potomac, where comedians are confined, usually, to the congressional halls.

• • • •

Though Poli's is out of the running next week the National steps to the fore with its first play of the season—"The Front Page." This is the drama of newspaper life that took little old New York by storm the beginning of last season. It was just about this time that word spread among the newspaper fraternity, saying Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht had pinioned their fellow craftsmen to the canvas and had taken their pictures. In the old days, when the newspaper profession was the source of many a good yarn, some rattling pieces of literature came out of the ranks; but none to compare with "The Front Page." As a play, it seems to have topped all others dealing with the same subject. If there are some characters and language in it that belittle a grand old game, be it known here and now that all newspaper men are not Washington correspondents. When a nobler play is written on the Fourth Estate the Nation's Capital naturally, will serve as the locale. "The Front Page" is Chicago journalism run wild.

• • • •

Gilbert Miller, son of the late Henry Miller, and head of the House of Frohman, has the honor of turning on the lights in the Belasco Theater, opening the new season. On Monday night Mr. Miller will present Gertrude Lawrence, supported by an all-English cast, in "Candlelight," a play that is now engaging the attention of dear old London. It is from the German of Siegfried Geyas, translated by P. G. Wodehouse. The first American presentation will be here in Washington, though it was originally scheduled last week in Philadelphia. After that, one week in Baltimore and then on to Broadway.

So, the season starts.

Frigidaire offers

greater beauty · · enclosed mechanical parts · · low operating cost · · low prices · · and the "Cold Control" for quicker freezing of ice cubes and desserts

The Frigidaire "Cold Control" has introduced a new standard in electric refrigeration. It is as important as a gas regulator on an oven.

TODAY Frigidaire embodies a standard of design and renders a service that can not be duplicated by any other electric refrigerator or type of refrigeration. It is beautiful, simple, practical. Every mechanical part is enclosed, out of sight, away from dust and dirt. The sturdy steel cabinet is lined with seamless Porcelain-on-steel with rounded corners, lustrous white . . . easy to clean. The waist-high shelves make stooping unnecessary.

And Frigidaire's extra-powerful mechanism meets the heaviest demands for refrigeration easily . . . at low cost. It has the power to keep food well below 50° no matter how hot the weather or how warm your kitchen. And it is incredibly quiet. You don't hear it start, stop, or run.

In addition, Frigidaire gives you the patented Frigidaire "Cold Control" for faster freezing of ice cubes, salads and desserts. You have six different freezing speeds that you can use at will. And the self-sealing Frigidaire ice trays retain the cold and speed the freezing process still further.

These and other important features have caused more Frigidaires to be bought than all other electric refrigerators combined. And, as a result, you can now buy the new Frigidaire . . . with all its improvements . . . at the lowest prices ever offered. Let us give you complete information about the new Frigidaire and the liberal monthly terms. Have a demonstration. Visit our showroom . . . today.

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story

By JULIE ANNE MOORE.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR.

It was a new Robert Henley Calkman 3d who waited opposite the shop gate Wednesday evening. Mary Della detected the change immediately. He was standing by the yellow roadster, talking to George MacKray, who was just getting out of the car. The thin line had gone from the middle of his forehead and there was no less laughter in his eyes than on his lips. The conference, apparently, held no terrors for Robert. He was plainly in high spirits.

Robert met Mary Della as she crossed the street and took her arm.

"Golly!" exclaimed Mary Della. "You look all pepped up, Bob. Had a shot of something?"

"I've had a shot of the most powerful stimulant known to science," Bob replied happily. "It is commonly known as love."

George MacKray had jumped out of the car as they approached, and he now bowed profoundly before them. "Behold the leading lady of 'The Clock Shop Clock' and the handsome hero of a thousand gridiron battles," he teased. "Miss Chubb, I am annihilated."

"Mary Della's the name," she replied quickly. "How are you Mr.——"

"George is the appurtenance. Considering the possibility that we may all die on the same gallows, it's high time we were getting acquainted."

"He isn't intoxicated, Mary Della," Robert explained seriously. "He was born that way. . . . You're elected to drive, George."

"I might have known it," George declared with affected disappointment. "The first time I get an opportunity to expound my virtues to Mary Della, you put me to work so I can't talk." He waited until Mary Della and Robert were seated, then went around and took the wheel.

"I neglected to tell you, Mary Della," Robert said a few minutes later, "that George is to be best man."

Mary Della caught her breath sharply. "Oh," she exclaimed. "Is somebody going to be married?" Hadn't he heard? Had the Marabee girl jilted him without even telling him that she was eloping with another man?

"Why, I am, of course," Robert replied easily. "Didn't you know?"

"Yes, but——"

They drove across Bank street and picked their way through the heavy evening traffic past the postoffice.

"Yes," Robert went on, "George is to be best man, and my father and mother are coming out from Detroit. All that remains to be done now is to decide on a date."

"That's important," said Mary Della weakly. She asked herself if she ought to tell him about the account of the Marabee girl's marriage in the paper the night before. "I suppose it will be after you graduate," she suggested for lack of anything better to say.

George found a vacant space at the west end of the city hall and backed the roadster into it. For no reason at all, George was wearing a broad smile that wouldn't go off.

"After graduation, of course," Robert agreed. "Sometime in June, I hope. But the engagement will have to be announced within the next few days, I suppose."

"But——" they were entering the police station and Lieut. McMullen was coming to meet them—"but the engagement's been announced already," Mary Della whispered quickly. "You don't have to announce it again."

Lieut. McMullen shook hands with each of them, and led the way to the room where Mary Della and the C. E. had been treated to an introduction to 'Snake' Womain two nights before.

They had just sat down about a long table when the C. E. came in, bowed to the group, and pulled up another chair.

The conference, a little more formal than was necessary, got under way immediately. The C. E. gave a brief summary of his activity in finding Robert and, later, Mary Della, and suggested that Robert tell his story first.

Robert went over the significant events of the night on which Salla Hicks was murdered, frequently turning to Mary Della, who sat by him, to corroborate some statement concerning their participation in the tragedy.

Occasionally Lieut. McMullen interrupted to ask for more specific information and made notes now and then on a pad before him.

"I don't believe there's anything more," Robert said at last. "I haven't touched upon what occurred during the several minutes that I was unconscious, because Miss Chubb knows a good deal more about that period than I do."

Mary Della anticipated the detective's question. "If you don't mind," she said, "I'll tell you something else first. I haven't said anything about it before, but it ought to mean something. It's just this: I saw the Red Mask again last Saturday night."

Everyone else in the room sat up suddenly and turned amazed eyes on Mary Della.

"You . . . what?" Robert cried, unable to believe his ears.

"I saw the Red Mask again. He sneaked into my house——"

"Good Lord!" the C. E. exclaimed. "In your house?"

"Nowhere else. I'd been to the dance at the park with Timmy Fitzmoan and got back home before 12 o'clock. We stood on the landing and talked for a little while, and when I went in it must of been a little after midnight. I couldn't sleep for some reason, so I sat down in the living room. And then I heard something on the landing outside the door and——"

"What did you hear?" asked the detective.

"Oh, I don't know. It might have been a floor board creaking. They do that in our house. But I heard it several times, and after a while I took off my shoes and went over to the door.

"I was sure somebody was on the landing, so I went back to the table, turned the light out, disconnected the cord, shoved the shade off and sneaked back to the door with the lamp in my hand. It's a heavy affair and I figured if I ever hit anybody with it, there'd be a funeral. * * *"

George MacKray suddenly burst out laughing. But, seeing that he was making a spectacle of himself, he sobered quickly.

"And what then?" the detective urged impatiently.

"Well, I heard the doorknob turning and the next thing I knew a light shot across the room and somebody was coming in. * * *"

George MacKray was no longer laughing. He was leaning forward, his hands clutching the arms of his chair, his body tense.

"I raised the lamp over my head," Mary Della continued, "and waited. From the glow of the flashlight I could make out a squint of his face. And then he turned just enough for me to see a corner of a red mask, and I let go. * * *"

"You mean you screamed?" asked the detective.

"Be your age," said Mary Della. "I said I let go. Let go the lamp, brother. He ker-flopped like that, cold. I picked up the flash and was stooping over to pull the mask off his eyes when his hand closed around my leg. I lost my nerve then and toppled over him in a dead faint. When I come to he had made his exit and I was stretched out on the floor. * * * Now, you want to know about that night on the Cheshire road? * * *"

"Not so fast, Miss Chubb," Lieut. McMullen said gruffly. "What you've just told us is of first-rate importance if you only realized it. It fits in with something we already know and suggests to me that the Red Mask knows you wrote the original note to the super. You see, that's the second time he's appeared since the murder. Both times you are present."

"I hope I'm not under suspicion," Mary Della smiled. "But if you call that little act at the armory during the policemen's ball an appearance, I think you're wrong."

"You saw him at the armory, didn't you?" the detective asked.

"I saw whoever it was that turned a flashlight on himself in the balcony when the lights went out," Mary Della admitted. "But it wasn't the same fellow I saw on the Cheshire road and again in my house Saturday night."

"How do you know?"

"Well, the fellow that wore the red mask in the armory must have weighed a good deal less, for one thing. We couldn't see anything but his face, you know, but his face was thin. And then, too, it had some color in it."

"What do you mean by that?" asked the detective. "Didn't the Cheshire road red mask have any color?"

"Not a drop," Mary Della declared, emphatically. "I can't describe it very well, but it was so white you wouldn't forget it in a hurry."

"Sounds like a victim of anemia," said the detective.

"Or dropsy," suggested Robert.

"Sounds like Santa Claus with too much powder on to me," George offered, and ducked an imaginary blow from Robert.

Lieut. McMullen tapped the table idly with the end of his pencil.

"Let's see, now," he said. "Could it have gotten around that you wrote the note about the murder, Miss Chubb?"

"No," said Mary Della, positively. "At least, not before yesterday. An old flame of mine figured it out for himself and told one of the girls at the shop. And he tipped the superintendant off, too. You know about that."

"Oh, Speaks, you mean. By the way where was Speaks the night you and Mr. Calkman parked on the Cheshire road?"

"Playing craps," Mary Della replied frankly. "Shooting craps, I should have said. Anyhow he said that's what he was doing. You see, I had a date with Joe Speaks that night in front of the postoffice and he didn't show up. And then Mr. Calkman came along, tried to run over me, and finally took me in his car and went for a ride instead."

She glanced quickly at Robert and saw that he was smiling at her version of their first meeting. George MacKray was shaking a finger of admonition at Robert and trying to look severe.

"And you don't know where Speaks was except that he told you he was shooting craps? . . . That's interesting. And was Speaks in the armory the night of the policemen's ball."

"He was, but he was out taking a smoke when the fellow appeared with the red mask in the balcony."

"And do you know he was out taking a smoke; or is that what he told you?"

"That's what he told me," Mary Della confessed. "Joe and Timmy Fitzmoan both went out to smoke and while they were out the red mask act went on. But I tell you that fellow wasn't the real Red Mask. He was somebody getting funny."

"We've considered that," said the detective. "I'm merely checking every possibility. But let's follow this on out. Where was Speaks Saturday night when you had your masked visitor?"

"That's where your theory breaks down," said Mary Della. "Have you forgotten you had him in a cell downstairs?"

"Oh, of course, I'd forgotton that. But to go to the end of the line, when did you see Speaks last?"

"Saturday night," Mary Della answered, "at the dance."

"And you haven't heard from him since?"

"No, not from him. But I've heard of him: I told you he spilled the beans to one of the girls at the shop. That girl told me what he'd said. And he said plenty."

"Can you tell us what he said?" asked McMullen.

"I can, but it doesn't amount to much. He just tried to put the spikes to me, that's all. The girl told him she thought he was lying and said she'd ask me to my face if it was so that I wrote that note. And he said that suited him, and if I told her I did write it he'd expect her to——"

Something clicked in Mary Della's brain just then. She suddenly remembered just what Joe had said to Olga Svenson and it assumed an unexpected importance after the rapid calculations of the detective. Olga had told Joe she would go to ride with him tonight if she found he had told her the truth. Even at this very moment Olga was probably in his car. Perhaps——

Mary Della got out of her chair in a flash.

"Listen to me," she cried at the detective. "I can't explain what it's all about now, but I've just thought of something that may mean life and death——"

"But what——"

"Please don't ask questions now. Come on. Quick! We've got to go to a house on West Main street. We may get there before they leave. Hurry!"

"But Speaks can't be the Red Mask," Lieut. McMullen hesitated.

"Come on," Robert called, following Mary Della through the door. "If she says it's important, it is. Have you got a bigger car than mine downstairs?"

"Sure," said the detective, suddenly agile. "Go out the back way."

Four Key Paintings Willed to Gallery

Portraits of National Anthem Writer Bequeathed by His Granddaughter.

Four portraits of members of the family of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," have been willed to the National Gallery of Art by Mary Lloyd Pendleton Abney, of New York, the patriot's granddaughter, it was learned yesterday. The portraits were painted by Peter Lilly and Gottfried Kneller.

The National Gallery also is to be the recipient, according to the information received by The Post, of two chairs used by Key and other antiques.

The residuary estate and personal bequests of an undetermined nature, the petition for probate provided, are to go to Jane F. Price, of Washington, a sister of the donor. Mrs. Abney died in New York on July 30.

Dr. C. W. Richardson Left $737,358 Estate

Dr. Charles W. Richardson, widely known throat specialist, who died August 23, left an estate valued at $737,358, according to the petition of Mrs. Amy Small Richardson, the widow, for the probate of his will. She is the sole heir.

Real estate valued at $266,633 and personal property estimated at $470,725 comprise the estate. The widow is represented by Attorney Charles H. Merillat.

Transmission Over KDKA Early in 1930

Built by Westinghouse and Will Have Latest Developments in Radio Field; Same to Receive Their First Tests.

Work on the new transmitting station of KDKA near Saxonburg, Pa., will begin soon. The transmitter itself is now under construction, but final details of the building are still to be worked out and the contract let.

The first broadcasts from the new station will be early in 1930, it is predicted. This will be the second big transmitter move of the pioneer station since it began broadcasting in 1920. The first was from the East Pittsburgh works to the present site, one mile from the works.

Westinghouse officials are reluctant about predicting the value of their radio equipment because of the fact that their own men built it, thus reducing the cost, and because experiments now being carried on may alter their plans and add materially to the final expense. It is known, however, that the station will embody the latest developments in the radio field, some of which have yet to receive their first test in actual use.

The new building is located a mile from Saxonburg on the road to Butler. The site was chosen only after extensive surveys and tests. Important among the reasons for the choice were the location on an elevated, rolling land, the presence of ground water near the surface, and the fact that no big industrial sections are nearby.

The building which will house the transmitter will be one-story high in front with a deep basement which will be above the ground level in the rear. It will be similar to the building being erected for KYW in Chicago.

Originally 80 acres were purchased for the station site, but Westinghouse had just added 40 acres adjoining so that 120 acres of land are available for future development.

One of the interesting features of the new transmitter will be its use of the recently developed high-power tube. Although this tube has a nominal rating of 100,000 watts it actually has developed nearly 200,000. To allow for any desired signal strength and give the necessary margin of power required for modulation and make possible experimental work, the transmitter is designed to use six of the tubes.

The antenna of the new station will be of a type which will best carry out new ideas in transmission which are contemplated. Eight 110-foot cedar poles will be used, thus doing away with the absorption present when steel towers are used.

Power for the new stations will be obtained by tapping to different substations of the West Penn Power Co. This will assure a continuous service, for the possibility of both lines being put out of commission at the same time is remote.

An artificial pond 100 feet wide and 200 feet long will be constructed to provide a constant supply of soft water for the cooling tubes. This is essential as the tubes have water-cooled grids and the use of water with mineral content would shorten their life and lower their efficiency. Sufficient water will be stored in the pond for the dryest season.

Permission to broadcast the World's Series baseball games between pennant winners in the American and National Leagues has been granted the National Broadcasting Co. by Judge K. M. Landis, czar of organized baseball.

Present major league records indicate that the series this year will be between the Philadelphia American League team and the Chicago National Leaguers. In this event the games will be picked up from Philadelphia and Chicago and will be broadcast through a coast-to-coast network of stations.

Graham McNamee, who has described world series' games ever since they were broadcast, will be at the microphone for the games and will be assisted by announcers to be named at a later date.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 12 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a. m to 1 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Hours of intense activity are predicted for this date, with commensurate results in a business way. There may be probable disappointments in social and domestic affairs. Surprises are in order.

The child born on this September 12 will soon establish itself in the hearts of those about it by reason of its inherent charm. It will possess a remarkably generous, open, frank and ingenuous nature, and one that is liable to many assaults of fortune on that account.

You have an aspiring and ambitious nature, capable of great achievements where patience and endurance are the means of attainment. Determination, stability and an inflexible will tend to the production of an inherently strong character, at times impulsive and even volcanic, but consistent and of set purpose. When there is a principle at stake, you stand to your guns and carry the issue to the last ditch. Nature has contributed grace and geniality to your disposition and in spite of your positive and decided characteristics, you are not brusque or austere. You are generous in victory and gracious in need.

Neither your financial nor domestic affairs are likely to prove all that could be desired. You will not escape the machinations of insidious enemies, who either envy you, or are jealous for unaccountable reasons. You have too much common-sense, too much strength of character and too many wits to allow trivial worries to leave their scar.

Your nature is far too complex to hope for entire compatibility in marriage, although you will be devoted and loyal to your chosen partner. You are extremely fond of children, and every child finds in you a friend and playmate.

Successful people born September 12:

James Hall—paleontologist.
Elias P. Needham—inventor.
Richard J. Gatling—gun inventor.
Charles Dudley Warner—journalist and author.
Charles W. Super—educator.
Lord Oxford—former English prime minister.

2 Broadway Headliners on Air Tonight

Grace Hayes and Walter Winchell on WRC at 7; McNamee Returns; Ben Alley on WMAL as Also Show Boat; Whistling.

Two of Broadway's headliner's, one of them an established radio favorite, the other making his debut over the air for the first time, are the featured guest artists on the second of the new Fleischman "Sunshine" hours which will be heard at 7 o'clock from WEAF and 46 affiliated stations, including WRC.

Grace Hayes, singing comedienne, and late star of such musical comedy successes as "The Passing Show," "Rainbows" and others, will sing four numbers which she has made nationally famous through her radio and vaudeville engagements. These are "With a Song in My Heart," "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," "Pagan Love Song" and "Can't We Be Friends?"

Appearing with Miss Hayes will be Walter Winchell, famous Broadwayite and dramatic critic. Once again Ben Pollock's orchestra makes a large contribution to the Fleischmann hour with a selection of peppy dance numbers and some of the outstanding ballads of the day, among them "Baby, Where Can You Be?" "I Fell in Love With You," "Album of Dreams" and "At the End of the Road."

Graham McNamee, who has been absent from New York, "covering" the sandlot "world series" in the South, will entertain radio listeners with a graphic account of the struggle for supremacy between the leading teams.

The Seberling Singers will return to the air at 8 o'clock to broadcast the vocal and instrumental story of their musical triumphs abroad. For the past nine weeks the quartet has been entertaining concert audiences in London, Paris and Berlin.

Eugene Ormandy, Hungarian conductor, will wield the baton before the orchestra during the broadcast of Jack Frost melody moments at 8:30 o'clock. Ormandy, as violinist, and Oliver Smith, tenor, will be heard together presenting hits from the works of Victor Herbert.

What the well-advised man will do with his money will be told by the "Old Counsellor," financial expert, who talks during the Halsey, Stuart program at 9 o'clock.

A Victor program will be broadcast at 9:30 o'clock, followed by "Amos 'n' Andy."

"Andante" from Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony," the tone painting "Marche Militaire," by Saint-Saens and the semireligious "Consolation," by Franz Liszt, are among the favorite concert classics which Ludwig Laurier will present during slumber music at 10:15 o'clock.

Phil Spitaluy's Orchestra has arranged to play "On the Road to Mandalay," "Same Old Moon," "There Was Nothing Else to Do," "Satisfied," "I'll Close My Eyes to the Rest of the World," "Chicago Rhythm," "Just You and Me," "By the Way," and "Running Wild."

Ben Alley, tenor, will be featured in the next presentation of "In the Dream Maker's Studio," over WMAL at 10:30 o'clock. In addition Marie Opfinger, soprano; the Columbia Mixed Quartet, and the Columbia Orchestra will also be heard.

Alley will sing "Let the Rest of the World Go By." Miss Opfinger has chosen Herbert's "Kis Me Again." The mixed quartet will be heard in "Moonbeams," "My Wild Irish Rose," and "Goodnight, Beloved, Goodnight."

"The Cape Cod Kid," by John J. Kennedy, will be presented by Hank Simmons' Show Boat from WMAL at 9:30 o'clock.

"Folsom's Red Thanksgiving" is the subject of the true detective mystery to be heard at 8 o'clock.

Terry White, the novelty whistler, will be heard in a brief recital from WOL at 6 o'clock. During the absence of Louis Rothschild, secretary of the Better Business Bureau of Washington, on a tour of speech-making that is taking him to the Pacific Coast, the weekly talks on "Sound Investments" from WOL will continue to be persented by other officers of the bureau.

Elsie Varle Lang, soprano, will be presented in recital through WOL at 6:30 o'clock.

"Parking With Peggy"

"A stenographer's speed often depends on whether the machine has a standard keyboard or four-wheel brakes."

Art Interprets the Mode

A garden of lovely nasturtium blossomed into this "Chaperon Roube," smart frock of crepe de chine flattered with pleated bands of same. (Courtesy of Madeleine de Hayes, Paris).

IN the collection of Wally Soeurs we note a charming means of obtaining the increased skirt length without the heavy appearance that sometimes goes with long skirts to our eyes, long accustomed to scanty ones.

The idea is simply to make bodice and skirt of gay printed chiffon—all except the bottom of the skirt. And here we find a band, 6 or 8 inches wide, of black chiffon.

If the skirt has panels or volants, the same black border is placed at the lower end.

The effect is smart and thoroughly in the mode, since wide edgings in contrasting tones have been very popular lately, and at the same time the plain color sets off to excellent advantage the design of the print.

* * * *

We speak of the idea here, simple as it may appear, because here is a stunt for the lovely lady who has an almost new dress from last year which she would like to lengthen without giving it a homemade, patchy look.

Nothing could be simpler. Place this black border neatly around the bottom of the hem, then use enough of the same black material elsewhere on the dress, according to your fancy, to make it all "hang together."

This may be done in a hundred and one ways—a belt or one of the new wide sashes in black, a piping around the neckline and yoke, scarf ends, a tiny jacquette—but your imagination will supply the rest!

* * * *

Clever Fingers Contest.

How do you know that you won't win a lovely fall ensemble or a dinner dress with or without sleeves, according to your own choice, or a Dahray negligee? These prizes, you know, will be given for the three best and cleverest things that clever fingers can do with very little money and just your own time, imagination and talent. Hurry! Contest open now, and will close shortly.

Madeleine de Hayes at her best is ever subtle—and unexpected. The nasturtium-colored crepe de chine frock, with its simple trimming, that I have illustrated for you today perfectly for people with high blood pressure—

* * * *

Everybody's doing it now, so why don't we give you a wee diet? This happens to be a specific reducing diet for people with high blood pressure—and, oh, so carefully compiled by our nice doctor. If you haven't "high pressure," clip this out and give it to some one who has—the diet not the blood pressure." So-o-o-o-o, for breakfast—see tomorrow!

* * * *

What color is and how to correctly use it—that is what you will learn in the illustrated leaflet for which you may send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post this week.

It took us years and years to figure this chart out, honestly—yet it is so simple it's almost silly, when you once do see it—better send for it!

* * * *

By the way, are you reading the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Post each Sunday? We're sure you'll enjoy it.

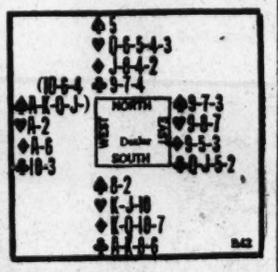
WORK ON BRIDGE

Bridge Brevities, a pamphlet by Milton C. Work, the world's pre-eminent authority on Auction and Contract Bridge, free. This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it. Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp) self-addressed return envelope. Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract. Everyday exclusively in The Post.

PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



I HELD the hopeless East hand in a game of Auction Bridge. South dealt and bid one No Trump, my partner bid two Spades, North and I passed, and South doubled (informatorily). My partner bid three Spades to shut out North's response, but only spurred North on to bid four Hearts. On the next round my partner bid four Spades which South doubled, ending the bidding. (In Contract South would have bid one No Trump or, if timid on account of the worthless doubleton, one of the miners; and West would have bid three, if bold four, Spades.)

North led his fourth best Heart which my partner won and he then led two rounds of Spades, exhausting the adversaries. Next he led his Ten of Clubs which South won. South then led the Jack of Hearts, which held the trick, and then the King of Diamonds because North's original lead showed that West had only two Hearts originally. My partner won this trick and led a second Club which South won and cashed his Queen of Diamonds; so we lost one Heart, one Diamond and two Clubs.

The Correct Play.

My partner should have seen how the hand would result if he played the way he did. His only chance for game lay in tricking South into ducking one Club trick.

After winning the first Heart he should have led his Ace of trumps, leaving two trumps in my hand, both of which he knew would be entries; next he should have led his Trey of Clubs—not his Ten. South, of course, would take the trick and lead another Heart; then if he shifted to Diamonds, West should win and lead a small trump, putting my hand in with the Nine to lead a small Club. If played in this way, it is quite possible that South, appreciating that my hand still had a trump entry, would duck for fear of making my remaining Club honor good and furnish West with a discard. Of course there is no certainty that the trick would work, but it was the only chance.

Stories of Invention.

IV. THE RADIO

MANY years ago, an author named Edward Bellamy wrote a book called "Looking Backwards." The hero was supposed to go to sleep. When he awoke in the future," he found that the human race had made great progress. One invention brought music into the home from far places.

When the book was written, people hardly dreamed that such a thing as the radio could come to be; but today the radio is everywhere.

Not only does the radio bring us music—it also brings us the spoken voice. There will come a time before long when homes all over the world will receive pictures by radio, as well as music and the voice. Trials have been made which prove that pictures —moving pictures—can be sent out by radio.

If we trace the history of the radio, we find that it goes back to other inventions—to the Morse telegraph, to the telephone, to the wireless telegraph, and to the wireless telephone.

How can sound be carried through the air without any wires for a distance of 1,000 miles?

Sound can be carried a short distance without the help of electricity. You speak and some one hears you 10 feet away. You shout, and your words may carry 1,000 feet—but to be understood a mile away, you would need a bellowing voice.

Words are usually carried by waves at the rate of a mile in about five seconds. If you could shout loudly enough to be heard across the Atlantic Ocean your voice would not reach Europe until four hours later.

Radio waves, on the other hand, travel across the Atlantic Ocean in a small fraction of a second. A man speaks into the microphone. His words are then turned into electric waves which travel at terrific speed. On the other side the electric waves are turned back to sound waves.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

HER poor husband owns and tries to run a smart family hotel. It is a pleasant place and people like to be there—for a while. Then trouble starts. The green-eyed monster starts rearing up on hind legs. The poor man vainly tries to explain that he must be pleasant and speak to people or they will think him uncivil. But no! The wife hunches her shoulders, and pounds her heels, and war is on its way.

Now here is the strangest part. That wife is prettier than any woman who ever came beneath her roof. The only way in which she is inferior is in behavior. Where they are gracious, poised, friendly, she is touchy, furtive, suspicious and belligerent. Her husband is years her senior and would be devoted if he were not constantly called upon to apologize for her behavior. She makes scenes, and scenes lead inevitably to the end of love.

Green-eyed ladies should marry some special race of men. Some extraordinary breed that would not feel it necessary to say good morning to a woman cash customer, nor engage in any conversation whatsoever except with friend wife.

Green-eyed ladies make themselves very unhappy quite needlessly, lose friends, get themselves pitied where they might have been admired, and in general gum up all the works. Why do they do it? Why does a woman deliberately interfere with and injure her husband's business? Why does she destroy his respect? Many a husband would be afraid to even think of giving his wife cause for jealousy if she did not proceed to show him that the most he has to fear is a pair of hunched shoulders at the table, a pair of pounding heels on the stairs, and a general exhibition of sullen silence.

Do such things help a woman's cause, even if her husband be guilty as charged? Even if he does deliberately seek the society of attractive women, does the wife strengthen her hold by staging endless scenes that are watched for and discussed and laughed at?

When women learn to reign in their glory, how little they will n to fear the casual interest their husbands know. At present they work so hard—and accomplish so little.

Poor green-eyed ladies sharpening the claws while their husbands wonder what it is all about.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RECIPES FOR CHIC PEAS.

GARBANZA chic pea or Idaho pea is a valuable food grown extensively in Mexico and used to a moderate extent in the United States. Gen. Obregon, of Mexico, was sometimes known as the Garbanza King because he had made a fortune dealing in this bean. The increasing demand for it may be due in part to the Mexican immigration, though it is said that the Mexicans grow and sell but do not eat garbanzas.

Miss Mitchell, of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, has made a study of the nutritive qualities of this food. She finds it rich in protein. This protein is of good quality, being on a par with that of soy beans, velvet beans, peanuts and field peas, and somewhat superior to that of cow peas, lima beans and navy beans and casein. As a source of vitamin B she pronounces garbanza as of high rabnk.

Since it is proposed to use bean flours and potato flours instead of grain flours and cereals for those who must live on an alkaline diet she studied the minerals in garbanza. She found this bean to be rich in potassium. When fed to animals it caused the urine to remain alkaline. Garbanza in this quality ranks with soy beans and lima beans and it stands higher than casein. The analyses and feeding experiments having proved the high quality of garbanza as a food the dietic department worked out the following recipes:

Garbanza savory soup: Two cups dry peas. Soak overnight. Add 1½ quarts water. Steam 20 hours. Twenty minutes before end of steaming period add ½ teaspoonful of salt, 1 onion, ¾ stalk celery. Rub through colander. Strain through fine strainer. Add 1½ teaspoons Savita or other yeast extract, 1½ tablespoons butter and enough water to make two quarts.

Garbanza and tomato stew: Two cups cooked garbanzas, 1 cup stewed tomatoes, 3 medium sized onions sliced, salt. Mix. Cook until thoroughly seasoned.

Garbanza loaf: Two cups dry garbanzas (cooked), 2 eggs, ½ tablespoon melted butter, ½ cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 cup garbanza broth, 3 tablespoons cream, onion, Savita or other yeast extract. Add sage to suit taste. Serve hot with white sauce or tomato sauce.

Garbanza croquettes: Three cups garbanzas, 1-3 cup condensed tomato, 2 tablespoons butter, 1¾ cups cornflakes, salt, Savita or other yeast extract. Cook garbanzas and put through a colander. Add other ingredients and cook well. Form in croquettes and bake. Serve with a sauce.

Cream of garbanza soup: One cup garbanzas, 2 tablespoons butter, 4½ cups milk. Cook peas in a small amount of water, add milk and butter, heat and serve.

Doubtless our Mexican friends could add to this list of garbanza dishes and recipes.

MAY STILL HAVE STONES.

F. A. B. writes: Several years ago, when 65 years old, I had kidney stones, and an operation was advised. My wife urged me to try drinking distilled water. I drank it copiously for 90 days. I passed two kidney stones. Since then I have passed blood several times. I drank distilled water and got relief.

REPLY.

People subject to kidney stones are generally advised to drink distilled water or some other pure water. It has served you well, but I think thorough examination would show that you still have kidney stones.

THERE IS LITTLE DANGER.

E. L. Q. writes: Is it possible to get any kind of disease from bathing in a tub that is used by several people, apparently in good health?

REPLY.

No.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

ALICE LAKE, the noted motion-picture star, was born this day, 1889, in Brooklyn, N. Y. She had her first dramatic experience in amateur theatricals. She made her debut on the professional stage as a dancer.

Miss Lake was introduced to the American film public by the old Vitagraph Co. Later she went with Mack Sennett and the Keystone Co. Her talent and pleasing personality soon made her a star and put her name in electric lights in front of theaters all over the country.

Pictures in which Miss Lake starred include "Kisses," "Hate," "A Hole in the Wall," "The Golden Gift," "Over the Wire," "Uncharted Seas," "The Greater Claim" and "Body and Soul."

Florence Kelley, general secretary of the National Consumers League since 1899, was born this day, 1859. She was chief inspector of factories for the State of Illinois from 1893 to 1897. She is the author of "Some Ethical Gains Through Legislation" and "Modern Industry."

LOWDEN SAYS TAXES UNJUST TO FARMER

Former Governor Decries Double Standard of Living in United States.

INCOME LEVY SOLUTION

Saranac Inn, N. Y., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—A revolution in national and State attitude toward agriculture, resulting in a "better way of life" for the farmer, said former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, in an address here tonight, probably "would enhance the prosperity of all."

"The time has come," said Mr. Lowden in the address delivered at the conference dinner of the National Tax Association, "when we must strive to equalize conditions of living upon the farms and in the towns and cities. We shall be unable much longer to maintain a double standard of living in the United States, as we have in recent years."

Turning to taxation he declared ownership of property no longer is a satisfactory test of ability to pay taxes. The ownership of property, both tangible and intangible, he said, produces not more than 20 per cent of total net income, while the Census Bureau finds that 75 per cent of the revenue of the States and local units of government is derived from the general property tax.

Property Tax Decried.

"While the general property tax unduly burdens all real estate," he said, "it bears especially heavy upon farm lands."

"Nearly all the States, recognizing the defects of the general property tax, now levy special taxes of one kind or another. The tax upon gasoline is perhaps the most striking recent development in this direction. There are other special taxes which readily come to mind. The States, however, cannot derive sufficient revenue from this source. The general property tax, therefore, will remain unless some substitute be found for it."

He saw the tax upon incomes as "the only alternative" and said there is "no other test of ability to pay so just and equitable as the income of the citizen."

Income Tax Equitable.

If taxes were levied upon the basis of income, he said, voters would realize more readily that they were paying for increased expenditures for Government and "would consider with greater care the need for proposed new activities of the Government."

"The Federal and State Governments," he asserted, "have it within their power to lift or greatly lighten the unjust burden of taxation now resting so heavily on the farmers' shoulders."

Two Employes Burned In Apartment Blaze

Two colored employes of the Argonne Apartment House at 1629 Columbia road northwest were severely burned as the result of a fire in a fifth-floor apartment, which originated while they were cleaning the floor with gasoline, according to a police report.

Brooke Muse, 28 years old, of 9 Iowa circle northwest, who, police said, was hired to work in the apartment only yesterday morning, was seriously burned about the body. Frank Robertson, 41, of 1251 Ninth street northwest, was burned about the hands and body. Both men were rescued by firemen and were taken to Emergency Hospital in an emergency automobile. An electric spark is believed to have come in contact with the gasoline while the men were cleaning the floor and to have started the fire. Damage was reported slight.

New Store Robbed of $40 Bicycle.

The first robbery to occur in the new Sears, Roebuck & Co. Building, on Bladensburg road northeast, was reported yesterday to police of the Ninth Precinct. Mrs. Mary Dindlebeck, of 1716 B street southeast, reported for the company that a bicycle, valued at $40, had been stolen.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Sept. 11.—Net income for the Phelps Dodge Corporation for the current year will exceed $16,000,000 after all charges, but before depletion, it is shown in preliminary estimates by officials of the company, which assume a continuance of the present firm tone in the copper metal market. Last year the company earned slightly more than $10,000,000 after charges, but before depletion.

Stockholders of the Anchor Post Fence Co. have approved a proposal to increase the number of shares of no par stock from 75,000 to 300,000 and to exchange the present stock on the basis of three shares of new for one old.

Directors of the Ground Gripper Shoe Co., Inc., will meet next week to discuss among other matters the declaration of an extra dividend on the common stock.

Sale of the assets and business of the E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., of Toronto, to Standard Brands, Inc., recently formed Morgan Food Products Holding Co., has been approved by the stockholders.

Effective today, the name of Acoustic Products Corporation, listed on the New York Curb Exchange, was changed to Sonora Products Corporation of America. Eugene P. Herman, president, said that stockholders in Acoustic Products in large numbers were exchanging their stock for shares in Sonora Products. Both the Buffalo, N. Y., and Saginaw, Mich., factories of the company, he added, are working in 24-hour shifts to fill orders.

Financing for the United States & Overseas Corporation, an international investment company organized last February under Harris Forbes Corporation auspices for operations in foreign and domestic fields, will comprise 600,000 shares of common stock with warrants. On completion of this financing the company will have assets of about $22,000,000. The directors include representatives of banks and financial institutions here and abroad.

STOCKS' NEW RALLY CUTS DOWN LOSSES

Powerful Pools Cause Wide Rebound of Prices in Large Trading.

OILS MARKET LEADERS

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The stock market had one of its "day after" rebounds today, which have become characteristic of late on days succeeding floods of selling. Price indices indicated that more than half of yesterday's losses were regained. Trading was in large volume, nearly 4,600,000 shares changing hands.

Powerful pool operations in selected issues prompted general short covering, which accelerated the rally. Operations for the most part appeared to be professional, and were attributed to powerful banking interests and investment trusts. Commission houses stated that the public was not a large buyer, although Western wires brought in a fair amount of business.

The outstanding bullish development of the day was an influx of call money, which carried the rate down to 7 per cent, after renewals at 9, as compared to yesterday's closing rate of 10. The ease in money was attributed by bankers to the piling up of funds here against the midmonth settlements. The market failed to show the Wednesday uneasiness, customary of late, over the prospect of an increase in the Bank of England's discount rate. Private advices to Wall street from London indicated that it was felt such action would be postponed for at least another week.

New Treasury Offering.

The announcement that the new Treasury offering of about $500,000,000 in certificates brought in subscriptions of nearly $1,500,000,000 was generally construed bullishly, although it was felt that the tax exempt feature, rather than the coupon rate of 4⅞ per cent, was the principal attraction. Formation of several new investment trusts was interpreted as indicating that important banking interests still regard the stock market situation as holding interesting possibilities. Several conservative commission houses, however, advised their customers to use upturns to lighten accounts, and to prepare for further reactionary tendencies until credit relaxes somewhat and business becomes more clear.

The day's business news included several pleasing earnings and dividend actions. Electric investors reported net for the 12 months ending July 31 as of about $15,000,000, as compared to about $3,500,000 in the previous 12 months. Air Reduction directors declared an extra dividend of $1.50, and directors of Standard Brand placed the stock on $1.50 annual basis. Crude oil production was reported as declining but moderately during the previous week, and F. W. Dodge Corporation reported that building contracts let during the first week of the month dropped 16 per cent from the like period of 1928. The weekly steel trade reviews reported a little better inquiry by railroads, but on the whole little change.

Oils Are Upward Leaders.

Oils were leaders of the advance, sponsors of the movement asserting that the market has more than discounted the overproduction problems, in view of current earnings. Standard of New Jersey was rushed up nearly 6 points to a record price for the present stock above 80. Royal Dutch was bid up about as much to a new peak above 60.

Several issues said to be in small floating supply were hurled up rapidly, American Machine and Foundry rising 23 points to a record price. Case Threshing jumped 17 points, then slid off 10 from the top. Commercial Solvents made an extreme gain of 16 points.

Johns Manville was again a strong feature, selling up about 13 points. Simmons climbed 11 to a new top. Food shares displayed group strength, such issues as Corn Products, Kraft Phenix, and Hershey Chocolate reaching new peaks. Standard Brands was in good demand.

Utilities Are Urged Forward.

Utilities were likewise urged forward. American & Foreign Power jumping about 9 points, and such leads as United Corporation, Consolidated Gas and Public Service of New Jersey making substantial gains. The rails were firm, Baltimore & Ohio reaching a new peak.

General Electric mounted about 9 points, then lost half its gain. Radio was traded in heavy volume, mounting about 4 points. United States Steel and American Telephone closed a couple of points higher, after making gains of more than 4 points.

The market generally closed a few points below the best levels of the day, and a few stocks closed lower. Fore Marquette dropped 8 points, and Allis Chalmers, Hawaiian Pineapple and G. W. Helm lost about 4. Collins & Aikman sagged 2 points to a new 1929 low at 39.

In the commodity markets, the Government crop reports sent wheat up more than 2 cents a bushel, and corn nearly as much, but cotton futures were again under pressure, losing from 65 cents to $1.05 a bale.

Foreign exchanges held barely steady, with sterling cables still at $4.84¾. The Japanese yen was strong, mounting ¼ of a cent to near its high for the year.

VETERAN TRIO AMONG 8 SURVIVORS IN U. S. SINGLES

Navy to Meet Maryland U. In 1930

Old Liners to Replace G. U. Eleven on Middies' Schedule.

Game to Be Played at Baltimore; May Also Meet California.

THE University of Maryland will replace Georgetown on the Naval Academy football schedule in 1930 and the game will be played in Baltimore, it was reliably learned yesterday.

Despite lack of official announcement that Georgetown and Navy would not resume football relations next season, it has become known that the Naval Academy is designing its schedule without indications of a game with Georgetown. That Maryland doubtless would be met is apparent.

Coach H. C. "Curly" Byrd, of Maryland, has been in conference with Naval Academy officials with a view to scheduling the game and advices from Baltimore declare that the two institutions already have arranged for a date at the huge Baltimore Municipal Stadium during the 1930 season.

Georgetown-Navy Games May Continue.

Commander Jonas H. Ingram, of the Naval Academy, in an address before the Baltimore Park Board on Tuesday declared that it was Navy's desire to bring the University of Maryland to Baltimore as a part of the Navy's program to play at least two big games in Baltimore annually. He also had hopes, he said, of bringing the University of California east for a game.

There is no ground for belief that the cessation of Navy-Georgtown games is permanent, as the Hilltoppers have only graced the Midshipmen's schedule only intermittently and the rivalry between the two has never been considered annual in recent years.

It is believed that the scheduling of the Navy-Maryland game is the result of the efforts of the Naval Academy to cater to State sentiment that has long been in favor of a contest between the two Maryland institutions.

World Series Tickets To Sell Only by Mail

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Applications for world series tickets for three games to be played in Philadelphia October 11, 12, 14 will be received at Shibe Park beginning next Monday, it was announced today by the Philadelphia American League Club.

Applications will be received by mail only and no money, checks or money orders were to be inclosed.

The tickets must be purchased in sets of one ticket for each of the three games, and no consideration will be given to applications for more than two sets. Grand stand seats sell for $5.50 and boxes for $6.60.

Persons whose applications are granted will be notified by mail and instructed when and where they shall call to take up the tickets, paying cash for them at the time.

Only box seats and grand stand seats, all of which are reserved, will be sold by mail.

Lucas in 18th Victory As Reds Beat Dodgers

Cincinnati, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—For his first effort in the major league, Louis "Buck" Newsome, pitched a creditable game in losing to Cincinnati by 4 to 2 today. Newsome started his first game for Brooklyn and in the seven innings he worked, the Reds could get but five hits off his delivery. Newsome fanned five batters in six innings. Red Lucas scored his eighteenth victory.

Giants in Twin Victory Over Pirates, 2-1, 10-5

Pittsburgh, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Giants defeated the Pirates in both games of a doubleheader this afternoon by 2 to 1 and 10 to 5. The invaders, through their double victory, reduced the Pittsburgh's second place lead to four and one-half games.

The first clash brought a brilliant slab duel featuring Burleigh Grimes and Bill Walker. Grimes held his former mates to six hits, but his supporting cast left the laurels on the bases. The contest was completed in 1 hour and 26 minutes. It was Grimes' sixth defeat.

Macks Win Queer Game; Need 4 More Victories

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Athletics took an odd-scoring game from the White Sox, 7 to 4, here today, as the Chicagoans began their last Philadelphia series of the season. By so doing, as the Yankees were succumbing before the Browns, the Macks reduced their pennant requirements to four victories.

All of the runs in the battle at Shibe Park were concentrated into the first inning. After the White Sox had raked Bob Grove for five hits and their four markers, the Athletics turned upon Ted Lyons and McKain for seven blows and seven runs. Bill Shores entered the box for the Athletics after a pinch batsman was called on for Grove in the big first inning, and, with McKain, made a pitchers' battle for the rest of the route.

Leaders Add Home Runs As Cubs Trim Phils

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Chicago moved nearer the National League championship today by defeating Philadelphia, 5 to 2, in the first game of the series.

Art Nehf, venerable southpaw, held the slugging Phillies to five scattered hits. Lefty O'Doul, leading slugger of the league, failed to connect in four trips to the plate.

Hack Wilson and Chuck Klein each hit a home run to remain tied for the league lead. Each has 38. Stephenson and Tolson, of the Cubs, and Hurst, of the Phillies, also connected for the circuit.

The Cubs got eight hits off Ray Koupal and Bob McGraw, the Philadelphia hurlers. Hornsby played sensationally in the field. He made a diving catch of Hurst's liner in the second inning and turned it into a double play.

Chicago's victory increased its lead to fourteen games, as Pittsburgh lost a double-header to New York. Only eighteen games remain on the Cub schedule. Four more victories will clinch the flag.

Hit by Hayes Beats Tribe In 8th

Infielder Breaks Tie After Intentional Walk to Cronin.

Marberry Turns in 7-Hit Game in 5-2 Triumph.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

JACK HAYES, the Alabama "wild man" on the field, normally is a Southern gentleman of the old type and can not be insulted with impunity. Yesterday, Willis Hudlin, Cleveland pitcher, tried it by intentionally walking Joe Cronin in the eighth inning with Sam West already on the runways, two out and the score tied. Naturally, Hayes could not let this affront pass unnoticed and so he immediately singled to left, emptying the bases and tallied a minute later himself on Pitcher Fred Marberry's one-shot to center.

This gave the Nationals the lead, 5 to 2, and Marberry saw to it that it remained that way in the Tribe's ninth, the victory, coupled with a Detroit defeat in Boston, giving the Johnsons a tie with the Harrismen for fifth place in the standing.

Hayes was not a hero throughout the game, however, as it was an error by him starting the alien seventh that helped the Indians to knot the count at 2-all, while Marberry's pitching also was far above the garden variety. He held Peckinpaugh's slugging Indians to but 7 hits, granted but one earned run, fanned four and issued but a single pass.

Nationals Break Ice in First Round.

Hudlin held the Nationals to ten safeties and looked particularly good in several innings, but the home team was able to score in each of the rounds in which it was able to hit safely more than once and he ran Marberry neck and neck until the eighth, when he slighted Hayes and immediately was punished for it.

Washington broke the ice in the first session, when, after two were out, Goslin coaxed a pass and successive singles by Myer and West turned this walk into a run. In the second the Indians tied the score by molding a marker from singles by Falk and Joe Sewell and Hodapp's infield out, on which the Nats missed while trying for a double-play.

In the next canto Goslin tripled to deep center, with two gone, and Myer scored him with a liner single to right. West also hit safely, but he and Myer were left stranded. The picture then assumed control and there was no more excitement until the sixth, when Tate's single, Falk's error on it, and a walk to Cronin put two on, with only one out. Hayes and Marberry both failed on this occasion, and it was in the next round that the Indians knotted the count.

Indians Held to One Run In Rally in Third.

Matters looked dark when, after Hayes fumbled Falk's hot grasser, Joe Sewell doubled him to third. He scored on Hodapp's roller, on which J. Sewell was trapped and caught between second and third. Luke Sewell singled Hodapp to third, but he was nipped trying to score on Hudlin's grounder to Cronin. Jamieson ended things by lofting to Goslin.

Washingtons half of this "lucky" frame also saw a man killed at home on the end of the game's only double play. Judge led off with a double and advanced on Rice's sacrifice. Goslin then lofted to right; and although Falk caught the ball close in, Judge decided to take a chance and try to register after the catch. He was caught easily, however, on a combination of Falk's good peg and some clever blocking at the plate by Luke Sewell. In fact, Joe hasn't touched home yet.

West's Scratch Hit Opens Rally.

Then came the native uprising which packed away the verdict. West started Hudlin's troubles by beating out a scratch hit to Fonseca with one out. He advanced on Tate's infield out and then Hudlin gave Cronin one of the first compliments of the kind he has had in his brief major league career. He purposely walked the Nat shortstop, intimating that he did not hold Hayes highly in his estimation. The latter thereupon singled both mates home, took second on the throw-in and brought home the game's final run on Marberry's blow, on which the pitcher was caught at second when Hudlin intercepted Averill's return throw.

Rice and Myer contributed the two outstanding catches of the game, both at the expense of Lew Fonseca. The outfielder chased almost to the scoreboard to make a one-hand grab in the second, while the second-sacker made a brilliant stab with his gloved hand to rob Fonseca of another potential safety in he fourth. West, with three hits, led the Washington attack, with Myer runner-up, with two. The Sewell brothers accounted for 5 of the Indian hits between them, Joe getting a double and two singles and Luke duplicating the stunt except for the two-bagger.

Amateur Net Profession Dull But Expense Accounts Continue as Works of Art

National Singles Shows Tennis Business Not Prospering With Stars Living Like Royalty and Upkeep of Stadium's Great.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The amateur tennis profession is not prospering as well as it used to and it looks as though there will have to be an open championship for men next year. Although the current men's national championship at Forest Hills has been enlivened by some spirited bickering and squawking on the courts and some enthusiastic cheering and hissing from the galleries, it has not been a financial triumph to date. There were about 400 paid admissions on the opening day, last Saturday, and about 2,200 Tuesday, the day of the great scene between William T. Tilden, the noted actor, and Frank Shields, the precocious high school boy.

This show, one of the best from the standpoint of a club treasurer, may next be awarded to the Germantown Cricket Club of Philadelphia for a term of years and the loss of this tournament revenue naturally would increase by just so much the financial burden of the individual members of the West Side Club, which built the large concrete stadium on its own grounds at Forest Hills at great expense and assumed a bond issue in the course of the financing.

Invasion of Professionals Is Voted Down.

Several seasons ago, even when the amateur tennis profession was enjoying its greatest prosperity, one group of members wished to commit the club to a policy of frank and somewhat sordid commercialism in order to take care of the bond issue. They went so far as to suggest leasing the arena to a prize fight promoter for al fresco blood letting. The suggestion was voted down with intense indignation and the refined award of the championship courts was spared the profanation. But there has been a slight compromise since then and many of the members now indorse the idea of permitting professional pros to compete with the distinguished professional amateurs in an open championship.

The loss of the Davis Cup to France complicated the financial problems of the large tennis clubs to which the major tournaments customarily have been allotted. The Germantown Club drew the Davis Cup final and Forest Hills the men's national under the last general allocation of attractions. But, of course, when the Davis Cup final ceased to be an American prerequisite, that was an unforeseen loss.

Importance Over Price by Professional Amateurs.

In general, however, it looks as though the professional amateurs have overpriced their own importance and are no longer able to draw gate receipts in proportion to the expense accounts. It is very expensive to support teams of half a dozen or more athletes from overseas to play in the tournaments and their transportation, maintenance for a month or so, and entertainment run into major financial statistics, counterbalancing their drawing power at the box offices.

Another difficulty is the insistence of some of the young ladies that their mothers shall be included in the benefits of the expense account, which, of course, doubles the cost, as in amateur tennis, no two ladies can live as cheaply as one. In fact, it has yet to be demonstrated that one lady can live cheaply.

Moreover, as a lady or gentleman gains importance at the turnstiles, the scale of living rises and the tennis clubs have been discovering that for certain of the more distinguished athletes the ordinary first-class hotel does not afford the proper social setting.

Some Expense Accounts Works of Art.

"Some of the expense accounts that tennis clubs have to pay are works of great beauty and art," my informant states. "The tennis stars, and especially some of the young ladies who must be chaperoned on tours, go to very exclusive hotels now and give luncheons, teas and dinners for their friends off a most generous scale. And, of course, there are such matters as limousine hire and cut flowers fresh every day, all of which amount to something.

"There were two gentlemen from a remote American city who went from Chicago to Denver and back to Kansas City to play in three tournaments. They billed each of the three clubs for transportation and other expenses from their home city to the tournament and return, whereas their actual travel naturally was much less than that. One of the clubs thought of protesting, but in the end refused to prosecute because they needed stars to draw customers at their future tournaments and realized that if they

Ohio State Ridicules Charge Of Recruiting Football Stars

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Athletic officials at Ohio State University, charged with attempting to recruit football players from Heidelberg and John Carroll Universities within the past three days, were able tonight to laugh at their accusers in the first instance and to deny emphatically the second.

The officials consider that well meaning but ill guided and uninformed alumni caused the university embarrassment by attempting to interview Merle Hutson, Heidelberg's all-Ohio tackle, at Tiffin, last Monday. The officials denied responsibility, however, and pointed out that under rules of the Western Conference, Hutson never could be eligible to play football for Ohio State.

The other accusation came today from Ralph Vince, coach of the John Carroll team in Cleveland. Vince said that Ted Rosequist, one of his best tackles, had been approached by Fred Sweitzer, former Buckeye half back and now president of the Cleveland Ohio State Alumni Association, and by Hal Ells, of Toledo, an Ohio State student.

Vince charged that Sweitzer and Ells offered Rosequist tuition, board, and a job if he would come to Ohio State. Rosequist said he had been told that Sam Willaman, the Buckeye's new coach, had a list of players on other Ohio teams that Willaman wanted on the Ohio State and that he was one of them. Rosequist declined to comment on Vince's charges and said he would remain with John Carroll.

Coach Willaman said he never had heard of Rosequist and that he did not want players recruited from other institutions.

Hunter Rallies To Triumph Over Coen

Tilden Easily Scores; Williams Extended to Beat Jones.

"Big Bill" Meets Van Ryn; Doeg Will Oppose Austin.

By TED VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The old guard of American tennis has yet to be stopped in the drive for the national singles championship. When a thrilling series of fourth-round battles had ended at the West Side Stadium late today, those seasoned contenders, Bill Tilden, Frank Hunter and Richard N. Williams, shared places in the final round of eight with four young American and a youthful invader from England.

Big Bill, now well on the way to his seventh national crown, coasted into the quarterfinals without the necessity of removing his sweater, defeating Henry Cully, of Harvard, 6—3, 7—5, 8—6. Many in the gallery of 4,000 deserted the stadium to watch his match on an outside court.

Arrayed against Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, R. I., Williams, holder of this national championship in 1914 and 1916, came from behind after losing the first two sets and took the match.

Tilden Meets Van Ryn This Afternoon.

In the quarterfinal round tomorrow Williams meets another member of the old guard, Hunter, at 2 p. m., while Tilden tackles Johnny Van Ryn, youthful member of the American Davis Cup Team, at 4 p. m.; Bunny Austin, the lone remaining English player, stacks up against Johnny Doeg at 3, and Fritz Mercur takes on the hard-hitting Texan, Wilmer Allison, in the opening match of the day at 1 o'clock.

Hunter had his troubles today in a thrilling duel with Wilbur F. Coen, jr., 18-year-old Kansas City youngster, who is Tilden's favorite protege.

Driving and serving beautifully and playing a well-rounded all-court game that seemed to justify Tilden's prediction that some day he will win the national championship, Coen won the first set from Hunter and made a great fight for the second.

Here the immature youngster weakened, however, and Hunter's superior stamina and match-play experience carried him to victory at 4—6, 7—5, 6—1, 6—4.

British Star Rallies to Stay in Event.

Like Williams and Hunter, Austin too was forced to come from behind to win from Ed Feibleman, former Harvard player, at 2—6, 8—7, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3.

Allison, Doeg and Van Ryn each dropped a set, but were in no real danger. Allison, trimmed Elmer J. Griffin, of New York, 4—6, 6—3, 6—0, 6—0, while "Jersey Johnny" downed Tamio Abe, of Japanese Davis Cup fame, 6—3, 8—6, 5—7, 6—4, and Doeg defeated Julius Seligson, of New York, 9—11, 6—2, 6—3. Fritz Mercur, like Tilden, won in straight sets, trouncing John Millen, New York youngster, at 6—3, 6—4, 6—1.

Today's results:

FOURTH ROUND.

John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., defeated Tamio Abe, Japan, 6—3, 8—6, 5—7, 6—4; H. W. Austin, England, defeated E. W. Feibleman, New York, 6—2, 5—7, 6—4, 6—1, 6—3; Fritz Mercur, Philadelphia, Pa., defeated J. S. Millen, New York, 6—3, 6—4, 6—1; R. N. Williams 3d, Philadelphia, Pa., defeated Arnold W. Jones, Providence, R. I., 4—6, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3, 6—2; Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, Tex., defeated E. J. Griffin, New York, 4—6, 6—3, 6—0, 6—0; J. H. Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Julius Seligson, New York, 9—11, 6—2, 6—3; Fritz Mercur, Hunter, New Rochelle, N. Y., defeated Wilbur F. Coen, Kansas City, 4—6, 7—5, 6—4, 6—1; William L. Tilden 2d, Philadelphia, defeated Henry M. Culley, Cambridge, 6—4, 7—5, 8—6.

MELVA ROSE WINS FIFTH STRAIGHT AT MARLBORO

Filly in Lead Throughout Journey

Appellate Far Best of Field in Second on Program.

Miss Fayette Closes Stoutly to Annex Third Event.

By CHARLES A. WATSON.

MARLBORO RACE TRACK Sept 11.—Continuing her phenomenal racing record on Maryland's half-mile tracks, Melva Rose triumphed for the fifth consecutive time today at Marlboro when she galloped home in front in the best race of a featureless card.

Another monster crowd was on hand to witness the racing, which was marked by the consistent performances of the favorites. Melva Rose, the 5-year-old daughter of Knights Differ—Margery, sporting the silks of J. P. Mayberry outfooted her opposition and won as easily as she did at Cumberland and Timonium.

Jockey L. Lang had the filly off like a flash when Starter ("Long Taw") Welter dispatched the field on its way and she was never menaced for the entire journey of 6½ furlongs. Nearest to the swift-running miss came Era, to finish second, with Oh Me gaining at every stride on the two and taking third money.

Eleusagon Triumphs At 1-5 Odds.

It was a limit field of juveniles that went postward for the opening event, and victory went to Mrs. J. W. Bean's sensational filly Eleusagon. Expiate was awarded the place position over Radha, which finished third.

Dolly Mack and Full Cloud delayed the start 11 minutes when they became fractious at the barrier. The winner started the chalk-playing contingent off on the right foot when she romped home to pay the disastrous odds of 1 to 5.

Appellate, a home-bred on the Marlboro track and racing for J. Y. Christmas easily accounted for the second sprint race and rang up the second victory for a favorite. The eight-year-old gelding made a show of the field which opposed him as he led Dorothy Whitemore and the much raced Mexican Pete to the wire under a pull.

One of the closest finishes of the day came with the running of the third when Miss Fayette scored a victory under a vigorous ride by Donald Mergler. She came from behind to win over Self Defence and Major Finley.

Royal Charge Scores Over Choices in Fifth.

Royal Charge with Jockey Hudgins in the pilot house furnished another thrill to the spectators when he nosed out Jack O'Leen, one of the favorites in the fifth race. Maxie, the public choice, finished third in the furious drive to the wire. Jack O'Leen set all the pace, but faltered long enough in the stretch to let the winner score on the rail.

Wormwold and Miss Sand staged another duel in the sixth race of a mile and one-sixteenth with victory going to the former. The bad legged Harry Carroll finished third. The winner saddled by S. R. Utterback took command after the first quarter and raced gamely to the wire.

The curtain event, another distance affair, went to Happy Jack, a recent Timonium winner. Bonny Castle gained the place with Raconteur saving third. Happy Jack's victory sent the great crowd away in a jovial mood as he won handily for those who delight in playing the favorites.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUITOR, $44.02, $12.48, $7.56; KLINGSTONE, $5.74, $2.92; ALEADER, $8.14.

SUITOR, hard ridden from the break, moved up stoutly on the outside in the stretch and, under energetic handling, was just up in time. KLINGSTONE, slow to find his stride, saved ground while working his way up and finished well while racing in close quarters. ALEADER displayed good speed in pacemaking and held on fairly well in the final drive. BORIS closed a gap. ROLLED STOCKINGS had a rough trip.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Des Plaines. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:59. Off at 5:01½. Winner, A. B. Hancock's ch. f. COACH LITTLE DISAPPOINTED AT G. U.'S SHOWING

Eleven Faces Temple U. in Scrimmage

Team Strong on Defense But Showed Weak Attack.

Latter Due to Failure to "Take Out" Opponents.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 11.—There is plenty of hard work ahead of Georgetown's gridironers in training here. The authority for this statement is none other than Lou Little, head coach, who expressed deep disappointment at the showing of the Blue and Gray players in their initial scrimmage this afternoon with Temple University at the Municipal Airport field, in Atlantic City.

But three days remain of the practice period in this seaside resort and it seems safe to say that more action will be crowded into these three days by the coaches and the team candidates than has been undertaken in the past week. Tomorrow should be a particularly strenuous day, as another scrimmage with the Philadelphians will be held either Friday or Saturday. A vast improvement will be displayed by the Hilltoppers if Little and his assistant mentors have anything to do with it. Coach Little didn't go into detail in his criticism of the squad today. "I'm very disappointed. They didn't show much progress," was his blanket statement.

Hilltop Defense Looks Very Good.

The chief cause for disappointment, it appeared, was the offensive performance. Defensively, the Hilltoppers looked good. They smeared practically every attacking move of Temple's, but saw their own treated likewise.

Failure of certain players to "take out" their opponents robbed the Georgetown offense of success. The formations and plays obviously were well planned. An off-tackle play, of the hidden ball type, and a forward pass, with Lew Parlette, the tall sophomore end, on the receiving side would have gained much ground had there been unison in execution. Needless to say, the players in question will spend extra time getting their instructions "down pat" during the rest of the week.

Today's performance brought out something else which should cheer Georgetown fans. The defense of the Blue and Gray will be as strong as ever in the past. Temple's line crumbled under the fierce charging of the Georgetown forwards and the Owls' backfield men were often nailed before they reached the line of scrimmage. On forward passes the Owls were so slow and the Hilltop linemen so fast that the ball-carrier was sometimes helplessly caught in a whirlpool of flying Georgetown arms.

Dubofsky Shows Power In Defensive Play.

Maurice Dubofsky, ponderous sophomore, gave a great demonstration in defensive play. He held Capt. Mooney's place at tackle in the tentative first-string line-up and created havoc with Temple's thrusts in his direction. Mooney, who lost a nail on one of his fingers yesterday, remained on the side lines. The first team was composed of Parlette and Provincial, ends; Liston and Dubofsky, tackles; Driscoll and Cordovano, guards; Wynkoop, center; Gardner, quarter back; Schmid and Hudak, half backs, and Maczees, full back. Coach Little used nearly all of his squad at one time or another, but sent the starting eleven back to finish the session.

Emil Bozek, younger brother of Johnny, who will not report for training until the squad returns to the Hilltop field, in Washington, next Monday, was given a chance at the quarter-back job and served impressively. Johnny may find Emil one of his strongest rivals for one of the vacant back-field positions.

Neither Georgetown nor Temple made any attempt at scoring, so an accurate gauge of what they would do in a real game could not be obtained. The Owls packed more weight in both the line and back field, but this proved no advantage, with the Hilltoppers exhibiting superior charging. Temple is expected to be one of the strongest teams in the Middle Atlantic this fall, according to Philadelphia scribes.

Dr. McClenahan Wins Dentists' Golf Event

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 11.—Dr. J. T. McClenahan, of the Washington Golf and Country Club, won from 49 competitors in the sixth annual 36-hole golf tournament for the low gross prize at the Catoctin Country Club, two miles west of here. The tournament was the concluding sports event of the semiannual meeting of the Maryland State Dental Association, which convened at the Francis Scott Key Hotel Monday.

Dr. McClenahan covered the first 18 in 88 strokes and then duplicated on the second round, for a total of 176. The Washingtonian was hard pressed by Drs. K. P. Heintz, of Cumberland, and Thoman Rice, of the Congressional Country Club, Washington. Both finished one stroke behind the long-driving McClenahan. By virtue of his victory, the Washingtonian won possession of the Maryland State Dental Association golf trophy.

NOTICE BOWLERS.

The Prince Georges County Men's Duckpin League will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the American Legion Hall, 40 Spencer street, Hyattsville.

2 GRID STARS ARE LOST TO VIRGINIA

Daniel and Paxton Unable to Mend Injuries.

Special to The Washington Post.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Sept. 11.—Two of Virginia's football veterans have passed from the picture for the season of 1929. One is Garland Daniel, 210-pound guard. The other is Bill Paxton, a fast and rugged young end.

Daniel won his letter in 1927, but was kept out through all of last season by a bad shoulder dislocation. He reported for practice on Monday. During his third practice session his shoulder went out of place while he was punting. Trainer Hahn took a look at it and said the big fellow would be in no shape to play again this year.

Paxton has been expected back ever since practice began. When he failed to report this week he was telegraphed. An answering wire brought word that he will not enroll in the university this session.

Paxton Was Expected To Play This Year.

The coaches had not been counting greatly on Daniel. They knew of the old injury he received in a boxing bout with the Navy heavyweight two seasons ago and they feared it would cause trouble.

Paxton, on the other hand, had been expected to have a great year. The tall young fellow from New Jersey made a showing in late games last fall. He seemed to be just rounding into form. With two seasons ahead of him he had prospects of becoming one of the best ends in the South.

The loss of these two men is making the coaches buckle down to the business of building a team with renewed vigor. Head Coach Abell is trying various combinations of men in his effort to select a first varsity eleven before the first scrimmage of the season is held later in the week.

Cards Defeat Braves In Both Games, 11-4, 7-1

St. Louis, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Cardinals captured both games of a double-header from the Boston Braves here this afternoon by scores of 11 to 4 and 7 to 1. In the nightcap the Cardinals scored three runs in the first and three more in the fifth, one run being Bottomley's twenty-ninth homer of the season. The Braves' only tally came in the third. Al Grabowski, brought in from Danville, hurled his first game for the Cardinals in the opener, striking out five batters, while Johnson was the winning pitcher in the final.

FARRINGTON FRESHMAN COACH

Pixlee's Aid Assigned to Teach G. W. Yearlings.

THE job of coaching the George Washington University Freshman Football Team that group of men to whom a great deal of attention will be devoted this fall, has fallen to Max Farrington, newly appointed coach at the G street school, and one of Director Pixlee's four assistants.

With the program of "building for the future" the keynote at G. W., it is only natural that the freshmen are to be given every available bit of instruction, which, it is hoped, will fit them for first-class varsity material in the years to come.

The authorities already have cut their work out for the frosh by arranging one of the stiffest schedules ever faced by a G. W. yearling eleven, and when they are called out for the first time on September 23 by Coach Farrington, he will be forced to hustle them along faster than any group has been hustled along before at George Washington.

Meet G. V. Frosh After Two Weeks of Work.

Exactly two weeks after the opening of school, the Buff and Blue yearlings will be called upon to face the Georgetown University frosh, the opening game to be played on October 11. And from then on, it will be no path of roses for the men of Farrington.

On successive Saturdays, his team is slated to oppose Western Maryland, University of Maryland's Junior Varsity, Johns Hopkins Frosh, Emerson, St. John's Junior Varsity, Naval Academy's B squad and the C. U. Freshmen, to be met on Thanksgiving Day.

The meeting with the Navy B Squad will be something of a feature, as the game is scheduled to begin between the halves of the Georgetown-Navy game at Annapolis on November 16.

Compulsory Sports Rule to Help Athletics.

As incoming freshmen at G. W are required to take some kind of sport as a regular study, it is expected that Buff and Blue teams will have more candidates than ever before in the history of the school, and if present plans unfold the Frosh teams should benefit from this ruling.

were to make a scene over the matter they would have to get along with local talent in the future."

Tennis Not a Game When Ranking Is Involved.

In this connection, there was an interesting episode at Forest Hills during the present men's national tournament. One of the young athletes had met with unexpected an drastic defeat in a match with an obscure player and retired to the dressing room, where he was discovered sobbing in great anguish.

"Don't take it so hard; it is only a game and you lost in the manner of a good sportsman," a friend of the young man remarked comfortingly.

"The hell it is only a game," the young man exclaimed. "This licking will knock my ranking clear down and next year the clubs will only allow me about half the expense money I am getting now."

In the matter of club revenue an open tournament probably would compensate for the unavoidable sacrifice of the Davis Cup receipts and if the men's national should go to Germantown next year a sanction competition at Forest Hills with professional pros and professional amateurs playing through in a mixed company might be approved for the benefit of the paying members of the club.

Pros to Be Playing for Purse, Frankly.

The concession would not be as great as it might seem, because there is to be a professional tournament there, starting on the 23d of this month. The two starred players will be Karel Kozeluh, the European professional champion, and Vincent Richards.

Mr. Kozeluh coached both the British and American Davis Cup teams in France this year and is said to have won from all of his pupils in the course of their practice matches. There will be 32 entrants including the two brothers Burke of England, Hans Summel of Germany, Harvey Snodgrass, Walter Westbrook, Babe Norton and George Augutter, all playing frankly for a percentage of the gate receipts.

The temper of the gentlemen in the men's national this week has been quite petulent and George Lott, of Chicago, who brings to lawn tennis a refreshing candor and vigor of spirit, found himself being glared at with the utmost severity by William T. Tilden during the Tilden-Shields match of Tuesday. When the Shields boy tied Mr. Tilden at nine games in the third set Mr. Lott placed his hands to his mouth as he sat in the official reservation and bawled "Come on Frank."

Mr. Tilden stopped play and fetched the unconventional Mr. Lott a furious glare but Mr. Lott, not to be suppressed, again placed his hands to his mouth and in the presence of press, public and the officials of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, uttered a loud, rude sound familiar to major league baseball players and known to them as the berry.

Reserve Material Shows Promise at West Virginia

Doyle, Haddock, Marker, White, Woodrum, Martin, Brown, Beall, Ferrara, Plaster, Sebulsky Making Strong Bids.

JACKSONS MILL, W. Va., Sept. 11.—That a football team is no stronger than its reserve strength is one of the axioms in so-called "big time" grid circles, and it was feared by West Virginia athletic authorities before the Mountaineer training camp opened that capable replacement material would be lacking.

However, the unexpectedly fine showing of some half dozen sophomores and an equal number of juniors during the first eight days of the training camp here has greatly enhanced the prospects of the 1929 West Virginia eleven.

Although the varsity line-up is by no means picked, Coach Ira Rodgers has been using Joseph and Lang at ends; Scott and Nixon, tackles; Gordon and Lewis, guards; Carrico, center; Capt. M. Glenn, quarter back; Stumpp and Bartrug, half backs, and Varney at full back, rather frequently.

Lewis Only Soph in Line-Up Now Used.

"Ike" Lewis is the only sophomore in this team, and the other gridders are well known to all West Virginia followers. Lewis is a fast, scrappy 185-pound guard who is a performer of the "Red" Gordon type.

The reserve backs who have stood out in scrimmage are all sophomores—Johnny Doyle, Dana Carden, George Haddock, Harry Marker, Homer White, Pete Woodrum and Jake Sebulsky. "Boxcar Bus" La Rue and "Tarzan" Glenn, third-year men, scarcely can be classed as reserves, for they are apt to be in the starting line-up against Wesleyan at Morgantown September 21.

Doyle is a fine passer and rates next to the famous Eddie Bartrug as a punter and next to the equally famous Eddie Stumpp as a passer.

Carden is a very good defensive man, while Haddock is making a spirited bid for the bull-back job. Marker is one of the fastest open-field runners on the squad, although in this department he has worthy opposition in Pete Woodrum. White and Sebulsky are proving to be very capable understudies to Capt. M. Glenn at quarter back.

Many Good Ends Bidding For Berths.

First-string reserve ends of promise include the veteran Bill Behnke and juniors Bob Hamilton, Edward, and sophomore Harry Stunkard. Hamilton and Behnke already have displayed some good terminal work. Paul Martin and "Dally" Beall are giving Scott and Nixon a stiff battle for the tackle posts, while Leland Brown may dislodge Lewis at right guard before the season starts. "Pirpo" Ferrara, a guard who packs plenty of weight and fight, is handicapped by his slowness. Laurence Plaster rounds out the best of the first-string replacement fortifications by putting up a very dependable game at the center post.

Crowder Blanks Yanks; Browns Take 5-0 Win

New York, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Browns defeated the Yankees easily in the first game of their four-game series, winning by a score of 5 to 0. It was New York's fifth straight defeat at the hands of the Browns. In these games the Yanks have scored only two runs.

Alvin Crowder, who shut out the Yankees with two hits in St. Louis last month, blanked them with five today. Eddie Wells, New York left-hander, was wild and ineffective in the early innings but settled down later in the game.

Red Sox Stage Rallies; Beat Tigers in Tenth

Boston, Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The Red Sox came from behind to defeat Detroit, 8-7, in a 10-inning free hitting game here today. The game was won on Reeves' single, a bad throw by Page, Detroit pitcher, which allowed him to reach second, and Rothrock's single to left center field, which scored him.

Stone and Alexander hit home runs during a six-run Tiger rally in the seventh inning which gave Detroit a 7-2 lead and apparently broke up the game. The Red Sox, who made 17 hits during the game, came back with three runs in the eighth and two in the ninth, however. Todt hit a homer for the Sox.

Tampa-Montgomery Tied in Deciding Game

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—With the teams in a 3-to-3 deadlock, Umpire Doniquin called the seventh game of the Southeastern League championship series between Montgomery and Tampa here this afternoon at the end of the eighth inning because of darkness.

Rain in the fifth inning delayed the game more than an hour. Another game will be played tomorrow in an attempt to decide the series, which stands at three victories each.

BLUE SOX GO INTO SERIES LEAD

Martinsburg Downs Hagerstown by 17-5 Score.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 11.—The Martinsburg Blue Sox took the lead in the series for the Blue Ridge League championship here today, winning the third game of the play-off with the Hagerstown Hubs by the lopsided score of 17 to 5. The Macks have now won two and lost one, with the fourth game scheduled at Martinsburg tomorrow.

Al Jones started his second game of the series today and went the route, it being the third time he has faced the Hubs in the series, dropping the opening encounter and finishing up the second to get credit for a win.

Unleashing a pent-up batting attack, the Macks pounded out victory with ease before the largest crowd of the series, more than 1,000 paid admissions being on hand.

Mike Meola, starting for the Hubs, was nicked for a pair of runs in the opening inning, and the Macks from then on continued their battling attack, staging a big inning in the third, when they drove Meola to cover, and found the offerings of Stremus much to their liking.

Jones Pitches Good Ball Until Eighth.

Martinsburg registered six counters in the third on seven hits, including two doubles and a homer. Jones hurled good ball until the eighth, when he began to weaken, and the Hubs bunched five hits for three tallies, Luciano's error paving the way for the rally. In the ninth a double, Miller's error and three bases on balls gave the Hubs their other counters.

Dayton Wins to Even Weyers Cave Series

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 11.—Dayton, of Rockingham, evened the bi-county series with Weyers Cave, of Augusta, today by defeating the Cavemen, 9 to 3, in the second game of the series.

The Rockinghamers drove Red Marshall and Craun, Weyers Cave hurlers, from the mound, with a five-run rally in the sixth produced by six straight hits. Harold Dean, held the Cavemen scoreless after the second inning. Burgess, who finished for Weyers Cave, held Dayton hitless.

Heatwole, for Dayton, and Wolfe, for the Cavemen, led the hitting with three hits each.

President Roosevelt's formal acceptance of his party's nomination for President was made public in a letter to "Uncle Joe" Cannon, chairman of the notification committee.

Mrs. Wiggs of the cabbage patch—the real Mrs. Wiggs of the real cabbage patch—has returned to her humble home of Louisville's shantytown. Her sudden jump to fame, which caused her to go across the continent, has begun to tell on her nerves. Therefore she is more than pleased to return to her humble home, where she will be away from curious eyes. She stated she is through with traveling.

Lieut. T. B. Amiss, in command of the First Precinct, was seized with an attack of vertigo at Twelfth and E streets northwest. He was waiting for a street car. He received a slight cut on the head and was removed to the Emergency Hospital. Later in the day he went home.

Owing to the inability of Lieut. Little, of the Philadelphia Police Department, to procure the use of the ball park in that city for the proposed ball game between the police teams of the two cities, the game has been called off.

Capt. David P. Leibhardt, superintendent of the dead letter office, was found dead at his desk in the postoffice. Acting Coroner Glazebrook issued a certificate of suicide, although no motive could be found.

Mystery surrounds the death of an unidentified man, found dead on the electric car line in Brentwood. He had been run over by car No. 404, but railway employes advanced the theory that the man had been murdered and his body placed in the tracks. No means of identification were found and his body remained at the morgue unclaimed.

Today's True Detective Story

The Quebec Mystery

By VANCE WYNN

ONE morning in the spring of the year, Mrs. Carolina Poirier, of St. Canute, in the Province of Quebec, roused one of her neighbors and said with much agitation that she was unable to get into her home or rouse her husband. She had been spending the night with a friend nearby, and said that her husband who had been working on the repairs to a church at St. Jerome, nine miles distant, was expected home some time the previous evening.

The police were summoned, the door broken in and the husband found lying on the floor dead. His body bore three knife wounds, and it was quite evident that there had been a life-and-death struggle. But beyond the disordered appearance of the room there were no clues to indicate who the culprit might have been. The strange part of it was that nothing had been taken from the house, so that the murder could not have been for the purpose of theft.

Mrs. Poirier was naturally distracted, and went about the work of settling up the estate like a woman in a trance. The man, who had led a dissipated life, died practically penniless, but he did leave an insurance policy of $2,000 in favor of his wife. Isidore Poirier had been a contractor and builder in a small way, and he married Cordelia Viau, the handsome daughter of a farmer, after a whirlwind wooing. They had no children, but for some years after their marriage they lived happily. At the end of that time the woman seems to have conceived an aversion for her husband. The reason for this, according to one of the commentators on the affair, is that she was a masterful woman and he was a man of "very common mold."

The gossips had it that she was enamored of another man, one Samuel Parslow, a carpenter who worked for her husband. At all events they were seen together very much, and he paid her marked attention. Indeed, on the night when the murder had occurred the two were together. But that in itself did not necessarily connect either of them with the crime. Mrs. Poirer was the organist of the village church, while Parslow was a member of the choir. That fact might well have explained their frequent meetings.

In the meantime, the authorities were working hard to trace the movements of the dead man prior to the murder. It was ascertained that he had been working that very day at St. Jerome. The people of the village informed them that he had left there in a carriage, saying that he was going home. Other persons living on the road between the two towns testified that they had seen him pass in the team. One of them said that a woman accompanied him. Unfortunately, this person was not able to give a very good description of the woman.

At this stage of the investigation the agent of the insurance company which had insured the victim appeared to say that Mrs. Poirier had personally taken out the insurance, had carried on all of the correspondence, and was particularly anxious at the time to be sure that she would get the money, no matter what might have been the cause of death. The authorities determined to take the bull by the horns, and both Mrs. Poirier and Parslow were arrested. They were placed in different cells, and each told a story that conflicted with the other. The evidence was circumstantial, but it was shown that the woman had gone to St. Jerome and had brought her husband home on the night the tragedy was supposed to have occurred.

Both were found guilty, and sentence of death was at once pronounced. In spite of the fact that the woman had been shown in anything but a favorable light petitions were numerously signed and presented to the governor general urging him to show clemency to the female convict. He declined to interfere, saying that the law must be permitted to take its course. When the noose was prepared Samuel Parslow was so limp that he had to be literally carried to the platform. Not so the masterful woman. She walked up the steps with a firm tread, and as she reached the executioner, exclaimed: "Be quick; that is all I ask."

The End.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

BONDS DRIFT LOWER IN LISTLESS BUYING

Some Convertibles Move Up, Despite Broad, Light Liquidation.

FOREIGN GROUP EASES

New York, Sept. 11.—(A.P.)—Moderate pressure exerted against the bond list today caused prices to drift lower. Liquidation was of small proportions, but was sufficiently noticeable in all groups to indicate a lack of favorable sentiment.

In the last hour of trading came the announcement that the new issue of Treasury certificates, bearing 4 7-8 per cent interest, had been oversubscribed nearly three times. The large inquiry for the tax-exempt securities was about what had been expected, and the news found listed obligations of the United States selling at slight declines which prevailed at the close.

From Chicago came word that a State of Illinois issue of 4 per cent bonds, totaling $11,000,000, had been awarded to a syndicate headed by the Continental Illinois Company on a bid of 92.627. The last previous sale of similar obligations—A $10,000,000 loan floated last June—brought 93.775, but since that time the market has slumped almost steadily.

Convertibles made a show of strength in the day's dull trading and advance running as high as 5 points had developed by mid-afternoon. The gains were not held in their entirety, however, so that the close found American Telephone 4½s, which again turned over with a flash of their early summer activity, at a net advance of 1 7-8 points against a maximum rise for the session of approximately 5. Atchison 4½s moved within a restricted range, finishing a fraction higher and International Telephone 4½s behaved similarly, although the last sale was 1½ above the Tuesday close.

Railroad bonds of standard types showed general easiness, although the prevailing declines ran to fractions. Larger losses cropped out in a handful of issues, notably Chicago, Great Western 4s, and Pennsylvania gold 5s, off 1 each, New Haven debenture 4s, off 2, and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico 5s, off 2½—all on small turnovers.

Bethlehem Steel 6s, to be redeemed on February 1 at 105, suffered a net loss of ½, dropping to 104½. Certainteed Products debenture 5½s featured the industrial group, however, on a 3½ point rise. Armour 5½s and Armour Real Estate 4½s gained fractionally. Steels as a whole were mixed.

Utilities yielded a substantial part of Tuesday's advance. New York Edison 6½s went down to equal the year's low of 110½. Foreign sugars were dull and irregular. The most conspicuous change was a 3 point rise in Vertientes Sugar 7s.

Foreign obligations drew scant attention and the tone was easy.

RIGGS BANK'S STOCK SOARS STILL HIGHER

Four Advances in Four Days Swing Price Up to $617.50 Per Share.

BOND TRADING IMPROVES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Riggs National Bank stock still remains the feature of the Washington Stock Exchange. Yesterday it registered its fourth rise and fourth new high in four consecutive sessions, a single share changing hands at 617½, a 7½-point gain over Tuesday.

On Tuesday two shares of the stock sold at 610, a 12½-point rise above Monday's last sale price. Monday 25 shares of the stock transferred at 597½, which was a 7½-point advance from the closing session last week. Last Friday 13 shares sold at 590, a 10-point increase. The stock, which had climbed 37½ points in four days, closed at 612 bid and 620 asked.

The healthy condition of the institution is regarded generally in financial circles as entirely responsible for the remarkable upward trend of the stock. Rumors of a merger between the bank and another large financial institution which were revived when the ascending movement of the stock began last Friday are now scouted generally and from reliable sources.

Improvement of the trading tone of both bond and stock divisions continues slowly, total bond sales aggregating $6,200, a $1,000 betterment compared with the preceding session. The stock sales total, 524, a 152-share increase, was swelled appreciably by a small-priced issue, 450 shares of Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty preferred changing hands at 73½, last sale price.

Surplus Is Increased.

The board of directors of Washington Loan & Trust Co., meeting yesterday in regular monthly session, ordered $100,000 transferred from undivided profits to surplus. This amount makes the surplus of the company $2,300,000, all earned.

The capital of the company is $1,000,000. This amount of surplus together with undivided profits makes capital assets of the company in excess of $3,500,000. John Joy Edson, chairman of the board, presided at the meeting and the president's report showed a very successful business for this year.

Freight Traffic Still Heavy.

Freight traffic continues to be the heaviest ever reported for this season of the year, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced yesterday. Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on August 31 totaled 1,160,210 cars, the highest for any week so far this year and also the highest for any corresponding week on record. Compared with the same week last year, this total was an increase of 43,499 cars. It also was an increase of 42,850 cars over the same week in 1927.

Loading of revenue freight in 1929, compared with the two previous years, follows:

	1929.	1928.	1927.
Four weeks in Jan...	3,870,978	3,448,895	3,756,660

New Corporation Formed

Strabo V. Claggett & Co., Inc., with office in this city, announce the formation of Claggett Shares Corporation which is to be managed by Strabo V. Claggett & Co., Inc., and has been organized under the laws of Delaware with broad powers to acquire, hold, sell and generally deal in securities representing various lines of business, its investments not being restricted to any particular field.

The corporation has an authorized capitalization of 250,000 shares of no par capital stock and has no funded debt or preferred stock. The corporation, which will start business with a net working capital of $5,000,000, is to enter into a contract with Strabo V. Claggett & Co., Inc., as bankers, pursuant to which the bankers are to be entitled to acquire from, or sell for, the corporation up to 200,000 shares of the stock of the corporation, on or before October 1, 1929.

The funds and investment of the corporation are to be managed by the organizers and the board of directors who will include Strabo V. Claggett, president, and president of Strabo V. Claggett & Co., Inc.; Howard O'Connor, vice president, and formerly assistant manager investment department, American Founders Corporation; Lincoln G. Ashcroft, treasurer, manager, Lawrence Scudder & Co., of Boston; C. S. Schindler, Frank C. Diem, Barton B. Quirk, E. Joseph Aronoff, Charles H. McGlue, Joseph M. Lydon and Joseph F. Carey, all of Strabo V. Claggett & Co., Inc.

New Building and Loan Association

The Chevy Chase Building & Loan Association has just been organized, a charter having been granted by the State of Maryland. Edward H. Jones, former president of the Chevy Chase Savings Bank, is the president. As the association is a Maryland corporation it must maintain its principal office in Maryland. Quarters have been secured at 5506 Wisconsin avenue.

In addition to the president, Mr. Jones, the officers are Frederick A. Schmidt, vice president, and J. Horace Smithey, secretary-treasurer. The directors include the above officers and Sidney C. Cousins, R. W. Eisinger, Diller F. Groff, M. Rea Shafer, Clyde E. Culp, John R. Clark, William L. Crem, jr., and A. H. Ferguson, counsel.

Bituminous Output Reduced.

A sharp decline in production on Labor Day, with smaller declines on Tuesday and Wednesday, reduced the output of bituminous coal for the week of September 7 to slightly in excess of 9,300,000 net tons, according to the preliminary estimate of the National Coal Association.

The United States Bureau of Mines announces that the production of bituminous coal for the preceding two weeks was as follows: Week ended August 24, 9,971,000 net tons; August 31, 10,619,000 net tons.

Regular Dividend Declared.

President E. K. Morris, of the Federal Storage Co., advised the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday that at a meeting of directors, held Tuesday, the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the preferred stock of the Federal Storage Co. was declared, payable October 15 to stockholders of record at the close of business September 30.

Assistant Secretary M. I. Tucker, of the Continental Trust Co., also announced the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent was declared payable September 30, 1929, to shareholders of record September 24, 1929.

Harry G. Meem Returns.

Harry G. Meem, vice president of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., who has been absent with his family on a short vacation in Atlantic City, has returned to his desk.

President Corcoran Thom, of the American Security & Trust Co., has returned from a six-week vacation tour abroad.

Vice President Francis G. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank, celebrated his forty-second birthday yesterday.

Bank Declares Dividend.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Anacostia Bank, held yesterday, the usual 5 per cent quarterly dividend was declared payable September 30, to stockholders of record September 25. President Maurice Otterback reported a successful business year to date and said the outlook indicated the most successful twelve months in the history of the institution.

Here's the Key

Success is a matter of being able to take advantage of opportunities and in the business world it means the ability to hold responsible and higher salaried positions. Such situations require specialized training, but because you have not that training at present does not mean that the door of opportunity is closed to you. . . . You can open the door through study with one of the educational institutions advertising on this page today.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

COLLEGE PROTESTS LACK OF CHURCH AID

Hampden-Sidney Demands Larger Presbyterian Appropriations.

250 ATTEND CONFERENCE

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 11.—Two outstanding matters today claimed the interest of the Presbyterian Synod of Virginia at the first business session of the 142d annual meeting at the First Persbyterian Church.

One was a memorial from the Baltimore conference of the Southern Methodist Church for the joint control of Massanette Springs Bible conference and school on a "fifty-fifty" basis and the other was the spirit of complaint voiced in the annual report of Hampden-Sidney College trustees that the support of the Persbyterian Churches is not what it should be and that the institution can not porgress unless the endowment is increased.

More than 250 ministers from the synodical territory which exceeds the bounds of Virginia are present for the meeting which will last through tomorrow and over which is presiding Rev. Thornton S. Wilson, for 40 years pastor of News Ferry, and who was elected moderator last night.

Opinions at Odds.

Differences of opinion were heard on the proposed unified control of Massanette Springs encampment, an institution originated by the Presbyterians, but leased for given periods of late years by the Methodists. There is also a school for mountain children conducted there in the winter. When a motion was put to refer the whole matter to the Massanetta Springs committee there was a close division, 93 voting for it and 87 against. The committee will report tomorrow and a vote of the whole body taken.

Committees appointed this morning met this afternoon to prepare reports to be acted on tomorrow. A. B. Carrington, of Danville, presenting the Hampden-Sidney report, said that of the $433,000 promised by the Synod from the million dollars campaign only $237,000 had been realized, adding, "Some of the most substantial churches seem to think it is a matter of no particular moment to cut donations to Hampden-Sidney several hundred dollars a year and sometmies to cut off the college entirely."

Dr. Jarman Speaks.

Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, elected last May president of Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, spoke this morning on proposed efforts to raise $500,000 for the institution, he reported has been placed on the list of standard colleges and whose diplomas are now recognized by the University of Virginia.

Tonight's session was devoted to foreign missions, Dr. Emmet W. McCorckle, of Rockbridge Baths, speaking to the report which reflected an improved situation in the Chinese missionary field. Despite internal dissention and turmoil in that field, "things are infinitely better than it seemed two years ago, they ever could be."

Sunnyside Home, a local synodical institution for aged women, was dedicated this afternoon, Rev. B. F. Wilson, of Harrisonburg, delivering the dedicatory address. Some months ago Mrs. F. X. Burton left her home to be used by the institution and it is about to be occupied. The synod votes tomorrow on the question of converting the property soon to be vacated by the women into a home for men.

The budget will come up tomorrow for discussion, also the "every member canvass." There will be more reports and before adjournment a memorial service for the dead.

Methodists Name Five New Elders

Ravenswood Conference Announces Presiding Officers' List.

Special to The Washington Post.

Ravenswood, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The seventy-sixth annual session of the Western Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South adjourned here after the appointments were announced by Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond.

New presiding elders were named in all but one of the six conference districts. P. E. Thornburg was reappointed in the Parkersburg district and in the Fairmont district A. J. Walton, former pastor of Emmanuel Church, Huntington, was named to succeed L. S. Cunningham, who was transferred to presiding elder in the Charleston district.

The Rev. O. F. Williams, former elder of the Ashland district, was chosen elder of the Huntington district, succeeding the Rev. Dr. R. T. Webb, a former pastor at Clarksburg, who is financial secretary of Morris Harvey College under the new arrangement. The Rev. B. M. Keith, presiding elder of the Beckley district, and the Rev. Guy Coffman, pastor of a Parkersburg church, are to change places. The Rev. Dr. Clay, who served as pastor at Clarksburg for four years, goes to Ashland district as presiding elder.

Crowds Jam Woodstock For Shenandoah Fair

Special to The Washington Post.

New Market, Va., Sept. 11.—The Shenandoah County fair opened yesterday at Woodstock with a good attendance. The exhibits are in greater variety than any previous fair. The opening day was free to children under 16 years of age, and the youngsters were there by the hundreds.

Besides the display the performers secured for the entertainment of the throngs are giving day and night exhibitions each day during the fair, which extends over four days. Special police protection is being afforded visitors to the fair and a number of State inspectors are directing traffic.

Virginian Is Cleared Of Charge of Bigamy

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 11.—James Calvert, recently indicted for bigamy, has been freed, the State dropping the case. Commonwealth's Attorney J. W. Carter and defense counsel agreed that since both of the women Calvert is alleged to have married had living husbands both marriages were void.

The case of Mrs. Maude Bray Calvert in the meantime is deferred. Judge Henry C. Leigh has been informed that she is on parole from a State asylum.

PRINCE GEORGES CLUBWOMEN ATTEND PICNIC

Group of county officers of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs snapped at the picnic held by the federation yesterday at the Marlboro Fair while federation exhibits were being judged. Left to right—Mrs. R. S. Allen, county president; Mrs. G. A. Castle, county treasurer; Mrs. D. J. Orcutt, publicity chairman; Mrs. N. O. Brigham, chairman of the department of the American Home, who was chairman of the committee which prepared the prize-winning Decatur Heights Housekeepers Club exhibit; Mrs. J. Enos Ray, extension chairman.

J. J. KAFKA ENTERS GOVERNOR'S RACE

Nomination by Socialists Is Accepted; Workers Are Given Message.

WASTE SYSTEM FLAYED

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11.—John J. Kafka, of Ettrick, Chesterfield County, announced today that he had accepted the nomination of the Socialist party of Virginia to become its candidate for governor at the November election.

Although he had urged upon the nominating committee the selection of prominent Richmond or Norfolk men, Kafka in his letter of acceptance to the Socialist committee of his party says in part: "I hereby notify the laboring men of Virginia that I have been tendered the nomination for Governor of Virginia by the Socialist party of this State. It affords me great pleasure to be singled out as the standard bearer of the State of Virginia by the laboring men, whose nomination I am proud to accept.

"In order to cast an intelligent ballot a voter should examine the platform of each party, consider the principles involved and then decide which platform is in keeping with his interest and ideals, and vote accordingly. You do not have to take the word of anyone to know what the Socialist party stands for. Just open your dictionary, Encyclopedia Britannica, or any other authority. Find the word "socialism" and read the definition; then if you are satisfied that under such a system your welfare and ideals of life are best promoted, then and not until then will you be ready to cast your ballot intelligently.

"My nomination, therefore, will give you an opportunity to cast a ballot of protest against a system which compels you to divide your wages with the nonproducer. It is an opportunity to protest against the wasteful system under which we are now working. To cast your ballot for the Socialist candidate will be a protest against throwing a faithful worker on the human scrap heap without any compensation and to be treated as an outcast by the very society to the welfare of which he has sacrificed the best years of his life.

"Your vote for the Socialist candidate will be a vote to abolish the head tax (also known as poll tax). We do not think it right or lawful to deny any citizen the right guaranteed him by the Constitution of the United States because of his financial standing."

Stock Dealer Injured While Repairing Silo

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Sept. 11.—Downing White, a prominent stock dealer of this place, fell 15 feet while repairing his silo on his farm, in Rappahannock County, this morning and suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle. He was sent to Memorial Hospital, Winchester.

He went up to the top of the silo to fix a window when he fell, falling on the cement floor.

Memorial Service Held For Football Captain

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The opening weekly assembly at the high school for the year took the form of a memorial to Ernest L. Miller, senior and captain-elect of the 1929 football team, drowned accidentally August 13 in a stream near here.

The address was by Principal E. E. Church, of the high school, and Douglas Voorhees, a classmate, spoke of the personal habits and character of the deceased. The address was to have been delivered by W. H. H. White, president of Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, but the sudden death of a member of his own faculty, Dr. W. H. Reese, in Moorefield, W. Va., Tuesday night, prevented his attendance.

Well Known Mason Dies At Ingram.

Danville, Va., Sept. 11 (Special).—J. Gus Hankins, widely known in Virginia because of his Masonic activity, died last night at Ingram at the home of his brother, W. W. Hankins. He was 62 years of age and was publisher of the Virginia Masonic Journal at Richmond. His funeral will be held tomorrow at Oak Level. He leaves six brothers and two sisters.

Agriculture Branch Opens.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 11 (Special).—The United States Department of Agriculture Market News Service today opened a seasonal branch here in charge of V. H. Nicholson, Washington. First reports were issued today, giving detailed markets and marketing conditions. The first report showed russet-free Grimes Golden bringing $5.50 per barrel.

1,755 Parochial Pupils Register

La Salle Institute Enrolls Record Number of Boys in Cumberland.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—The total enrollment in the Catholic parochial schools of Cumberland is 1,755 for this term. SS. Peter and Paul graded school leads with 500 and Ursuline Academy, connected with the same church, has 80.

Two hundred and ten students are enrolled at LaSalle Institute, which is a secondary school for nearly all the boys, only 78 students being registered in St. Marys High School. There are 400 in the primary grades. In St. Patrick's parish, 67 are registered at Central High School for girls and 420 are students of the primary department.

LaSalle Institute has the largest enrollment in its history. Yesterday the student body attended a high mass of requiem in St. Patrick's Church for the late Brother Abdas of last year's teaching staff. The Rev. James A. Dwyer paid a tribute to the deceased.

FREDERICK CITIZENS PLAN TANEY SHRINE

Gov. Ritchie Heads Move to Honor Former Supreme Court Justice.

WILL BUY OLD HOME

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 11.—Formed for the purpose of establishing a national shrine in Frederick as a memorial to Roger Brooks Taney, former Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, a charter has been granted to the Roger Brooks Taney Home, Inc., under the laws of Maryland.

The incorporators are Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, State Senator A. Leroy McCardell, Edward S. Delaplaine and Hammond Clary. A meeting of the incorporators was held Monday in the statehouse, where the papers of incorporation were signed.

Gov. Ritchie will serve as chairman of the honorary advisory board, the other members, including Mrs. L. Victor Baughman, Mrs. Francis H. Markell, William Tyler Page, Washington, D. C., author of the American Creed; Chief Judge Hammond Urner, Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner 3d, Senator McCardell, Matthew Page Andrews, Baltimore; H. Dorsey Etchison and W. Clinton McSherry.

Edward S. Delaplaine, George B. Delaplaine and Hammond Clary are named to serve as directors until the first annual meeting. Mr. Clary is named resident agent.

The corporation is empowered to acquire the home owned by Taney while he was a member of the Frederick County bar. The home, which is more than a century old, is located on South Bentz street, between Patrick and South streets.

Taney served in the President's Cabinet as Attorney General and as Secretary of the Treasury. On the death of John Marshall he became a member of the United States Supreme Court, later serving as Chief Justice.

Monuments in memory of Taney already have been erected at Annapolis and in Mount Vernon place, Baltimore.

Mapp, Page, to Attend Pollard Notification

Special to The Washington Post.

Williamsburg, Va., Sept. 11.—Former Senator G. Walter Mapp, of Acconac, and Rosewell Page, of Hanover, former second auditor, have announced their intention of attending the Democratic notification ceremonies here September 14.

Both Mr. Mapp and Mr. Page, who unsuccesfully sought the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the last primary, have tendered their services to John Garland Pollard, who carries the Democratic banner in the race for governor in November.

Martinsburg to Have Jones Law Grand Jury

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Due to the many alleged violations of the Jones law, a grand jury will be called for service for the term of United States Court for the northern district of West Virginia which opens here next Tuesday, it has been learned. The term will be the first one in several held here in which grand jurors have been needed.

Several Volstead act cases are also on the calendar and it is likely that one or two civil suits will be tried.

Johnson, of Middletown, Del., district superintendent of the Wilmington Conference, M. E. church, and the Rev. Omar E. Jones, of Cambridge, Md., former district superintendent.

Among outstanding members of the faculty are Roy J. Colbert, assistant professor of economics, University of Wisconsin; Frank W. Collier, of Washington, professor of philosophy, American University; T. A. Conover, rector of St. Bernard's Parish, New Jersey; Viola Schuldt, director of religious education, Ithaca, N. Y., and Dr. George H. Preston, commissioner of mental hygiene of Maryland.

In addition to an elaborate recreational program, courses are being given in the human element of the Bible. Denominational conferences and general conferences are being held daily.

Mitchell High School Bond Flotation Carries

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 11.—Fred Hudgins, chairman of the Culpeper County School Board, tonight stated that he had been unofficially advised by Mrs. G. T. Sachach, member of the board from Cedar Mountain district, that the bond issue for a new high school at Mitchell, had carried yesterday by a margin of 26 votes.

In addition to the funds to be raised by the issue it is expected to secure a loan from the State literary fund, which will enable the board to put up a school, meeting the requirements for an accredited high school.

Named to Y. M. C. A. Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 11 (Special).—Bruce Rentch, a member of the class graduated from the high school here in June, has been named boys' secretary at the local Y. M. C. A., effective September 18, it is announced.

COUNTY WOMEN WIN HOUSEKEEPER PRIZE

Decatur Heights Club Shows Menace of House Fly in Homes.

CHILDREN VIE AS JUDGES

The Decatur Heights Housekeepers' Club was awarded first place in the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Club exhibition at the Marlboro fair yesterday, with a display that stressed the house fly's menace to health. Mrs. N. O. Brigham was chairman of the committee in charge of the exhibit.

In a screen box was built a model of an ordinary kitchen and dining room scene. Small models of food were shown, together with a crib in which a baby was exposed to flies. Dozens of captive flies were shown attacking the food and "baby."

Second prize was awarded to the Lanham Study Club exhibit which featured bird conservation; third prize went to the Chillum Study Club for its model town exhibit with the Woman's Club shown as a lighthouse towering over the town. The Mellwood Women's Club was awarded fourth prize for its exhibition of proper and improper lighting methods, and the Landover Women's Club won fifth prize with an exhibition showing the various methods of community service.

The judges were Miss Margaret McPheeters, nutrition expert of the University of Maryland extension service; Miss Catherine Cowsill, of Washington; Miss Maude Burklin and Mrs. Georgiana Linthicum, home demonstration agent of Anne Arundel County.

While the exhibits were being judged, the members of the federation attended a picnic on the fair grounds, presided over by Mrs. R. S. Allen, president of the county federation.

Tobacco and poultry judging contests were staged by boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs. The following results were announced: Calvert County Team—Poultry judging: Franklin Boyd, first; George Dorsey, second; Alma Young, third; Elinor Morsell, fourth; Rodgely Boyd, fifth, and John Burr, sixth.

Prince Georges County—Poultry judging: Mae Montgomery, first; Kenneth Gilbertson, second; Edith Endslow, third; Norman Jarvis, fourth; Maurice Jarvis, fifth.

The judges of the judging contests were Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist, University of Maryland extension service; County Agent John Morsell, Calvert County, and Assistant County Agent P. E. Clark, Prince Georges County. The winner will compete at the State poultry judging contest at the Hagerstown fair, October 4.

Results of the tobacco judging contest were as follows: Woodrow Robinson, first; Thomas Weems, second; Raymond Cranford, third; Roland Howard, fourth; Kenneth Cox, fifth.

The judges' decisions in the other competitions will be made known today.

Edward A. Garvey, 515 Webster street northwest, yesterday failed to appear in Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court to answer charges of driving while under the influence of liquor, reckless driving and failing to have a driver's permit, preferred by State Policeman E. S. Haddaway. Judge J. Chew Sheriff ordered his collateral of $115 forfeited. Garvey was arrested by Haddaway September 8 at College Park on the Baltimore boulevard.

Trudie Smith, Wheaton, Md., charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving by Deputy Sheriff Ralph Brown, was fined $101 by Judge Sheriff.

When Smith was found guilty his mother became hysterical and was carried into the office of Justice of the Peace Retta Morris, which adjoins the courtroom. Chief H. L. Leonard, of the Prince Georges County rescue squad, was summoned and resuscitated her. Smith was released in the custody of his bondsman, Frank Mace, to pay the fine later.

John B. Platzen, Hyattsville, charged with displaying dealer's auto tags while not engaged in the business of a dealer and failing to show a registration card, was fined $6. He was arrested by Chief of Police Carl M Blanchard, of Hyattsville.

The Maryland State Department of Education has donated $700 for improving the county road leading to the Maryland State Normal and Industrial School for colored students at Bowie, the Prince Georges County commissioners have been notified.

Fearful that traffic on Central avenue will be so increased by the extension of the Crain highway that school children will be menaced, the mayor and council of Capitol Heights have voted to ask the State Roads Commission to install a traffic light at Sixty-first street and Central avenue. Mayor Thomas J. Luckett will discuss the subject with the commission.

All banks in the county, the office of the clerk of the Circuit Court and a number of merchants will be closed today in observance of Defenders' Day.

Bare Legs Taboo for Girls At Annapolis High School

Stern Rebuke Greets Appearance of Feminine Students Displaying Varying Shades of Vacation Tan; Edict Compels Boys to Wear Garters.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 11.—The "bare leg" fad among girl pupils of Annapolis High School has been officially tabooed under a decree of Howard A. Kinhart, principal, whose edict became effective this morning. Cooler weather may or may not have had something to do with it, but even the most persistent followers of the fad appeared for classes this morning with full length stockings concealing the various shades of "sun tan" they had been at such pains to acquire throughout the merry days of summer vacation.

When school reopened on Monday, many of the larger girls returned in diminutive sports socks or entirely stockingless. Some of the young men, not to be outdone by their feminine contemporaries, were minus garters, their socks curling over the shoes or slippers in the most approved "collegiate" mode.

This nonchalance received a somewhat stern rebuke from the principal, who announced that the girls must wear stockings and the boys garters. Yesterday, the weather being still that of midsummer, Kinhart found it necessary to repeat his ultimatum and announce that it would be strictly enforced. He explained, however, that the decree against bare legs did not apply to the little girls of the grammar school, but was mandatory as to their larger sisters, the girls of the upper high school classes.

Various rumors were heard about the city, to the effect that some of the girls would resist the edict. But the whole situation appears to have been handled in a diplomatic fashion, with the result that all students bowed to it.

CONVENTION BLAZE EXCITEMENT FATAL

Dr. W. H. Reese, of Shepherd College, Dies; Was Talking to Patriotic Sons.

FIRE DAMAGE IS SLIGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Excitement resulting from a small fire in the American Legion hall here last night was directly responsible for the death of Dr. W. H. Reese, instructor in science at Shepherd College, Sheperdstown, W. Va., of heart failure.

Dr. Reese had just concluded an address on "Schools" at an open meeting of the State Patriotic Sons of America, when a short circuit caused a blaze which caught a window curtain. The entire crowd left the hall hurriedly. A few minutes later Dr. Reese fell dead on the street as he was returning to his hotel with Mrs. Reese.

The damage to the curtain and hall was small and the fire was quickly extinguished.

Representative Johnson Speaker.

Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the House committee on immigration, had previously made an address on "Immigration" and was on the stage at the time of the fire.

Dr. Reese, widely known in the eastern part of the State and in demand as a platform orator, had come here for the P. O. S. A. meeting. He was 54 years old. He had been in poor health, but had not been indisposed sufficiently to interfere with his professional work. He is survived by the widow and two stepsons.

The body was taken to Shepherdstown today in charge of President W. H. S. White, of Shepherd College. Funeral services will be held Saturday, either from the auditorium of the college or the Lutheran Church, at 2 p. m. The place of interment has not been determined by the family. Dr. Reese went to Shepherd College in 1927, after several years as a member of the faculty at Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va.

Rupenthal Is President.

S. H. Rupenthal, of Berkeley Springs, was elected president of the West Virginia Camp, P. O. S. A., at its meeting here. Terra Alta was chosen for the 1930 encampment. Sessions closed today.

Other officers elected are H. H. Burgess, New Creek, vice president; C. D. Shockey, Berkeley Springs, master of forms; Perry R. Unger, Unger Store, conductor; W. X. Arey, Charles Town, inspector; H. C. Miller, Kearneysville, guard; D. C. Dolley, Charles Town, secretary; Ira H. Irvin, Shennandoah Junction, trustee. Delegates to national convention in Columbus, Ohio, September 22-25 are T. A Ramey and John W. Irwin, Charles Town. Dr. Reese was also named a delegate, but his sudden death left a vacancy.

Officers carried over are Richard Hammerla, North Mountain, treasurer; T. A. Ramey and J. J. Irvin, Charles Town, by-laws committee; T. W. Ramey Charles Town, and B. W. Henry, Berkeley Springs, trustees.

Clergymen Drawn On Allegany Jury

Cumberland and Midland Pastors Are Named on Inquisitorial Body.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—The jury, drawn for the October term of the Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday by Judges D. Lindley Sloan and Albert A. Doub, is unusual in that the list contains the names of two clergymen—The Rev. Dr. Eugene F. Skyles, pastor of St. Mark's Reformed Church, the oldest active clergyman for length of service in Cumberland and the Rev. Joseph W. Young, who fills the Methodist Episcopal pulpit at Midland. Aside from ministerial duties, the Rev. Mr. Young is a manufacturer's traveling representative. Dr. Skyles waived exemption which is allowed clergymen in connection with jury duty.

Others drawn on the jury are Joseph F. Barnett, George B. Fletchinger, George C. Frey, Alvin O. Cook, William W. Hopwood, Amon C. Wilson, Edward Moran, William Winebrenner, Thomas B. Finan, Kirk C. Richardson, Aaron May, George Tennant, Joseph L. Bowser, Charles E. Hice, Joseph A. Stowell, J. Frank Young, John R. Deffinbaugh, William Harper, Thomas W. Udy, Albert S. Haines, Robert S. Barnes, Joseph Radcliffe, C. Frank Keyser, Paul W. England, David C. Laird, Randolph T. Wishmyer, John Ehrbar, William J. Coleman, Hugh Stevenson, Courtney A. Fletcher, Consor W. Oster, Horace G. Evans, William H. Malcolm, John McIntyre, Steve Bowling, Franklin P. Green, J. Hilary Hayden, Robert G. Robertson, Robert L. Scott, Afien H. Darr, Harry W. Matheney, Benjamin A. Wentling, Edward J. Murphy, Paul D. Lear, George M. Barton and Joseph W. Silber.

Methodist Conference Closes Sessions.

Fairmont, W. Va., Sept. 11 (Special) New Brighton, Pa., was selected as next year's convention city at the closing sessions of the Pittsburgh District Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, held at the Methodist Protestant Temple here. It was the ninety-sixth session.

DR. BROWN PUSHES VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Coalitionist Candidate Is to Make Five More Talks This Week.

BERKELEY ALSO ON TOUR

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—Continuing the vigorous speaking campaign begun immediately after the Democratic primary, Dr. William Moseley Brown, anti-Smith and Republican candidate for governor, will deliver five addresses during the remainder of this week, concentrating on the Southside and Eastern Virginia.

Tomorrow afternoon Dr. Brown will address a gathering at the Mathews County Fair Grounds. Friday afternoon he speaks at Brookneal, going on to South Boston for another address Friday night. While Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee is speaking in Williamsburg Saturday afternoon, Dr. Brown will speak at Prospect, going later to Chase City for an evening address to bring the week's speaking campaign to a close. Dr. Brown has delivered addresses this week at Hopewell, Alberta, Lawrenceville, Union Level and Kenbridge.

Capt. Charles C. Berkeley, of Newport News, anti-Smith and Republican candidate for attorney general, also is on an extensive speaking tour this week on the Eastern Shore. Capt. Berkeley will be at Temperanceville tomorrow night, at Parksley Friday night, Capeville Saturday afternoon and Franktown on Saturday night. He spoke at Onancock Tuesday night and Chincoteague Wednesday night.

Former Judge W. Kirk Mathews, of Richmond, one of the leading anti-Smith speakers, will address voters at Carson on Saturday night. He will speak at Chatham on the afternoon of September 16, at Saluda at noon, September 23, and at Highland Springs on September 25.

So far the speaking campaign has been confined largely to the rural districts and the smaller towns, the candidates apparently reserving the speaking dates in the larger cities for the closing weeks of the campaign. Dr. Brown has already made a good start in pursuance of his announced intention to speak in every county in Virginia with the election almost two months in the future.

The Democratic campaign has already reached full swing except for the stump speaking that is to be inaugurated Saturday with Dr. Pollard's address at Williamsburg. Headquarters of the anti-Smith Democrats, Republicans and Democrats have become veritabe beehives of activity with typewriters clicking, clerks hurrying between offices and officials holding conferences with district, county and precinct workers.

Fairmont Is Host To Church Parley

United Brethren Conference Ends With Sunday Services.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fairmont, W. Va., Sept. 11.—The seventy-first West Virginia annual conference of the United Brethren Church in Christ opened at First United Brethren Church here this morning. The conference will end with the Sunday morning service, September 15.

Bishop G. D. Batdorf, who was elected in May at the general conference to succeed Bishop Emeritus William M. Bell, of Harrisburg, Pa., is presiding.

Among other visiting officials are Rev. Fred Slaughter, superintendent of East district, Clarksburg; Rev. F. H. Capehart, superintendent of West district, Parkersburg; J. M. Knight, Parkersburg, conference secretary, and T. Clayton Parsons, Ripley, treasurer.

More Than 40 Horses Will Run at Martinsburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Forty-odd horses, about twice the number that were entered in 1928, will perform at the eighth annual Martinsburg Fair, which is to be held here Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of next week. Consequently, Roy C. Grove and Dr. S. M. Langford, who are in charge of the horse show and the races, believe this year's exhibitions will surpass anything in the past.

The horses entered are from points in West Virginia's eastern panhandle, western Maryland and northern Virginia.

Ware-Abingdon Church Pilgrimage Announced

Richmond, Va., Sept. 11 (A.P.).—The annual pilgrimage to historic homes and churches of Gloucester County will be held October 5, it has been announced by Ware and Abingdon churches, under whose auspices the annual event is held.

A score or more places of historic interest will be visited during the day. Among the colonial homes of Gloucester thrown open to the public at that time will be Goshen, White Marsh, Elmington, Todsbury, Warner Hall and others. A visit to the home of the late Walter Reed will be an added attraction to the trip this year.

NANCY HANKS BODY WILL MEET SEPT. 21

West Virginians Will Mark Birthplace of Mother of Abraham Lincoln.

HISTORIAN WILL SPEAK

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—A meeting of the Nancy Hanks Memorial Commission, appointed by Gov. William C. Conley of West Virginia, on authority of the last legislature, has been called at Mountainview Inn, McNeills, 4 miles north of Moorefield, Saturday, September 21, at 10 a. m. Dr. William E. Barton, the Lincoln historian, will meet with the commission.

Through Andrew Price, historian, who resides at Marlinton, W. Va., the birthplace of Nancy Hanks, the mother of Lincoln, has been established in Dolls Gap, a few miles up Mikes Run in Mineral County, W. Va., and about 35 miles from Cumberland. Dr. Barton, who in 1927 visited the Mikes Run territory in effort to locate the birthplace site, has accepted Mr. Price's version.

Sunday afternoon, September 22, an open-air meeting is planned to be held on Dolls Gap on Mikes Run, when a stone will be set to mark the place where the cabin stood in which Nancy Hanks, the mother of Lincoln, was born.

Dr. Barton will make an address along with the others. It is planned to give Dr. Barton a dinner at Keyser on Saturday evening, September 21. It is hoped to have Gov. Conley and former Gov. John J. Cornwell present, among others.

The members of the Nancy Hanks commissioners are Andrew W. Price, Marlinton; Mrs. A. A. Pickering, Rowlesburg; John M. Crawford, Parkersburg; Phil Conley, editor of the West Virginia Review, Charleston, and William H. Barber, editor of the Mineral Daily News, Keyser, who is president of the Nancy Hanks Memorial Association.

Naval Academy Has 2,010 on Rolls

Appointment Increases Are Causing Gains in Enrollment.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 11.—When the Naval Academy opens for the eighty-fifth academic term, October 1, there will be 2,010 midshipment on the rolls, it was announced today by officials of the institution.

This total is larger by nearly 200, compared to terms of several previous years and is due mostly to the fact that Congress provided one additional appointment to each senator and representative for this year's term. They are now allowed four, as compared to three formerly. Prior to the World War the allotment was five, and the enrollment of middies often ran well above 2,500.

The new fourth class, recruited this summer, has the largest enrollment, 610. Numerical strength of the others is: First, or seniors, 413; second, 469; third, 518.

Members of the first, second and third classes, now on annual leave, are due to report here September 27, and three days will be given over to preliminaries, such as assignment to quarters. Class recitations and the regular routine will get under way October 1.

Former Arkansan Gets Laboratory Position

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 11.—A. B. Groves, formerly of Arkansas, yesterday became identified with the Winchester Research Laboratory of the Virginia Experiment Station as a plant pathologist, succeeding F. J. Schneiderham, now connected with the extension service of West Virginia University, with headquarters in Martinsburg.

Mr. Groves will be associated with W. S. Hough, entomologist in charge of the local laboratory, which was established some years ago for the benefit of growers of apples, peaches and other fruits in northern Virginia.

Delaware Live Stock Killed During Storm

Special to The Washington Post.

Laurel, Del., Sept. 11.—Two horses and four mules, owned by Benjamin Magee, were killed last night when a barn of Harrison West was struck by lightning and destroyed. A mule owned by William Vincent was killed when a barn on the George Otwell Broad Creek Farm was struck.

During last night's electrical and rainstorm, the worst in years, factories running night shifts were compelled to shut down.

Reunion Plans Formed By Chamber President

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 11.—The president of the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce, J. F. Pond, has appointed committees to make arrangements for the annual reunion of the Confederate veterans and sons of Confederate veterans of Virginia, to be held in Petersburg, October 8, 9 and 10.

An interesting program is to be arranged and delegates to both reunions will receive a warm welcome. Both reunions are expected to be more largely attended than they have been for several years.

Pulpit Remains Empty At Cumberland Church

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 11.—Appointments at the Pittsburgh Conference of the Evangelical Church, which adjourned at Franklin, Pa., have been announced, but Bethel Church, Cumberland, which is connected with the conference, is left temporarily without a pastor.

The Rev. J. H. Wise, who has been pastor here, has been transferred to Pleasantville, Pa. The presiding elder will supply a minister soon at the local church, it was stated.

Lightning Bolt Strikes Church.
